Tighter U. S. Income Law, Congress Plan

House Group Will Study Revision of Structure; Liquor Levy Up.

Steady Flow of Revenue to Meet Current Expenses Aim.

(Associated Press.)

Complete revision of the Federal tax structure, embracing tightening of the income tax law and revamping of liquor levies, in expectation of prohibition repeal, is the purpose of a study to get under way today before a House Ways and Means subcommittee.

The aim of the administration and congressional leaders is to work out a balanced program that will insure a steady flow of revenue into the Treasury to meet the Government's current expenses under any economic condition.

Besides planning to levy liquor taxes to bring in $500,000,000 a year in event of repeal, the administration hopes that, on the basis of the findings, it will be possible for Congress to plug loopholes in the income tax law and restore it to its former position of providing more than half the Government's revenue.

Liquor Tax Up First.

The scope of the survey also includes possibility of removing several of the so-called nuisance taxes imposed in the billion-dollar revenue bill enated in 1932.

The first phase of the study will deal with liquor taxes. Representative Sam Hill (Democrat), Washington, predicted the present rate of $1.10 a gallon on distillates will be increased to at least $2.60, with probable compensatory raises of levies on wines.

Administration estimates of a 150,000,000-gallon consumption the first year, with a tax of $2.60, would return $390,000,000, exclusive of the wine revenue, Hill observed.

Customs duties on imported liquors are expected to exceed $100,000,000. The present import tax is $5 a gallon. The study will encompass a reduction to possibly $3 a gallon to prevent domestic distillers from profiteering or from raising the price on the limited quantity of liquor available for consumption, which, officials say, would permit the bootlegger to stay in business after repeal. At the same time it is planned to keep the import levy high enough to protect domestic distillers.

In connection with the income tax,

U. S. to Fight Wheat 'Leggers

Evaders of Processing Tax Get Warning of Stiff Penalties.

(Associated Press.)

Guy T. Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, yesterday warned wheat bootleggers that penalties for violation of the revenue laws were heavy and that his bureau intended to enforce the statutes.

The wheat bootlegging has taken various forms to escape the 30-cent a bushel processing tax. The farmer was given the privilege of having flour for his own use ground tax free.

Helvering said that among "the most noticeable violations" which had come to the bureau's attention "is the fact that certain people are purchasing wheat from elevators and are taking such wheat to millers, having the wheat processed into flour and signing affidavits to the effect that they are producers."

He said that reports also had reached the bureau that farmers were selling flour that they had had ground ostensibly for their own use.

Helvering reminded that a fine up to $10,000 and a maximum imprisonment of five years is provided for violation of the tax regulations.

"It will be the policy of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to take appropriate action in every case where the provisions of section 1114 are violated," Helvering said.

Iceland Goes Wet In Landslide Vote

Reykjavik, Iceland, Oct. 22 (AP).—A landslide vote for repeal of prohibition of spirituous liquors in Iceland was predicted tonight on the basis of early returns.

Wet ratio in the Reykjavik district of more than 2 to 1 was regarded as indicating national sentiment.

Play Swing Injures M'AdooGrandchild

Cynthia, McAdoo 7-year-old granddaughter of Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, of California, suffered a severe scalp wound yesterday afternoon when a swing struck her in the back of the head as she played in a public park at S and Twenty-third streets.

She was taken to Dr. John H. Lyons, 1344 Nineteenth street northwest, who closed the wound back of her left ear with several stitches.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. McAdoo, jr., 2231 Bancroft place.

Jilted Doctor, Berserk, Attacks 3 With Ax, Dies

Note From "Ann" Tells of Lovers' Quarrel; Death Probed.

Apparently despondent following a quarrel with his sweetheart, a young doctor early this morning became crazed, chased two women and a man with an ax, and suddenly fell dead.

The man was identified as Dr. Clarence Perkins, 30, of Danville, Va. He had been rooming at 10 Pinehurst circle, Chevy Chase,.

The homicide squad and Coroner MacDonald were investigating the mysterious cause of Perkins' death.

Police found a note signed by "Ann," expressing regret at "what happened Saturday night" and concluding with "I am going home to think things over."

Dr. Perkins, who was said not to be practicing, returned yesterday morning from a week-end visit to his home in Danville, police said.

Last night he began quarreling with another woman living in the house.

Other occupants of the house were then aroused and attempted to pacify him. He ran to the garage and grabbed an ax. Armed with the weapon, the doctor raced wildly through the household, driving the other occupants to safety in another room.

The party was herded in a side room, and Perkins smashed the door with the ax, but before gaining admittance was subdued by the woman with whom he had been quarreling. Suddenly he pitched forward and fell dead.

The house is owned by Mrs. Louise Biekert, and was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Milton Foote and a 10-month-old baby, police said.

Il Duce Sees Carnera Win Over Uzcudun

Champion Booed by Fans for Lack of Knockout; Sprains Hand, Claim.

Rome, Oct. 22 (AP).—Primo Carnera successfully defended his world's heavyweight championship today in a 15-round match with Paulino Uzcudun, brawny Spaniard, who develops his muscles as a wood chopper in the Basque country.

A crowd of 70,000, including Premier Mussolini and James Roosevelt, eldest son of the American President, saw the mammoth Italian hand Paulino an unmerciful beating, win every round and capture the decision on points by a wide margin.

Delighted with Carnera's impressive boxing and heavy hitting through the first 13 rounds, the crowd abandoned its partisanship in the last two sessions to boo the big champion for his failure to finish the weary, beaten Basque and to cheer Paulino's gallant exhibition of courage in the face of hopeless courage.

Paulino Outclassed.

That's all Paulino had. Conceding the champion's tremedous physical advantages, worn by the campaigning of a decade, 34 years old and past his fistic prime, Uzcudun never had a chance against the 24-year-old Carnera.

From the first few seconds of the first round when Carnera savagely rushed the veteran to the ropes and belabored him with both hands, it was apparent that Paulino was in for a licking.

Gamely he took it, wading courageously into his ponderous rival so he could chug his short, thick arms into Primo's body, but it was all quite futile. Carnera stopped Paulino's rushes with short, crisp uppercuts and his tremendous reach enabled him to keep the Basque at a safe distance most of the way. In close, the Italian made the most of his weight and strength and only the stamina for which Uzcudun has been noted for many years enabled him to go the full distance.

Groggy in Ninth.

The battering the Basque took in the first eight rounds had weakened him badly and Carnera

2 Killed, 1 Shot Trying to Escape

Four in Attempted Break Captured by Guards.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 22 (AP).—Three convicts were shot two fatally, when four prisoners attempted to escape over the State Reformatory wall today. All were captured within a few feet of the wall, two railroad men assisting guards in the capture.

Sidney Floyd was shot in the back and Jake Martin shot in the head. Both died soon after.

Clarence Crawford, serving two three-year terms for forgery, was shot in the head.

Golfer Again Confesses to Killing Girl

Hoax Believed Behind Claim to Shooting of Miss Limerick.

The mysterious murder of Beulah Limerick, 19-year-old theater usher, occupied the attention of homicide detectives last night after word was received that Isadore Matin, 23, had again confessed he shot her.

Matin, a golf instructor, whose alias is Ted Martin, confessed two years ago that he killed the girl. After questioning by detectives he said he incriminated himself to obtain publicity for his golf school.

In his latest confession he said he killed her because of jealousy. He gave himself up to Philadelphia police yesterday, saying his conscience had tormented him for more than a week. He said he wanted relatives to whom he owes $800 to get the "reward."

Tells of Visits Here.

In his alleged confession, he said he went to Washington four times during the week of the murder.

The girl's body was found on December 31, 1930. Her death was first attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage; but an undertaker, while embalming the body, found a bullet hole in the back of her head.

There were no bloodstains on the bed where she was found in her home at 18 Nineteenth street southeast. This led Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald to belive that someone had attempted to conceal the cause of her death.

Matin told Philadelphia police that he came to Washington early on the morning of December 31, 1930, carrying a gun, a wad of cotton, and some rouge. He said he shot the girl once through the temple as she lay in bed. He said he filled the bullet hole with cotton and rouged her face to make it appear lifelike.

Story Is Doubted.

Dr. MacDonald pointed out last night that the bullet hole was in the back of her head and not in the temple. The undertaker who discovered the wound and Dr. MacDonald said there was no cotton wadding in the hole.

When he confessed two years ago, police found newspaper clippings in his room which told of the killing. Boarders in the house in which he was staying said he had retired on the night of December 30 and ate breakfast with them the next morning.

Detective Sergeants George Darnell and John C. Dalgleish will leave for Philadelphia today to question Matin. They are frankly skeptical of his story and believe it is another device to obtain publicity.

The murder of the attractive brunette usher has been one of Washington's unsolved mysteries.

Emperor to Watch Japanese War Game

Fukui, Japan (Monday), Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Emperor Hirohito was established in temporary quarters today awaiting the start tomorrow of Japan's annual army maneuvers.

The emperor will go to the "battlefield" each morning to watch the sham battles.

Von Luckner Will Head Nazi Drive in U. S., Jewish Charge

New York, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—A charge that Count Felix von Luckner, German sea raider and adventurer who has lived much in the United States since the war, is to become chief of the propaganda staff of the German Nazi party in this country, was made today by Bernard S. Deutsch, president of the American Jewish Congress.

Count von Luckner, Deutsch declared, is coming to the United States ostensibly to lecture, but will replace Erich Weigand, who is to return to Germany allegedly because he is unable to obtain a renewal of his visitor's visa, according to Deutsch.

The 10 principal Nazi centers in the United States, Deutsch said, are New York, Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Denver, San Francisco, Trenton, Milwaukee and Portland. A widespread system of espionage, he asserted, has been set up by the Nazi organization in this country.

"A favorite method," he said, "is to spy upon German-Americans in beer gardens who, if guilty of casting animadversions upon the Nazi government, are promptly reported with a view to reprisals against relatives in Germany. This division is under the direction of Heinz Spanknoebel, supervisor of Nazi activities in the United States.

D. C. Resident Reports $5,000 Jewelry Loss

Mrs. Palmer Derby, of the Portner Apartments, Fifteenth and U streets northwest, last night reported to police the loss of jewelry valued at $5,000.

Mrs. Derby said she only recently moved into the Portner. During the moving, she said, the jewelry either was lost or stolen.

Farm Leader Assails Plea Of Roosevelt

Iowa Pickets on Road, Halt Truck Bound for Market.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 22 (AP).—Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers Holiday Association, said the address tonight of President Roosevelt would have no effect on the farm strike his organization has called and reiterated "we're not going to stop this battle until we get what we have demanded, cost of production."

Meanwhile the first report of direct action since the declaration of a National farm strike Saturday, came tonight when a group of 75 men, picketing the highway near James, a small Plymouth County town, turned back, b ypersuasion, several trucks loaded with farm produce and livestock intended for the Sioux City Market. Visitors were unable to ascertain whether the pickets were members of the farmers holiday association, which called the strike yesterday.

President's Talk Rapped.

Asserting the President had "failed to even mention cost of production," the farm strike leader attacked the Presidential address as "pure sophistry."

He charged the President did not make "even one definite, positive pledge" to agriculture.

"He failed to say one thing that changes my ideas about agricultural problems," Reno declared. "The Farmers Holiday Association has demanded recognition of the right of the farmer to production cost, which is fundamental.

"The whole program simply burdens the public with billions of dollars of debt which will have to be paid eventually, or repudiated."

Hits Home Eviction.

The address, Reno contended, "contained no ray of hope there will be changes in the policies which so far have proved absolutely ineffective."

"He suggested it may take a year, or three years, for the program to become really effective. Is that any consolation for the hundreds of thousands of farmers who are being dispossessed of their homes?

"The Farmers' Holiday Association asks evictions and executions be stopped until the farmer gets the price to pay his debts. This request was not even mentioned by the President.

"As to the administration's refinancing of farm mortgages, only about 6 per cent of those who have applied have received any benefit. There is not one farmer in 50 who can meet the Government's requirements for a loan."

Reno today announced two labor federations had proffered their support to his organization in its strike for higher agricultural prices.

The announcement came as association members in 21 States prepared to attempt to cut off the flow of produce to market in carrying

Neville Asks Modified Codes

NRA Aid to Retain Post if Employers of Less Than Ten Are Freed.

North Platte, Nebr., Oct. 22 (AP).—Keith Neville, of North Platte, who resigned recently as chairman of the Nebraska NRA board, tonight said he will withdraw his resignation on the condition that employers of less than 10 persons be exempt from the provisions of the recovery act.

Neville returned home tonight from a week-end hunting trip and said he had been informed Gen. Hugh Johnson, Federal Recovery Administrator, had been attempting to reach him by telephone. He said he had had no indication whether his proposal would be accepted.

Johnson's Telegram.

Neville tonight made public the following telegram from Johnson, received Friday, and his answer:

"Honorable Keith Neville,
"North Platte, Nebr.

"Re telegram, neither you nor I responsible for the farm act or public works. Your criticism of them is not justifiable in saying that your and my job is a failure. Let's pull together to make the whole thing a success.

"Hugh S. Johnson."

Reply to Johnson.

The reply:

"Hugh S. Johnson,
"Washington, D. C.

"To pull together we must have oars. Success can only come by coordinating all recovery activities. Suggest all Nebraka projects that have passed the engineering, legal and financial departments of the public works administration be approved by the board of review Tuesday. Pulling together should start at Washington. Will continue as chairman if given authority to exempt from provisions of NRA all business employing less than 10 persons. Hundreds of business failures the only alternative."

Neville said he had not received a letter from Johnson, which was expected today.

Roosevelt Orders Gold Price Fixing, Managed Currency, To Raise Commodity Level

Parley Plans Kept Secret By Litvinoff

Emissary Prepares to Sail Thursday for Washington.

Moscow, Oct. 22 (AP).—Regardless of the firm assurance with which Maxim Litvinoff's fellow countrymen expect him to return from Washington with the long-desired mandate of recognition, it became plain today that only those in the highest councils of the Soviet know what actual position he will take in conversations with President Roosevelt.

M. Litvinoff expects to sail from Le Havre, France, or Southampton, England, Thursday on the liner Manhattan.

The doughty little commissar of foreign affairs, whose trip to America will cap a year of diplomatic successes in Europe, flatly refused to make a statement to American newspaper correspondents before he departs.

Interviews Refused.

M. Litvinoff conveyed his refusal through the press section of the foreign office, which explained it was felt advisable here not to discuss the subject publicly.

General opinion in the Soviet, howver, seems to indicate that formal diplomatic recognition is a foregone conclusion, barring some unforeseen and serious disagreement, else President Roosevelt never would have initiated the discussions.

A sign of the assurance with which a Soviet-American rapprochement is regarded was the rise in value here of the American dollar. On the day before the exchange of messages between President Roosevelt and President Kalinin was made public.

The price of the dollar was 1 rouble, 24 kopeks. Overnight it rose to 1 rouble, 37 kopeks, as compared with a parity of a 1 rouble, 94 kopeks.

Ready to Meet Demands.

It was regarded here as beyond doubt that M. Litvinoff will be prepared to give President Roosevelt whatever assurances and guarantees the American Executive requires for recognition.

Soviet officialdom has wanted American recognition too long and has been disappointed too many times to fail to meet reasonable demands from Washington.

With regard to debts, it is considered probable that Litvinoff may propose a loan or long-term credit arrangement, in return for which some basis for settlement may be reached on the debts to the United States incurred by the czarist regime and repudiated after the revolution.

It is suggested that nationalized American property in Russia may be treated on somewhat the same basis, in which case the envoy may raise the question of Soviet counter-claims on the United States for her part in the revolutionary intervention.

Accord on Propaganda.

The question of Communist propaganda is considered here as one of the most easily disposed of in the whole category. Its treatment would be based on the precedent followed in Soviet recognition treaties with other countries, such as England, Japan, France and Italy.

Paris, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—The Soviet Embassy in Paris, complying with a request from Foreign Commissar Litvinoff, has temporarily reserved passage for him and his party aboard several liners, it was revealed today.

Reservations were made on the Ile de France, sailing Wednesday; the Manhattan, sailing Thursday; and the Bremen and Berengaria, sailing November 1.

London Hails Move.

London, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—The move toward Russo-American diplomatic accord was hailed in the press here today as a tremendous force for peace.

The Sunday Observer, commenting on these developments, said:

"This move means the past is buried and the future is welcomed. In the present circumstances, Moscow holds the key position. Recent conciliation between Russia and Poland, Russia and France and now Russia and the United States is an important thing in high diplomacy."

Americans in Russia Approve U. S. Move

Moscow, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—A group of American business men today cabled President Roosevelt their gratification at the move toward recognition of Russia.

They include representatives of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce, Otis Elevator Co. and Wright Airplane Corporation.

NRA Survey Would Sound Trade Costs

Economic Division Plan Requires Wealth of Information.

(Associated Press.)

The wealth of data which NRA wants for economic planning and code enforcement is indicated in a report of the economic division, suggesting that information be required on details covering almost all business and industrial operations.

Regarded as especially significant by trade executives because some of them are concerned with the costs of obtaining the information, the report suggests ten different forms for reporting statistical data. The forms ask intimate figures on business operation and require much data that never has been correlated in a general way before.

While the immediate purpose of obtaining the information is to aid in the policing of codes, a deeper purpose is the search for accurate data for economic planning.

Wage Data Asked.

The wide extent of the statistics sought indicates, some economists believe, the long term intentions of NRA.

Inquiry No. 1, as the forms are designated, asks the number of employes, total man-hours and total pay roll. It classifies male and female workers as to whether they are learners, privileged employes, or regular employes, in factory, auxiliary departments and office sections.

No. 2 asks the distribution of employes according to rates and hours. For the same classifications as in No. 1, it asks the number of employes who worked a specified number of hours for a specifid rate of pay. For instance—"How many employes worked from 20 to 29.9 hours and received 30 to 34.9 cents an hour?" There are 8 hourly divisions and 10 wage rates divisions.

Inquiry No. 3 breaks down the figures to show the number of male and female workers.

Output Figures Sought.

Inquiry No. 4 requests elaborate price information, including prices of principal raw materials and finished products from manufacturers, through all intermediaries, to consumers. Reasons for price changes also are sought.

Inquiries No. 5 and No. 6 ask information on production, stocks, orders and shipments, and inquiry No.

"Dry" District Faces Battle After Repeal

Wets and Drys Prepare for Clash on Volstead Act Disposal.

With the ruling of Attorney General Cummings that the Volstead act remains effective here following repeal of the eighteenth amendment, Washington wets and drys prepared yesterday for what was expected to prove an exciting and disputatious—not to say chaotic—period next December, between the ratification of the twenty-first amendment and the opening of Congress.

When the tide of repeal rolls its last needed mile on December 5, the District of Columbia, beneath a blotter of legal technicalities, will remain one of the few dry spots in the United States.

The Attorney General decided, after many days of deliberation, that:

1. The Volstead act, passed by Congress to enforce the eighteenth amendment, becomes unconstitutional throughout the States the moment the amendment is repealed.

Law Remains Here.

2. In the District, however, where Congress alone can make the local laws, the Volstead act continues to apply until specifically repealed by both Houses.

In other words, with repeal of the eighteenth amendment, each State will be free to make its own liquor-control laws. Washington must continue to abide by the law passed for the District by Congress, which means there can be no selling, possessing or transporting of intoxicating beverages here.

District wets, therefore, prepared yesterday to write a repealer into the liquor control law which the Senate District Committee, healed by Senator King, will submit to Congress early in January. This repealer will abolish the Volstead Act, just as one written into the local beer bill earlier this year disposed of the Sheppard law.

District drys, some of whom were frankly surprised and pleased by Attorney General Cummings' decision, will seek to prevent inclusion of such a repealer in the District liquor control bill. They admit they have slight hope of success, but the move is in accordance with the policy upon which such dry organizations as the Anti-Saloon League, the W. C. T. U., and the Interna-

Priest Quits Church Service To Help Save Child in Fire

New York, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—A Long Island priest quietly left his altar during celebration of mass today to assist in the rescue of a 4-year-old child, trapped inside a burning house.

Father John Kelly was nearing the end of mass when he saw a man frantically turning in a fire alarm at a box near the church. Without disturbing his congregation, Father Kelly walked down the aisle and joined Walter de Weil at the nearby home of John Connors, a real estate salesman.

Father Kelly and De Weil broke the lock on a cellar door and crawled on hands and knees through the smoke-filled cellar. They heard the child crying upstairs but were blocked by flames. When they emerged from the cellar, Father Kelly had been burned on the face and hands while De Weil's clothing was afire.

Connors, who, with his wife, had been attending the mass, reached the house at this point, made his way to the living room and carried his unconscious son, Lawrence, to the street. The child had been burned severely on the legs and was suffering from asphyxiation. He and his father were taken to a hospital.

Police Auto, Coupe Collide; Two Killed

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 22 (AP).—Two persons were killed today in the collision of a Dallas police squad car, driven by Capt. A. T. Deere, with a light coupe. The victims were Herbert Lavon Stewart, 30, and Thelma McCulloch, 26.

Capt. Deere and Patrolman George T. Cox, who was riding with Deere, escaped injury.

Devaluation of Dollar Promised in Radio Address.

U. S. Cash Awaits Requests, He Says

"Chiselers" Assailed as Executive Outlines Recovery Strides.

By Elliott Thurston.

In the most important declaration of monetary policy since he took office, President Roosevelt explicitly committed himself last night to a managed currency through fixing gold prices.

In a radio broadcast to the Nation, he announced that he will authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy newly mined gold in the United States at prices to be fixed from time to time by the Secretary of the Treasury and himself.

"This is a policy and not an expedient," he declared. "It is not to be used merely to offset a temporary fall in prices. We are thus continuing to move toward a managed currency."

On Inflationary Path.

With this declaration, prompted by the growing unrest, especially in the West, and intended to give a new inflationary lift to stock and commodity prices, the President definitely threw overboard immediate dollar stabilization and embarked upon the inflationary path of manipulated gold prices.

Through this machinery, he pledged himself to a higher commodity level.

He did not reveal what price the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would pay for gold. The Committee for the Nation, which has been hammering at him to adopt compensated dollar theory, importuned him in its latest appeal last Friday either to buy gold "on a rising scale, beginning at $34 an ounce, until the dollar is brought back to the average purchasing power it possessed in 1926," or to start off buying gold at $41.34 an ounce as "the equivalent to cutting the gold content of the dollar by the 50 per cent maximum authorized by the Thomas amendment." Saturday's gold price at the Treasury was $29.01 an ounce.

"Commodity Dollar" Near.

In any event, the President appears now to be in favor of something close to the commodity dollar long advocated by such of his advisers as Prof. George F. Warren, of Cornell, and Prof. James Harvey Rogers, of Yale.

He definitely recommitted himself last night to restoration of a price level approximating that of 1926, when the commodity price index was about 100 against the 70 of the present time. This means he intends to manipulate dollar value through control of gold until the dollar is reduced to its 1926 purchasing size.

He accused those who have urged prompt dollar stability of "putting the cart before the horse."

"It is the Government's policy to retsore the price level first," he declared. "I would not know, and no one else could tell, just what the permanent valuation of the dollar will be. To guess at a permanent gold valuation now would certainly require later changes caused by later facts.

Stability His Goal.

"When we have restored the price level, we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change its purchasing and debt paying power during the succeeding generation."

Then he stressed the reasons why he was undertaking to "control the gold value of our own dollar at home."

"Our dollar," he said, "is now altogether too greatly influenced by the accidents of international trade, by the internal policies of other nations and by political disturbance in other continents. Therefore, the United States must

Gold Purchase Decision Seen As Mine Boom

Industry Leaders Receive Roosevelt's Plan With Favor.

San Francisco, Oct. 22 (AP).—President Roosevelt's gold policy announced in Washington tonight was greeted with geenral favor by officials and others in touch with the mining industry in the West.

Comment ranged from outright predictions of mining booms to more cautious assertions that a test of the Government gold market policy should be awaited. The consensus was that a price in excess of the old domestic figure of $20.67 must be assured if the Treasury is to benefit.

Mark A. Skinner, superintendent of the mint at Denver, forecast "the greatest revival of mining in this region in 20 to 25 years."

Judgment Reserved.

Jesse F. McDonald, president of the Colorado Metal Mining Association, said a Government market "probably will help the Western mining industry," adding that judgment should be reserved, however, "until we see the plan in operation."

"The policy is certain to stimulate mining," said Peter J. Haggerty, superintendent of the United States Mint in San Francisco. He said that since the Government recently removed some restrictions and permitted sale of gold in the world market receipts at the mint had greatly increased.

Charles F. Willis, editor of the Arizona Mining Journal, said:

"Mr. Roosevelt's program should stimulate the gold miners of Arizona and other States to quicker action; throw more money into circulation, and relieve the small miner by creating a ready market for his product."

Montanans Hopeful.

Montana mining men expressed belief their industry will improve under the Government market.

"If the country, however, is to be on a true gold basis," said E. A. Probst, in charge of mining operations of Winston Brothers near Helena, "the price must be higher than the old price."

He declared that "if gold were $40 now, the United States Government could liquidate all its currency in gold."

C. R. Brazier, secretary of the Montana Silver Association, said stabilization of the gold situation should indirectly aid silver "and might lead ultimately to the stabilization of both metals."

Nevada mining men were generally hopeful that with the Government in the gold market the price will advance.

Jews Assailed By Hitler's Aid

Darre Calls on Peasants to Vote Full Strength for Chancellor.

Weimar, Germany, Oct. 22 (AP). Walter Darre, Federal administrator of foods, in a speech loaded with antisemitic remarks, urged Thuringian peasants today to turn out in full force to vote for Hitler November 12.

"The German peasants," said Darre, "know Hitler is the only guarantee that the German peasantry will be freed from the system of Jewish trade and Boerse profiteers."

He lauded German peasantry and said "since time immemorial German peasantry has been the antithesis of those Jewish nomads who, in the world's history, never showed themselves creative."

He charged the Jews made the peasants subservient by inculcating in them the desire to make a profit at which they themselves were far superior.

"This profit-making," said Darre, "was the means of befogging the clarity of thinking in economics."

Shooting Embroils Mexican Politics

Mexico City, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Mexico's political difficulties were complicated today following the fatal shooting of Rafael Lara Grajales, revolutionary party leader, by his associate, Capt. Alejandro Palacios.

Palacios later committed suicide. His opposition to Lara Grajales was known, but the outbreak during a political quarrel at Puebla last night came as a surprise. Its repercussion may extend to the highest political circles.

Meanwhile, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Superintendent of Police, and Lieutenant George M. Little, head of the vice squad and directly charged with prohibition enforcement, are studying the problem about to be presented by plenty of legal liquor in Maryland and Virginia and the necessity of keeping it out of Washington.

Arrests here for violation of the Volstead Act have averaged more than 12 a day, 85 a week, 365 a month, for the past five years. The police are not looking forward to any snap, therefore, between December 5, when the rest of the country—except such places as Alaska—goes wet, and the highly problematical date when the next session of Congress gets around to passing a satisfactory liquor control law for the District.

Text of President's Radio Talk

4,000,000 Men Return to Work, Prices Up, He Declares.

Following is the text of President Roosevelt's speech verbatim as broadcast from the White House last night over a Nation-wide radio hookup:

It is three months since I have talked with the people of this country about our national problems; but during this period many things have happened, and I am glad to say that the major part of them have greatly helped the well-being of the average citizen.

Because, in every step which your Government is taking we are thinking in terms of the average of you—in the old words, "the greatest good to the greatest number"—we, as reasonable people, cannot expect to bring definite benefits to every person or to every occupation or business, or industry or agriculture. In the same way no reasonable person can expect that in this short space of time, during which new machinery had to be not only put to work, but first set up, that every locality in every one of the 48 States of the country, could share equally and simultaneously in the trend to better times.

The whole picture, however, the average of the whole territory from coast to coast—the average of the whole population of 120,000,000 people—shows to any person willing to look—facts and action of which you and I can be proud.

4,000,000 Put to Work.

In the early spring of this year there were actually and proportionately more people out of work in this country than in any other nation in the world. Fair estimates showed 12,000,000 to 13,000,000 unemployed last March. Among those there were, of course, several millions who could be classed as normally unemployed—people who worked occasionally when they felt like it, and others who preferred not to work at all. It seems, therefore, fair to say that there were about 10,000,000 of our citizens who earnestly, and in many cases hungrily, were seeking work and could not get it. Of these, in the short space of a few months, I am convinced that at least 4,000,000 have been given employment—or, saying it another way, 40 per cent of those seeking work have found it.

That does not mean, my friends, that I am satisfied, or that you are satisfied that our work is ended. We have a long way to go but we are on the way.

How are we constructing the edifice of recovery—the temple which, when completed, will no longer be a temple of money changers or of beggars, but rather a temple dedicated to and maintained for a greater social justice, a greater welfare for America—the habitation of a sound economic life. We are building, stone by stone, the columns which will support that habitation. Those columns are many in number and though, for a moment the progress of one column may disturb the progress on the pillar next to it, the work on all of them must proceed without letup or hindrance.

C. C. C. Jobs Liked.

We all know that immediate relief for the unemployed was the first essential of such a structure and that is why I speak first of the mact that 300,000 young men have been given employment and are being given employment all through this winter in the Civilian Conservation Corps camps in almost every part of the Nation.

So, too, we have, as you know, expended greater sums in cooperation with States and localities for work relief and home relief than ever before—sums which during the coming winter can not be lessened for the very simple reason that though several million people have gone back to work, the necessities of those who have not yet obtained work is more severe than at this time last year.

Then we come to the relief that is being given to those who are in danger of losing their farms or their homes. New machinery had to be set up for farm credit and for home credit in every one of the 3,100 counties of the United States and every day that passes is saving homes and farms to hundreds of families. I have publicly asked that foreclosures on farms and chattels and on homes be delayed until every mortgagor in the country shall have had full opportunity to take advantage of Federal credit. I make the further request which many of you know has already been made through the great Federal credit organizations that if there is any family in the United States about to lose its home or farm or furniture or about to lose its chattels, that family should telegraph at once either to the Farm Credit Administration or the Home Owners Loan Corporation in Washington requesting their help.

Credit Made Easier.

Two other great agencies are in full swing. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation continues to lend large sums to industry and finance with the definite objective of making easy the extending of credit to industry, commerce and finance.

The program of public works in three months has advanced to this point: Out of a total appropriated for public works of $3,300,000,000, $1,800,000,000 has already been allocated to Federal projects of all kinds, and literally in every part of the United States, and work on these is starting forward. In addition, $300,000,000 have been allocated to public works to be carried out by States, municipalities and private organizations, such as those undertaking slum clearance. The balance of the public works money, nearly all of it intended for State or local projects, waits only on the presentation of proper projects by the States and localities themselves. Washington has the money and is waiting for the proper projects to which to allot it.

Another pillar in the making is the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. I have been amazed by the extraordinary degree of cooperation given to the Government by the cotton farmers in the South, the wheat farmers of the West, the tobacco farmers of the Southeast, and I am confident that the corn-hog farmers of the Middle West will come through in the same magnificent fashion. The problem we seek to solve had been steadily getting worse for 20 years, but during the last six months we have made more rapid progress than any nation has ever made in a like period of time. It is true that in July farm-commodity prices had been pushed up higher than they are today, but that push came, in part, from pure speculation by people who could not tell you the difference between wheat and rye, by people who had never seen cotton growing, by people who did not know that hogs were fed on corn—people who have no real interest in the farmer and his problems.

1933 Prices Up One-Third.

In spite, however, of the speculative reaction from the speculative advance, it seems to be well established that during the course of the year 1933 the farmers of the United States will receive 33 per cent more dollars for what they have produced than they received in the year 1932. Put in another way, they will receive $400 in 1933, where they received $300 the year before. That, remember, is for the average of the country, for I have reports that while some sections show high gains, others are not any better off than they were a year ago. This applies among the major products, especially to cattle raising and the dairy industry. We are going after those problems as fast as we can.

I do not hesitate to say in the simplest, clearest language of which I am capable, that although the prices of many products of the farm have gone up and although many farm families are better off than the were last year, I am not satisfied either with the amount or the extent of the rise, and that it is definitely a part of our policy to increase the rise and to extend it to those products which have as yet felt no benefit. If we can not do this one way, we will do it another. Do it, we will.

Standing beside the pillar of the farm—the A. A. A.—is the pillar of industry—the NRA. Its object is to put industry and business workers into employment and to increase their purchasing power through increased wages.

Child Labor Abolished.

It has abolished child labor. It has eliminated the sweat shop. It has ended 60 cents a week, paid in some mills, and 80 cents a week paid in some mines. The measure of the growth of this pillar lies in the total figures of reemployment which I have already given you and in the fact that reemployment is continuing and not stopping. The secret of NRA is cooperation. That cooperation has been given voluntarily through the signing of the blanket codes and through the signing of specific codes which already include all of the greater industries of the Nation.

In the vast majority of cases, in the vast majority of localities—the NRA has been given support in unstinted measure. We know that there are "chislers." At the bottom of every case of criticism and obstruction we have found some selfish interest, some private ax to grind.

Ninety per cent of complaints come from misconception or misunderstanding. For example, it has been said that NRA has failed to raise the price of wheat and corn and hogs; that NRA has not loaned enough money for local public works. Of course, NRA has nothing whatsoever to do with the price of farm products, nor with public works. It has to do only with industrial organization for economic planning to wipe out unfair practices and to create reemployment and wage envelopes. Even in the field of business and industry, NRA does not apply to the rural committees or to towns of under 2,500 population, except insofar as those towns contain factories or chain stores which come under a specific code.

It is also true that among the "chiselers" to whom I have referred, there are not only the big "chiselers," but also petty "chiselers" who seek to make undue profit on untrue statements. And we are checking on them as fast as we can install machinery.

Let me cite to you the example of the salesman in a store in a large Eastern city who tried to justify the increase in the price of a cotton shirt from $1.50 to $2.50 by saying to the customer that it was due to the cotton processing tax. Actually in that shirt there was about one pound of cotton and the processing tax amounted to 4¼ cents on that pound of cotton.

Praise for Spenders.

At this point it is only fair that I should give credit to the 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 people who live in the cities and larger towns of the Nation for their understanding and their willingness to go along with the payment of even these small processing taxes, though they know full well that the proportion of the processing taxes on cotton goods and on food products paid for by city dwellers goes 100 per cent towards increasing the agricultural income of the farm dwellers of the land.

The last pillar of which I speak is that of the money of the country in the banks of the country. There are two simple facts.

First, the Federal Government is about to spend $1,000,000,000 as an immediate loan on the frozen or nonliquid assets of all banks closed since January 1, 1933, giving a liberal appraisal to those assets. This money will be in the hands of the depositors as quickly as it is humanly possible to get it out.

Secondly, the Government Bank Deposit Insurance on all accounts up to $2,500 goes into effect on January 1. We are now engaged in seeing to it that on or before that date the banking capital structure will be built up by the Government to the point that the banks will be in sound condition when the insurance goes into effect.

Price Stability Sought.

Finally, I repeat what I have said on many occasions, that ever since last March the definite policy of the Government has been to restore commodity price levels. The object has been the attainment of such a level as will enable agriculture and industry once more to give work to the unemployed. It has been to make possible the payment of public and private debts more nearly at the price level at which they were incurred. It has been gradually to restore a balance in the price structure so that farmers may exchange their products for the products of industry on a fairer exchange basis. It has been, and is also, the purpose to prevent prices from rising beyond the point necessary to attain these ends. The permanent welfare and security of every class of our people ultimately depends on our attainment of these purposes.

Obviously, and because hundreds of different kinds of crops and industrial occupations in the huge territory that makes up this nation are involved, we can not reach the goal in only a few months. We may take one year or two years or three years.

No one who considers the plain facts of our situation believes that commodity prices, especially agricultural prices, are high enough yet.

Some people are putting the cart before the horse. They want a permanent revaluation of the dollar first. It is the Government's policy to restore the price level first. I would not know, and no one else could tell, just what the permanent valuation of the dollar will be. To guess at a permanent gold valuation now would certainly require later changes caused by later facts.

When we have restored the price level, we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change its purchasing and debt-paying power during the succeeding generation. I said that in my message to the American delegation in London last July. And I say it now once more.

New Measures Hinted.

Because of conditions in this country, and because of events beyond our control in other parts of the world, it becomes increasingly important from time to time to develop and apply measures to control the gold value of our own dollar at home.

Our dollar is now altogether too greatly influenced by the accidents of international trade, by the internal policies of other nations and by political disturbance in other continents. Therefore the United States must take firmly in its own hands the control of the gold value of our dollar. This is necessary in order to prevent dollar disturbances from swinging us away from our ultimate goal, namely, the continued recovery of our commodity prices.

As a further effective means to this end, I am going to establish a Government market for gold in the United States. Therefore, under the clearly defined authority of existing law, I am authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy gold newly mined in the United States at prices to be determined from time to time after consulation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the President. Whenever necessary to the end in view, we shall also buy or sell gold in the world market.

My aim in taking this step is to establish and maintain continuous control.

This is a policy and not an expedient.

Permanency is Aim.

It is not to be used merely to offset a temporary fall in prices. We are thus continuing to move toward a managed currency.

You will recall the dire predictions made last spring by those who did not agree with our common policies of raising prices by direct means. What actually happened stood out in sharp contrast with those predictions. Government credit is high, prices have risen in part. Doubtless prophets of evil still exist in our midst. But Government credit will be maintained and a sound currency will accompany a rise in the American commodity price level.

I have told you tonight the story of our steady but sure work in building our common recovery. In my promises to you both before and after March 4, I made two things plain: First, that I pledged no miracles and, second, that I would do my best.

I thank you for your patience and your faith. Our troubles will not be over tomorrow, but we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction.

House Body Opens Tax Revision Study

Hill said the survey would be confined to administrative features. Rates are to be laid aside until the full committee opens hearings in December. In view of strong opposition in the House, the question of a general sales tax is not to be considered.

Information received by the Senate committee investigating the stock market pertaining to avoidance of income tax payments by financiers through consolidations and reorganizations of corporations is expected to help guide the committee in making its recommendations.

Hill pointed out that until the last three years individual and corporate income taxes ordinarily supplied more than half the Treasury's total receipts. In 1932, however, they dropped to $1,057,000,000, compared with $1,860,000,000 in 1931.

Despite the increased income levies in the so-called $1,000,000,000 revenue bill of 1932, reports from the Treasury indicate that returns from income levies are little more than those on the 1932 rates.

take firmly in its own hands the control of the gold value of our dollar. This is necessary in order to prevent dollar disturbances from swinging us away from our ultimate goal, namely, the continued recovery of commodity prices."

Reviews His Program.

This announcement was the climax of a speech that rapidly, succinctly ranged over the entire panorama of the administration recovery program, including the aims of the NRA, the AAA, the RFC, the CCC, easy credit policy, freeing of deposits in closed banks, deposit insurance and, above all, the struggle to raise farm prices.

"Our troubles will not be over tomorrow," he cautioned his radio audience, "but we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction."

Can the price level be managed through Government-fixing of gold prices while gold remains locked up? On that point the Committee for the Nation and various presidential advisers have long been split. One school declares that nothing will happen as long as the Government has all the gold under lock and key.

New Export Ban Seen.

Newly-mined gold is the only free gold in the country. Recently the Treasury permitted it to be exported. That permission probably will either be rescinded now or the RFC price will be kept above the world level. About $50,000,000 of gold is mined in the United States each year. Our impounded monetary gold stocks are $4,324,000,000.

Will fixing the price of about 1 per cent of this captive gold influence the entire price level? Advocates of the so-called compensated gold dollar or commodity dollar, as Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale, has called it, all contemplates release of gold in some form or other.

"The Government's gold supply," according to Prof. Warren's scheme, "would be kept in gold bars. The actual circulation would be the same as that present, i. e., paper dollars and small coins. All the currency would be exchangeable for gold on demand * * * but the amount of gold that a dollar would exchange for would vary with the price level, that is, the price of gold would be allowed to vary with its value just as the price of wheat varies with its value."

Moves for "Rubber Dollar."

Mr. Roosevelt is moving toward some such "rubber dollar," as its foes have dubbed it. He said nothing last night, however, to indicate freeing of gold, except that "whenever necessary to the end in view, we shall also buy or sell gold in the world market." Whether this means gold will be released to banks, for instance, to settle international balances, remains to be seen.

In any case, critics of the managed dollar contend that as long as gold remains impounded it is a sterile action to vary its theoretical value in dollars, as the newly announced program contemplates.

During the London conference, the President revealed his preoccupation with the idea of the commodity dollar, though he did not commit himself to it. He veered away from it definitely later and seemed for a time favorable to another attempt to stabilize so that now hesitant private capital would come on the market and flow into long-term enterprise, notably in the heavy construction industries.

Farm Strike Spurs Action.

The recent decline of prices, followed by the farm revolt in the West, inclined the President back toward the manipulated gold dollar idea, which has been a goal or at least a symbol of the Western inflationists, joined by certain Eastern groups such as the Committee for the Nation.

Last night's all-important radio address, seeking primarily to placate the turbulent farm belt, was the first explicit avowal of the administration's intention of managing the dollar artificially, as an integral part of a planned domestic economy.

Explaining and defending the NRA, the President emphasized that it has "nothing whatsoever to do with the price of farm products, nor with public works," but that it has "to do only with industrial organization for economic planning to wipe out unfair practices and to create reemployment."

Faces Critical Situation.

As on the night in March when he went on the air to tell the country of banking plans at an hour of great crisis, Mr. Roosevelt was facing a critical situation when he went before the microphone in the White House last night to explain in characteristically simple language what the Government is trying to do and what it means to do.

His resolve to give direct aid to the distressed was first sounded in telling "any family in the United States about to lose its home or about to lose its chattels" to "telegraph at once either to the Farm Credit Administration or the Home Owners Loan Corporation in Washington requesting their help."

Again, his determination to increase prices and extend the increase "to those products which have as yet felt no benefit" was accompanied by the declaration that "if we can not do this one way we will do it another."

"Do it, we will," he declared.

Proud of Record.

The highly important announcements of monetary policy were reserved for the end of the address. It was another, a second radio report to the country. As he surveyed what has been done so far, he held that the whole picture is one "of which you and I can be proud." He contrasted conditions, especially unemployment, now with the worse conditions of March, and said 4,000,000 idle have been put back to work.

"That does not mean, my friends, that I am satisfied," he said, "or that our work is ended. We have a long way to go, but we are on the way."

Then, briefly, simply, he explained about the Civilian Conservation Corps, relief for farm and home owners, the R. F. C., public works, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, declaring the farmer in 1933 will get 33 per cent more dollars for his products than in 1932. He defended the R. F. C. and scored "not only the big 'chiselers,' but also the petty 'chiselers.'"

Explains Bank Program.

He told of the billion dollars to be loaned on frozen or nonliquid assets of closed banks so that money may be put into the hands of depositors quickly. He outlined the deposit insurance plan and the intention to put banks in sound condition when the insurance takes effect.

Then he reached monetary problems, reiterating his purpose to "restore commodity price levels" to such a point as will "make possible the payment of public and private debts more nearly at the price level at which they were incurred."

That was the prelude to the definite declaration for a currency managed by Government fixing of gold prices.

This was the President's third major address to the country since inauguration.

Dollar Action Uncertain.

Whether the Government means to attempt management of the dollar in international exchange was not made clear in the outline of monetary policy which Mr. Roosevelt gave. Alongside his plan for managing the dollar, he set the pledge: "But Government credit will be maintained and a sound currency will accompany a rise in the American commodity price level."

"I have told you tonight," he concluded, "the story of our steady but sure work in building our common recovery. In my promises to you both before and after March 4, I made two things plain: First, that I pledged no miracles and, second, that I would do my best."

7 concerns raw materials and fuel used and on hand.

Inquiry No. 8 asks data on machine operations, and is regarded as particularly useful as indicating the extent to which an industry is overexpanded. Inquiry No. 9 asks an inventory of machinery for the same general purpose.

Inquiry No. 10 involves a quarterly financial and cost report for code members whose codes set up costs as a basis of determining minimum prices.

Most of these forms are directed at the manufacturing industry, but similar information probably will be sought from all economic sections.

Leaders Tell Views on Talk By Roosevelt

Farm Viewpoint Revealed in Comment of Borah Western Officials.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt's speech from the farm viewpoint, as disclosed in comment from Western leaders last night:

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, saw in the speech a promise of "a sincere and effective expansion of the currency."

"The President plainly declares he is not satisfied with the farm price level, and that he is going to raise it, and he warns the country that if he can not raise it in one way he will raise it in another," he said.

"With this statement, we of the West heartily agree. As I see it, this means controlled inflation—a sincere and effective expansion of the currency, which could include the supply of our domestic production of silver.

"It must not be forgotten that the purchasing power of the farmer has not been measurably increased and it must not be forgotten that unless that purchasing power is increased, the whole structure of the NRA must fall.

Farmer Marking Time.

"It is a situation which can not be placated by loans or postponements of foreclosures. The farmer is marking time in the matter of buying awaiting a return of the price level and awaiting adjustment of the disparity between industrial and farm prices."

Ralph Synder, president of the Kansas Farm Bureau and chairman of the national committee of farm organizations—"Whether the action will be quick enough to save as many products as could be saved is problematical. It is my opinion the issue of Federal Treasury notes for the purpose of taking up a definite amount of maturing obligations would result in much quicker recovery."

Frank H. Cooney, governor of Montana—"I believe everything will work out all right for the farmer if he stays with the President."

Senator Charles L. McNary (Republican), Oregon, at his home near Salem—I refuse to comment on any speech of the President at any time or at any place. I am too busy here sawing wood."

William M. Jardine, former Secretary of Agriculture—"To hear the President speak so hopefully can not help but inspire confidence. It is important to settle the value of the dollar and of exchange so business can proceed. If the President can aid the beef producer he will be performing a great service—almost a miracle.

Norris Delays Comment.

Other Midwestern leaders showed a disposition to study the address fully before commenting upon it. Senator George W. Norris, independent Republican of Nebraska, at his home at McCook, said he might have a statement to give out tomorrow.

Gov. Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska, declined to comment, saying he had heard only a portion of the address.

Leo Crowley, advisor of Gov. A. G. Schmedeman, of Wisconsin, at Madison, said: "As far as the banking program is concerned, if the assets in which loans are to be made are valued on a reasonable basis, it will be very helpful in rural communities."

Canadian Hails Inflation.

Toronto, Oct. 22 (AP).—"If Mr. Roosevelt is going in for inflation—and I would judge his pronouncement to mean that," said Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Ontario treasurer, tonight, "the effect on Ontario certainly will not be an adverse one.

"A managed currency, or inflation, should have the effect of bringing the New York dollar down with reference to the Canadian dollar and making it easier for Ontario to meet its commitments in New York."

Plot to Kill Peru President Balked

Eight Arrested in Effort to Explode Bomb.

Lima Peru, Oct. 22 (AP).—Government authorities announced officially today that plotters had attempted to kill President Oscar Benavides with a bomb.

The announcement said eight persons were arrested as authors of the plot which was uncovered when they tried to explode the bomb in a highway near Lima.

Gen. Oscar Benavides was chosen president of Peru last May immediately after the assassination of President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, the army colonel who made himself president following overthrow of President Leguia in 1931.

Sheriff's Deputy Jailed in Killing

Shoots One of Mob Trying to Free Prisoners.

A deputy sheriff was held for investigation in Marlboro jail last night after killing one of a group who attempted to mob him after he had disrupted a game of cards in the rear of the Highland Park Methodist Church in nearby Maryland.

Joe Nevitt, 63, colored, of Highland Park, was shot to death after a half dozen men tried to wrest three of their companions from Deputy Sheriff Thomas Bird, colored, in front of the church, police said. Bird had arrested Joe Proctor, Frank Spriggs, and William Washington, all colored, of Highland Park, for gambling and disorderly conduct.

Nevitt was shot five times. An inquest is scheduled for November 8 before Justice of Peace John Downing.

Daladier Wins Delay in Vote On Budget Bill

Cabinet Crisis Deferred for Day in Gold Loss Fear.

Paris, Oct. 22 (AP).—The fate of the French cabinet was postponed at least another day by an agreement of the Chamber of Deputies to adjourn today.

Premier Daladier's revelation that gold already is flowing from the Bank of France and his warning that inflation threatens the country gained the delay.

The premier indicated he expected an overthrow by saying he had not asked a night session of the chamber because President Lebrun was absent from Paris. Daladier said he stood firmly on a program which would stand or fall on the complete balance of the budget.

Socialists Hesitate.

The Socialists hesitated to overthrow the government until the last hope for a compromise was exhausted and adjournment of the chamber came after a four-hour session.

The franc's jeopardy was emphasized by Daladier yesterday evening when he told the radical Socialists: "Only yesterday 200,000,000 gold francs were withdrawn from the Bank of France."

He said foreigners were already speculating against the franc.

The Government fears a speculative raid on the franc, Georges Bonnet, minister of finance, intimated.

Bonnet said it was an exaggeration to assert that the fall of the dollar caused the treasury's troubles, but added:

"Suppose the dollar and the pound are stabilized soon. There would be no doubt what would happen if the French budget were unbalanced. The pound and the dollar then would appear stable compared with the franc and the foreign capital that sought refuge here would cross the frontier.

Demands Sound Finances.

"In any case the stabilization of these monies will cause us difficulty. We will succeed only if our finances are sound."

Lucien Lamoureux, minister of the budget, also spoke for the government and Paul Reynaud for the opposition.

Value of Minerals Effects Land Loan

Ruling by Farm Credit Officials Explained.

(Associated Press.)

The Farm Credit Administration yesterday announced the value of minerals on farm property and effect they might have on its worth would be weighed in making bank commissioner's loans.

The administration explained, in announcing regulations covering mineral possibilities, that its loans were based on the agricultural value of the land involved, adding:

"The result of mining operations, however, is such that the agricultural value of the surface land may seriously be impaired or even destroyed by the sinking of shafts, drilling of wells and similar projects.

"In cases where there are no substantial indications from geological reports, actual development or other available information that there will be mineral operations, the banks are instructed to make loans provided the applicant and his security are otherwise eligible."

Aged Bachelor Wills His Estate To Child Friends

Oklahoma City, Oct. 22 (AP).—Two little girls who brightened the lonely hours of Edwin F. Statton, 82-year-old bachelor farmer, have been given a life interest in his estate.

Statton, who was killed by a train last week, left title to his farm to 10-year-old Elizabeth Ellen Carlson, daughter of a neighbor, and two Oklahoma City lots to Catherine Suits, 12, daughter of his attorney.

After the girls' death, the property will go to the Camp Fire Girls and to Oklahoma City for park purposes.

Statton became attached to Elizabeth Ellen during visits to the Carlson home. Little Miss Suits made the acquaintance of the elderly bachelor when she accompanied her father, Fred Suits, to his farm.

Troops Rushed Against Cuban Rebel Bands

Fall of Grau San Martin Regime Feared as Outbreaks Grow.

Havana, Oct. 22 (AP).—A trainload of troops moved into the interior last midnight, emphasizing the growing concern of President Ramon Grau San Martin over grave unrest in Cuba.

The strike of railway employes that effectively tied up Havana-Santiago rail traffic, an army mutiny at Santiago and bands of rebels scattered throughout the thinly settled interior were the chief worries besetting the president and his army commander, Col. Fulgencio Batista.

Meanwhile, in Havana the ring of Grau San Martin's political enemies drew ever closer about his six weeks' old regime, and there were many who predicted the slightly supported government would topple ere the week was out.

A. B. C. Drops Support.

The A. B. C., radical, militant, well-armed organization that aided greatly in boosting the Havana university professor to power, had formally withdrawn its support.

Students—his chief remaining civil support—were bickering among themselves over questions of policy in connection with the reopening of Havana University next month.

The abortive army mutiny at Santiago, caused when Batista sent officers in his confidence to take over command of the Oriente Province Garrison, tended to strengthen the growing belief that inner strife racks Batista's "enlisted man's army."

Tracks Dynamited.

United Railway employes on the Matanzas-Cardenas and Santa Clara division went on strike. Derailed two trains with dynamite and stopped all traffic down the island by tearing up rails.

Bread makers, tobacco workers milk distributors and other unionized workers continued on strike.

Soldiers sought today to force recognition of the Grau San Martin regime.

"We solicit inter-American aid to demand that the United States recognize our sovereignty as an act of justice."

The manifesto, signed by the "Latin-American associations," highly praised the government of President Grau San Martin.

Most of the other Latin-American governments have withheld recognition, pending Washington's action.

Justice of Peace Gets Ticket For Illegal Parking of Plane

Kansas City, Oct. 22 (AP).—Casimir John Joseph Welch, justice of the peace, got two tickets when he went to Manhattan, Kans., to attend the Nebraska-Kansas State football game.

One was for admittance to the stadium. The other was for illegal parking of his airplane, which was landed on a golf course.

"After the game we walked back the 3½ miles to the golf course and when I got there I found a ticket on it," Welch said.

"It stated: 'You are hereby forbidden to move this plane.'

"My feet were so sore from walking that I just had to get into the cabin and sit down and when I did somebody started the plane and, before I realized what was happening we were up in the air, headed for Kansas City. But I'm much obliged to some golf club in Manhattan."

Deposit Board Orders Set-Up To Thaw Loans

Governor of Federal Reserve to Direct Procedure.

(Associated Press.)

Asserting its primary purpose is to place money in the hands of depositors with the least possible delay, the deposit liquidation board yesterday addressed letters to the governors of the Federal Reserve banks, outlining procedure.

The 12 governors are to serve as chairmen of special advisory and appraisal committees for their particular Federal Reserve districts.

"It is contemplated," said the letter, "that the district chairmen will appoint local appraisal committees composed of experienced bankers, business men and farmers throughout their districts, to be located where they can most efficiently and expeditiously contact the closed banks.

"These committees will be fully qualified to appraise intelligently and constructively local securities in closed banks, having in mind the conditions prevailing in the community and the formula of a sound and fair valuation of assets based on an orderly liquidation over a period of years. These local committees will receive from their district chairman for initial attention the latest appraisals by the receiver, liquidator, National examiners, State examiners, as may pertain to the cases before them.

"In those cases where the appraisal reports of the supervisory authority or receiver are not sufficiently current, or, in your opinion, do not reflect a fair valuation based on an orderly liquidation over a period of years, you necessarily will have a new appraisal made of the assets.

Banker May Become Danzig Commissioner

Geneva, Oct. 22 (AP).—Jerome Davis Greene, New York banker, best known among Harvard men as secretary to former President Eliot and as an overseer of the university, is being considered for the delicate post of high commissioner to the Free City of Danzig.

Leader Defines Strikers' Goal Of Farm Costs

Seek 5 Per Cent Return on Investment, Says E. E. Kennedy.

Des Moines, Oct. 22 (AP).—E. E. Kennedy, secretary of the National Farmers Union, today gave his definition of what constitutes "cost of production," the point of issue in the national farm strike.

Farm prices high enough to assure the farm owner a 5 per cent return on his real estate, interest and depreciation costs for his equipment, and a monthly salary of $103.46, is the answer, said Mr. Kennedy.

Basing his computations on operating costs for a 158-acre Iowa farm, which he termed average, Kennedy figures the income for such a farm should be $4,487.02 to attain cost of production.

His price schedule for farm products on this basis is:

Ninty-three cents a bushel for corn, $1.37 for wheat, 50 cents for oats, 74 cents for barley, 78 cents for rye, $20.04 for clover seed, $3.17 for timothy seed, $17.93 a ton for tame hay, 11.42 a hundredweight for hogs, $13.50 for veal, $12.68 for lambs, 24 cents a pound for chickens and 40 cents a pound for wool.

For his milk, Kennedy said, the farmer should receive $2.74 a hundredweight, 62 cents a pound for butterfat, and 35 cents for eggs.

The price schedule was figured for 1930, Kennedy said, the latest year for which all data was available on a comparable basis. Since that time, he added, farm income has declined more than 50 per cent from the five-year average of 1926-30, while production costs dropped only 10 per cent.

2 Labor Groups Aid Farm Strike

out the agricultural strike which Reno and his holiday associates effectuated at noon Saturday.

Reno, in announcing two labor federations had pledged their support, expressed pleasure with the progress of the farm holiday and made ready to leave for Chicago for a conference with the leader of a third labor group.

From D. R. Donovan, of Chicago, National secretary of the Continental Congress of Workers and Farmers, came a letter assuring Reno that the congress "can be depended upon to give full support to the Farmers Holiday Association in its entirely justified demands."

Invites Industry's Aid.

George A. Shaffer, of Denver, chairman of the executive committee of the Technocratic Federation of the World for Industrial Democracy, wired that "the 5,000,000 members of our federation are squarely behind you."

Reno said he would confer tomorrow with A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

"We are ready and happy to meet with labor and business at their invitation," Reno asserted.

Nationally, attention centered tonight on a message on the farm situation from President Roosevelt.

Announcement that the Farm Credit Administration in Washington had established farm debt conciliation committees in 16 States evoked some comment.

The committees, named by State governors, to assist in bringing about voluntary compromises between farmer and creditor, are similar to councils of defense organized by the Holiday Association.

Many Councils Function.

In Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota many of the holiday councils have been functioning the past year. Continuation of these councils has been urged by Reno as an important step in the farm strike.

From Govs. Olsen of Minnesota, Bryan of Nebraska and Herring of Iowa have come expressions of sympathy for the strikers.

Gov. Herring announced that "matters arising from the economic emergency" will be considered at a special Iowa legislative session, to convene November 6.

E. E. Kennedy, secretary of the National Farmers' Union, yesterday charged that the outcome of President Roosevelt's economic recovery program has been simply a continuation of policies of the Hoover administration.

In a letter to the President, Kennedy quoted from what he said were Mr. Roosevelt's campaign statements, proposing recovery through restoration of farm purchasing power.

Winkler's Widow Attempts Suicide

Mate of Slain Gangster Saved From Gas Death.

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Georgette Winkler, widow of the slain gangster, Gus Winkler, was found unconscious tonight in her gas-filled apartment. Police described it as an attempt at suicide.

Police revealed tonight that Albert Bregar, 34, regarded by them as Winkler's "trigger man," has been missing since August 18.

Detectives declared they were convinced Bregar had been spirited away and murdered to clear the way for the slaying of Winkler.

Plans are being made for the collection of new garments until November 21, when they will be displayed at Jelleff's Little Theater. The following day they will be distributed to needy persons.

League Sees Greatest War Peril in East

Russia and Japan Offer Most Serious Problem, View of Experts.

Geneva Oct. 22 (AP).—Despite the crisis caused by Germany's sensational retreat from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference, opinion within the league finds the immediate international danger point not in Europe, but in the Far East.

Russia has been revealed to Geneva as steadfastly building up a series of nonaggression pacts and commercial agreements culminating with approach toward recognition by the United States, by which she emerges from her isolation as a powerful nation with the greatest population of all.

International circles view the European war scare as at least temporarily abated and with a more dangerous situation in Asia between Russia and Japan. Russia is deemed to be taking preventive measures against war by getting on good terms with all her neighbors and now with the United States.

It is forecast that by exercise of patience on the part of others, Germany will gradually resume international collaboration—even perhaps return to the league.

The prevaling judgment is that the disarmament conference should be adjourned for a period to permit the calming of spirits, and that meantime efforts should be concentrated on securing a settlement of grave economic problems.

The view persists that a Franco-German economic accord would smooth the path to a later agreement on disarmament.

McCann Jailed In Wife Killing

Police Say He Confesses Choking Her Because She Drank Too Much.

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP).—Edward J. McCann, 53, wanted in Detroit for killing his wife, Laurier, 34, on September 1, was arrested here today.

Mrs. Loretta Hickman, McCann's sister-in-law, saw the fugitive on a street and notified police. Officers say McCann confessed and agreed to waive extradition.

Mrs. McCann's body was hacked to bits, and pieces of it were found at various places over the city.

In a signed statement taken by police, McCann said the slaying occurred at the sequel to an argument with his wife over her drinking too much.

Police quoted McCann as saying he went to his home, where he sold liquor, and found his wife drinking. After guests had gone, the argument became more heated and Mrs. McCann threw liquor in his face.

The statement adds that he became enraged, knocked his wife to the floor, and, when she fought back, biting him, he choked her and smothered her with a pillow.

Representative Helps Lay Rum Plant Stone.

They have kissed babies, donned 10-gallon hats, descended into mines, climbed trees and beamed through floral necklaces, but it wasn't until Saturday that —

A representative from New York collaborated with a former representative from Illinois in laying the corner stone of a distillery.

Admitting an earlier reluctance to wield the trowel on such an occasion, Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York City, yielded to persuasion of his former colleague, William E. Hull, and delivered the principal address as work was started on the new Hiram Walker & Sons distillery at Peoria, Ill., which will be the largest in the world.

Hull is general manager of the distillery, which will have a capacity of 100,000 gallons a day.

Public Works Funds Granted Pass 2 Billion

Projects Further Ahead Than Engineers Believed Possible, Says Ickes.

The Public Works Administration has passed the $2,000,000,000 mark in distributing $3,300,000,000 of Federal Government money to increase employment, according to Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

Up to and including October 17, allocations approved by the administration amounted to $2,049,767,088. These were increased by approximately $30,000,000 in the last few days.

Of the total allocations, $1,802,116,926 went for Federal projects in the States, Territories and District of Columbia, while $247,650,162 was allotted for 397 non-Federal projects. On October 17, $1,250,232,912 remained for future allocations.

Administrator Ickes, announcing these allotments, made it clear that he would continue the policy of prohibiting any secret allotments.

Job Survey in Progress.

Since appointment of the administrator the Public works organization has made allotments at the rate of $136,651,139 per week for 15 weeks. The administration had no figures available on the number of men given employment on projects financed by Government money.

Estimates, however, calculate that 85 per cent of every dollar spent out of the $3,300,000,000 fund will go for wages under P. W. A. precautions, and that for every man employed directly on a public works job, two others are recalled to work elsewhere in factories, forests or mines in preparation of materials.

A Nation-wide survey is under way to determine the number of persons who have gained employment either directly or indirectly as a result of the public works program. Allotments made early for naval construction, Federal aid highways, flood control, rivers and harbors and work in forests are adding daily to increases in pay envelopes and purchasing power, according to Mr. Ickes.

Task far Advanced.

"The full inevitable regenerative force of this phase of the recovery plan still lies ahead because of the inherent problems in getting $3,300,000,000 of public works under actual construction," Mr. Ickes said. "This stupendous task, surrounded by countless legal restrictions, has been speeded until it is now further advanced than many engineers who have studied the difficulties involved thought likely."

More than $6,639,756 has been allotted in the District of Columbia on October 17 for various construction projects and improvements. Among these are: Columbia Institution for the Deaf, $10,000; Freedman's Hospital, $85,000; Howard University, $1,018,811; repairs to White House, $6,000; St. Elizabeths Hospital, $850,000; National Training School for Boys, $98,845; Departmental (physical improvements), $7,600; District of Columbia, $1,759,500; Library of Congress, $2,800,000.

That youth must be served is a good deal more than a mere phrase in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, Department of Agriculture. In that division, the younger generation seems to be coming into and claiming its own.

Two key positions are being filled by two up-and-coming young men. C. C. Hudson, property officer, and James L. Buckley, personnel officer, are the two youthful officials.

Hudson is only 25 years old, yet is chief of supplies and properties and supervises the work of 20 employes. He was appointed to the Department of Agriculture in 1926 as a junior messenger. He is from Virginia.

Buckley is 29 years old. Until last July 1 he was a senior clerk. He is a student at Georgetown University law school and has been in the service since 1925. His home town is Bridgeport, Conn.

Andrew J. McCollum, assistant personnel officer, is another who has moved rapidly. He is 24 years old and a Pennsylvanian by birth. He was with the Bureau of Agricultural Economics about three years before being transferred to the new division.

But Fred L. Wheeler, in the personnel office, seems to have the prize of youthfulness. He is only 21 years old and was only recently elevated to a clerkship from the messenger service. His home town is Johnson City, Tenn.

Howard W. Davis, a file clerk in the personnel office, is still another who moved up rapidly. He is 26 years old. He entered the Federal service in 1930 with the Bureau of the Census. His home is in Concordia, Mo.

Blue Eagle Flew In.

This wicked old depression
Was completely my obsession;
It haunted me by day and night,
Till at last, to make confession,
"I was in its full possession.
"It surely had me 'dead to right.'"

There came no hoped recession
Or break in its procession;
I was simply "hanging on";
I'd fought against transgression,
And other wrong digression,
Until it left me pale and wan.

Then the "Blue Eagle" soared into the fight,
And hope for the future at last grew bright,
If people will try it and be sincere,
No doubt but recovery will soon be here.

Green Reveals Fall in Jobless Of 3,600,000

Demands Shorter Hours to Give 10,089,000 Idle Employment.

Unemployment in the United States has decreased 3,600,000 since the peak last march, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said yesterday. He estimated that in March there were 13,689,000 unemployed in the country.

"But even so," he added, "10,089,000 are still jobless. Winter is just ahead. Most of the effect of the reemployment program has been felt already. The only way we possibly can put them to work is by a further shortening of work hours.

As proof of his contention that shorter work hours are the major factor in reemployment, Green pointed out that during April, May and June unemployment was reduced about 500,000 a month, with 42 per cent increase in industry.

With the NRA program in operation during August and September, unemployment was reduced at the rate of 850,000 a month, in the face of a decline of 11 per cent in industry, he said.

In spite of increased prices, the buying power of American workers has been increased by $365,700,000 a month as compared with March, he estimated. He said the increase in September over August was $67,000,000.

Curb on Lynching Asked of Congress

Women Request President to Seek Legislation.

Introduction of antilynching legislation in the coming session of Congress was asked of President Roosevelt yesterday by the Women's International League.

In a letter to the Chief Executive members of the league described lynching as "America's hideous problem." The letter urged that Federal authorities take a hand as they did in curbing the activities of kidnapers.

"Kidnaping chiefly affects the lives and property of the wealthy and privileged members of society," the letter read, "but we believe the State owes even a greater responsibility to the helpless in our Nation."

The letter cited Maryland's recent Eastern Shore lynching as a basis for the Presidential request.

Camera Men Will Beard Sea Monster in Its Lair

Expedition Launches Hunt for Serpent Reported in Vancouver Waters.

Seattle, Oct. 22 (AP).—A party of newsmen, photographers, mariners and scientists put out today to search for the Hiaschu-Ackaluck sea serpent and shoot him—with cameras.

It was all very well for fishermen, Indians, Girl Scouts, tourists and such like imaginative persons to report 80-foot monsters swimming in Okanogan Lake and off the coast of Vancouver Island, but when ministers, provincial officials and hard-boiled sea captains asserted they saw the dread cadborosaurus, that was too much.

A Victoria newspaper sent the expedition into the Straits of Juan de Fuca, where Capt. W. N. Prengel, of the Grace liner Santa Lucia, reported he saw a sea monster of giant size.

Capt. Prengel was reluctant to discuss the nightmare that has caused such a commotion until he arrived in Victoria, B. C., from New York and found Canadians were talking of it.

"My navigating officer called my attention to a big, peculiarly shaped object about 300 feet away," he said. "We saw it was moving rapidly. It cut quite a wake, and when it disappeared it left a wide area of foam as if a giant tail had lashed the water."

Navigating Officer A. E. Richards said it was early in the morning, and the ship was about 25 miles east of Victoria.

"The serpent was lying on the water," he said, "and when we came past it lifted its head and looked at the ship. It had a face something like a sea cow. Its head was about 36 inches broad and maybe 4½ feet long. The serpent or whatever you want to call it was about 90 feet long, sort of grayish. Its body was a foot or a foot and a half in diameter; it had a vicious tail and was lashing the water."

U. S. Gains Aid Of Oil Industry In Price Fixing

Creation of Agency May Be Necessary to Cope With Problems.

The oil industry and the Interior Department are cooperating to perfect machinery designed to protect price levels recently fixed by Secretary Ickes.

Linked with this problem is another—that of holding the flow of oil in line with demand. The new price levels become effective December 1.

Control of production is an important element in the success of the price-fixing venture, the first engaged in by the Government on a wide scale under an NRA code.

Members of the petroleum planning and coordinating committee, the governing board of the industry, predicted privately that an extensive fact-finding and research agency with broad supervisory powers would be required. This may be a part of the Interior Department organization, the expense to be met by the industry.

The Petroleum Administrative Board is working on rules and regulations for hearings on the proposed price schedules. Numerous objections already are on file. The hearings are planned for November 1.

The Consumers Advisory Board of the NRA will present its views at the hearings. It is opposed to oil price-fixing.

rmany Justified, Says F. Senator; Sees U. S. in Entanglements.

Justifying the action of Germany withdrawing from the disarma- ent conference, Senator Schall, of innesota, and Representative c milton Fish, of New York, issued tatements yesterday criticizing the oreign policy of the United States nd particularly the activities of Norman H. Davis, America's ambassador at large.

Schall said Hitler was declaring for peace and not revenge, and "for the recognition of that right which all nations must enjoy for self-existence, the equal right of arms for self-defense."

Fish said Germany was justified in withdrawing from the conference after the allies "had refused to reduce their armaments in accordance with their promises."

Schall criticized Davis for "betraying this country into European entanglements." He contended Germany was eager for disarmament, while France was spending from "the largest war chest of gold in Europe." He said the United States had been drawn into supporting France against Germany.

"The State Department 'shudders' at what may happen. That shudder should have taken place just before the act of Friday, the thirteenth—and prevented Norman H. Davis from betraying this country into European entanglements."

Fish called upon Americans to "mind our own business."

"The American public, in spite of their resentment at some phases of the Hitler government, should refrain from passing judgment on Germany for withdrawing from the arms conference," he said.

"The Allies refused to reduce their armaments in accordance with their promises, and the German government was well within its rights in withdrawing. In fact, there was nothing else she could do with dignity and honor."

"For years," the paper says, "trade has been carried on between the United States and Russia, but officially there was no recognition. It was a hypocritical state of affairs which is happily ended."

Rainey Applauds Roosevelt Speech

Way Will Be Found to Lift Farm Prices, He Says.

Carrollton, Ill., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Henry T. Rainey, Speaker of the House, tonight applauded the President's address.

"We ought not return to the gold standard until prices have been restored," Rainey said. "The price level is our immediate concern."

Rainey referred to Mr. Roosevelt's assertion concerning farm prices in which the President said: "If we can not do this one way we will do it another."

"And there are other ways," Rainey commented.

"Prices are better," he added, "though they do not yet reach cost of production. Relief methods, particularly the corn and hog program, will not be felt to their fullest extent until next year."

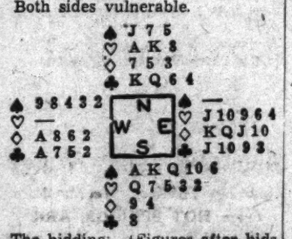
Bad Distribution.

There is no player in the world great enough to foresee and completely circumvent the difficulties that arise from bad distribution. When all the trumps are massed against you, and, in addition, side suits break badly, you must make the best of a bad situation and try to go down as little as possible if you see that the contract can not be made. If the hand comes up in Duplicate, you must realize that every one else will encounter this same bad break, and therefore if you hold the penalty to a minimum you will still get a very good score on the board.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠(1)	Pass	2NT	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠	Pass

1—Although light, this hand must be opened, particularly in Howell play, because of the 100 honors and the very fine distribution.

2—West might have doubled at this point. However, from the bidding he was not even sure he would make both of his Aces, and furthermore, despite his length in trumps, he bemoaned the fact that he did not hold an honor. In addition, from his holding it looked to him as if the opponents might make four notrump and go down at four spades, and he did not want to chance driving them to the former contract.

This hand was dealt in the recent Individual Masters Tournament held last month. Most West players chose to underlead one of their Aces, and, having nothing to go by, chose a low club. Where this lead was made, the success of Declarer in making the most of the hand depended on whether or not, after taking a round of spades and discovering the adverse trump distribution, he immediately sensed that the heart suit would also break badly, with probably a string of cards in that suit held by East. Those Declarers who subsequently led the Ace of hearts from Dummy to test out that suit were doomed to go down 2 tricks, as the first round was ruffed. The careful Declarer, still hoping to make his contract, but not wishing to go down more than one, led the first round of hearts from his own hand so that if West ruffed, a low card could be played from Dummy.

Even if the defense started off by leading three rounds of diamonds, careful play would allow Declarer to still take nine tricks and go down only one, as South, instead of taking five spade tricks, three heart tricks and a club, could take six spade tricks and three tricks in clubs and hearts.

Tomorrow's Hand.

With a diamond Opening, how should South play the hand below in order to make four hearts?

South, Dealer.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Howe Urges Faith in NRA To Farmers

Progress on Many Fronts Will Aid Agriculture, He Promises.

Unrest among farmers is natural and understandable because the recovery program is not moving with the same speed with which it started and "our present regular progress seems slow to many impatient people," Col. Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, said in his weekly radio broadcast last night. Col. Howe's broadcast preceded that of the President.

Col. Howe emphasized that real progress is being made on many fronts. He pointed to unemployment figures, which he said have been reduced by between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000. He said reduction in unemployment will be the greatest factor in aiding the farmers.

Col. Howe outlined the work of the Federal Land Bank, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and other agencies aiding farmers.

The Home Owners Loan Corporation is rapidly getting under way, and activities of that organization tion will be doubled this week, he said.

Col. Howe discussed the proposal for thawing assets in closed banks and said small depositors soon will again have use for their check books.

"That will mean courage to spend on the part of many who are still afraid," he said.

The economic discrimination, which the National Woman's Party says is still practiced against women, will be put under fire at an emergency convention called by the party for November 4 and 5 at Wilmington, Del.

Mrs. Mary Ritter Beard will discuss the international aspects of the situation, while Mrs. Sara B. Cummings, president of the Married Women Teachers Association, will speak on the difficulties women encounter in the teaching profession.

Reports will be given on economic opportunities for women by Mrs. Jane Norman Smith; Miss Maud Younger and Miss Anita Pollitzer will explain the party's Congressional program, and Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews will outline State laws affecting women in professions.

Entertainment will include an organ concert by the Belgian organist, Firmin Swinnen, at the Pierre du Pont home, near Wilmington. Mrs. Florence Hilles, national council chairman of the party, heads the committee in charge of arrangements.

Lynching Blame Placed on Ritchie

Head of Voters' Group Assails Governor.

The Independent Voters Political Welfare Organization of Maryland, through its president, John L. Jenifer, 2931 Eleventh street northwest, yesterday sent from its Marlboro headquarters a telegram to Gov. Albert C. Ritchie concerning the recent mob action in Princess Anne.

Citing two instances in which the Maryland executive is alleged to have failed to uphold the law and its due process, the telegram stated:

"Knowing as you must the temper and prejudices of your citizenry, and failing as you have to offset their fury against alleged criminals, protected by the majesty of the Constitution in the right to due process of law, you have failed to live up to the standard of the oath of your high office.

"Such failure on the part of one who has stood so high in public favor as you have heretofore, and its inevitable effect upon any subsequent career, are not only a blot on the fair escutcheon of your State, but also an invitation to further lawlessness within its confines."

13-Month Calendar Proposed in NRA

7 Codes Use It; General Adoption Recommended.

(Associated Press.)

The economic research division of NRA has recommended a 13-month calendar for statistical purposes to NRA authorities and to business, and some experts predict its general adoption.

A copy of forms sent to code authorities states:

"Some of the codes require reporting every four weeks and some require reporting by the month. It would be desirable to have all reports cover uniform periods.

"If all industry would go on a 13-month basis, it would greatly simplify all satistical reporting and accounting.

"With this in mind, this set of forms is developed so that each question (with two exceptions), covers a four-week period."

Up to September 15 seven NRA codes had adopted the 13-month calendar for collecting data.

Fruit Flies Will Take Ride In Stratosphere Balloon

To Be Used in Experiment in Study of Cosmic Ray Ray Effects.

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The stratosphere balloon and its equipment received its final grooming today in anticipation of the projected ascension by Lieut. Comdr. T. G. W. Settle, of the Navy, and Maj. Chester L. Fordney, U. S. M. C.

If weather conditions continue favorable, the scientific expedition will take-off from the World's Fair grounds early Tuesday morning.

All scientific instruments, those for studying cosmic rays; photographic apparatus, parachutes, oxygen "lungs," the same as used by the Navy to escape from disabled submarines, and wirless sending and receiving sets have been installed in the gondola.

The oxygen "lungs" are carried to furnish air to the baloonists in the event that they are forced to jump by parachutes in the rarified stratosphere.

Fordney said that he and Settle hoped to carry out experiments on the flight relating to cosmic rays, dealing with the amount of ultra-violet rays emitted from the sun, and a biological experiment.

In the latter, a number of fruit flies will be taken aloft and left undisturbed.

"The experiment," Fordney said, "will consist in seeing what kind of offspring they produce. Fruit flies have been the favorite experimental animals of geneticists, and it is known that when their germ cells are exposed to X-rays and other short-length rays, the genes in the cells are often altered, so that the offspring show permanent changes in eye-color, wing structure and other parts which are passed on to succeeding generations."

"The question is whether these 'mutations' can be speeded up by cosmic rays."

"Be Patient," Pastor Urges

Courage Is Needed These Days, Dr. Braskamp Says in Pulpit.

Courage was the dominant note in Dr. Bernard Braskamp's morning sermon yesterday at Gunton Temple Memorial Church, Sixteenth and Newton streets.

"In these times when we are tempted to lose courage and patience, the words of Ecclesiastes, 'cast thy bread upon the waters for thou shalt find it after many days,' bring us a powerful message," he said.

Dr. Braskamp expressed alarm at the "eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow we die" attitude toward life. He cited as examples the lives of Louis Pasteur, Florence Nightingale, Lincoln and Grenville of Labrador, who "gave their lives trustfully, lavishly, liberally."

"They followed the principle of bread casting," asserted Dr. Braskamp. "Of course, we grow weary in well-doing, and wonder 'what's the use?' But in God's own good time we shall reap a harvest.

"Ecclesiastes' words challenge us to be nobly venturesome and patient. Let us remember how each day during his trying voyage across the sea Columbus, his patients tested by threats of mutiny, wrote on the mast of his ship, 'This day we sail on.'"

Atlantans Hunt 5 Fugitive Snakes

Atlanta, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Five of seven members of a show troupe which were left behind are causing real concern to folks around Five Points, the heart of Atlanta's business section. The forgotten troupers are rattlesnakes.

Last week one of the snakes was killed in the basement of a vacant store. Week-end crowds watched a pedestrain kill another one.

But five are still at large. A snake show held forth at Five Points a few weeks ago and police said they learned that seven snakes were left behind inadvertently.

ONLY $9.40 DOWN brings you

Automobile Insurance in the Largest Mutual Casualty Company

Don't risk driving your car—the security of your loved ones—your home—the danger of expensive law suits—when you can get protection as low as $9.40 down in the largest mutual casualty company, noted for prompt settlements. Then, pay the balance in four, six or eight months in small monthly payments as low as $5.40 per month.

Over 20,000 people were actually killed in automobile accidents the first nine months of this year and over 500,000 injured—some disabled for life. The property damage runs into the millions. These are cold facts. Can you afford to take chances? Can you afford to drive your car without proper insurance knowing that any minute you may be the innocent victim of a terrible accident—an accident, that might cost you thousands of dollars—might eat up your life savings? Don't take these chances when it is so easy to get protection for a small down payment and easy terms in one of the soundest of all insurance companies.

And in addition, Liberty Mutual has saved its policyholders 20% of the cost of their insurance for 21 years. Typical savings are from $12.50 on small cars to $14.00 on large cars. This is not a "cut rate" company. It is a mutual company and the profits are paid back to the policyholders in the form of dividends. The rates are standard—the same as those of other responsible companies. Liberty Mutual is operated "not for profit" but for the benefit of policyholders. This is one of the reasons why they have saved policyholders 20% for 21 years. Furthermore, Liberty Mutual sells direct and thus eliminates expensive brokers' commissions. You deal direct with a responsible, well organized company.

Small Monthly Payments—Pay as you drive

Liberty Mutual's installment plan was established for careful, responsible drivers who want automobile protection on a small monthly payment basis. Pay as you drive—in four, six or eight months. In this way you will not miss the money and can enjoy your car without worrying about thefts and accidents.

Even though you may have bought your car "on time" and received fire and theft insurance, you cannot afford to be without Personal Injury and Property Damage Insurance. Your car might be stolen and returned, but a fatal accident (though no fault of yours) might cost you thousands of dollars and weeks of time spent in court before a hostile jury. Consider then, is it worth the chance, is it worth the risk to drive without proper protection when it is so easy to get, for a few dollars a month?

Investigate this Strong Company

Liberty Mutual has Assets, $25,348,920. Reserves for Liabilities, $18,868,015. Reserves for Contingencies, $2,375,000. Surplus, $4,105,905 (June 30, 1933). It is the largest mutual casualty company in the United States (over 115,000 policyholders). Liberty Mutual has saved policyholders 20% for 21 years—right through depression times. This is an enviable record. Space will not permit us to present a list of policyholders, most of whom are individual car owners. Below, you will find a list of directors and prominent policyholders who, after careful investigation as to strength, stability, savings and prompt settlement of claims, have selected Liberty Mutual:

The District's Urgent Plea.

More thorough study of the necessities of the District of Columbia courts and Police Department is to be urged upon the Public Works Administration by the District Commissioners and Senator King, chairman of the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia. The squalid and dilapidated quarters of the Police, Municipal and Juvenile Courts and the Police Department are a disgrace to the National Capital. The District government is not to blame for present dangerous and insanitary conditions. The remedy lies wholly in the hands of the Federal Government.

Plans have been made and are ready for construction work as soon as funds can be made available. The District, in obedience to the mandate of Congress, acquired the Municipal Center site at a cost of over $6,000,000, in pursuance of the plans for erection of the Federal buildings in the Triangle. The District Building is to be taken over by the Federal Government as a part of its Triangle development. The municipality, therefore, will be without a home unless it is assisted in building the Municipal Center.

The local courts and Police Department are in need of immediate housing relief. The Commissioners therefore ask for an allotment of public works funds to proceed with construction of the first unit of the Municipal Center. In return, the Commissioners will turn over the District Building at a valuation which is conceded to be reasonable.

Some opposition to Federal expenditures in the District is voiced by Western legislators who are eager to obtain large allotments for their constituencies. These legislators suggest that the Government in expending $75,000,000 for Federal buildings here is dealing generously with the District. But these expenditures are purely Federal.

Difficulty is experienced by the Public Works Administration in finding suitable projects upon which to expend emergency funds. The merits of some of the allotments already made may be questioned. Recently a huge sum was granted toward the construction of a Western reclamation project, although the Government in various ways is strenuously endeavoring to curtail agricultural production. Many times as much is allotted to this project as would be required for construction of necessary improvements in the District of Columbia—improvements which would not represent an additional outlay of Federal funds, since the District government would compensate for the expenditure by transferring title to the District Building.

The urgent need of decent quarters for local judicial and police services can not be denied. The eligibility of construction plans from the standpoints of engineering, immediate relief of unemployment, legal requirements, and social necessity has been demonstrated. The fact is apparent that the project would not become a burden upon the community or the Federal Government.

Local organizations of all kinds have joined with the Fine Arts Commission and other agencies in urging immediate construction of the first unit of the Municipal center. This project, unlike some of the costly projects already approved by the Public Works Administration, has been approved by Congress.

The people of Washington are convinced that if Secretary Ickes will examine the District project in all its phases he will approve a suitable allotment of public works funds with which to begin construction without delay.

Senator Wagner on Strikes.

As chairman of the National Labor Board, Senator Wagner, of New York, has made a careful study of the provisions in the industrial codes concerning relations between employers and employes. In a radio broadcast he made some points clear regarding the rights and duties of both sides in current controversies. The strike should be abandoned, the senator admonished, as an instrument of first resort.

Industry and labor can not coperate, says Senator Wagner, by means of the strike. Such contests possibly may determine which of the two contestants is stronger at the moment, but if it produces a situation which serves the best interests of both parties it is merely an accidental result. It was estimated that during September 8,000,000 working days were lost through strikes, which the senator characterized as a drain upon the potential wealth of the country which can never be replaced and unlikely to confer lasting benefits upon workers.

The speaker rejected the suggestion that workers have been denied the right to strike or that strikes have been outlawed. The strike, he says, is no more unlawful than the action of an employer in closing down his plant. He acknowledges that either action may at times be the only hope of those who feel that they are unjustly treated, but primary resort should be had to other agencies for the amicable and constructive settlement of disputes.

The Labor Board realizes that during a trying period of readjustment, like the present, industrial disputes are inevitable, but Senator Wagner finds that some controversies are so complicated that they can not be settled by the interested parties. In such cases, he believes, industrial adjustments should be placed in the hands of agencies which, in addition to being impartial, are trained to handle them. The National Labor Board, in his opinion, is such an agency.

Britain's Naval Campaign.

A campaign for extension of the British navy is under way in London. Attention was directed toward the naval question recently by the note from Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, in which he advised the United States to postpone the construction of its prospective 10,000-ton cruisers. Now the campaign for a British naval building program is vigorously supported by high officials.

Lord Beatty, former chief of the British naval staff, told the Navy League that Britain must never again bind herself to "such an unsafe limit" as is prescribed in the London naval treaty. Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, says Britain is now in a position to build up to full treaty strength and beyond. Admiral Chatfield, chief of the naval staff, is advocating a more generous allotment of funds to the navy on the ground that the British fleet is "now getting past its prime." Reports are current in London that a large naval building program is seriously considered in official circles.

The contemplated additions to the United States' fleet are used as an argument in favor of more British men of war. The London treaty provides for substantial parity between the two fleets. If the United States is determined to go ahead with its program, it is said, Britain, too, should hasten to strengthen her fleet. Furthermore, the treaty calls for another naval conference in 1935, and the British admiralty is anxious to enter the negotiations in as favorable a position as possible.

Under the treaty both the American and British navies are allotted 135,000 tons in the aircraft carrier class; Great Britain has 115,350 tons (under the age of obsolescence), compared with 77,500 tons for the United States. When our 10,000-ton 8-inch gun cruisers now under construction are completed the United States will have 152,000 tons of under-age vessels in this class, compared with 183,000 tons for Great Britain, in spite of the fact that the treaty allows this country 33,000 tons more than Britain in this category.

The ratio of under-age 6-inch gun cruisers to the allotments in the treaty are more nearly equal for the two navies. But the United States has only 16,560 tons of under-age destroyers, while Great Britain has 52,848 tons. Only in submarines is the tonnage of American naval ships greater than that of Great Britain.

A more concise view of the two navies may be obtained by comparing their total number of under-age vessels and their aggregate tonnage. Great Britain has 138 ships aggregating 950,169 tons and the United States 102 ships aggregating 738,000. The British navy is not only much nearer to its full treaty strength than is ours, but the large number of near obsolete vessels in the American fleet would accentuate this disparity by 1936 if the building program in this country should be postponed.

Great Britain and Japan have carried on a considerable volume of naval construction in recent years, while the American Navy has lagged behind. Now it has been found advisable to bring the United States Navy more into line with other fleets. When all the vessels provided for in the current program have been completed the American fleet still will be considerably short of its treaty limits.

The United States is not engaging in a naval race. The construction undertaken with public works funds is designed to relieve unemployment and at the same time to reduce the disparity between the American fleet and other navies strictly in accord with treaty limitations.

Lindbergh's Survey.

Col. Lindbergh's final report on the prospects of establishing a commercial air route between the United States and Europe via Greenland is awaited with a great deal of interest. His conclusions undoubtedly will be a vital factor in the development of transatlantic air service.

Some preliminary conclusions regarding the northern air route to Europe were divulged by Col. Lindbergh at a luncheon of the American Club of London. But he is not ready to pass final judgment upon the feasibility of a regular flying service over this course until it has been tested in winter. A considerable number of flights from Newfoundland to Greenland and Iceland and thence to Ireland suggest that flying in this region is practical in summer time.

Col. Lindbergh thinks that operations would not be seriously disrupted by the transition from summer to winter, or vice versa, because the freeze-over and break-up periods are short. He is of the opinion that the violent storms which sometimes rage in that country may be avoided by skillful pilots with the aid of meteorological experts. Yet he places airplane transportation on a year-round basis in this semi-Arctic region under a question mark until actual tests can be made through the winter months.

Air transportation interests are extremely anxious to find a practical route that does not require extremely long flights over water. Planes may be constructed with a large reserve of motive power to fly directly from Newfoundland to Ireland, but the fuel requirements for such long flights are so large that only small pay loads could be carried. If stops for refueling could be made in Greenland and possibly Iceland, heavier loads could be carried and the hazards of transocean flying might be reduced.

If service over the northern route should prove impractical in winter, it might be used for summer flying only. A limited service directly between Newfoundland and Ireland might be maintained in cold weather. Of course, this plan would be expensive, for two different types of planes would be required.

Viscount Grey's Memorial.

In a setting of unusual beauty and historic interest, a habitat group of north European birds has been established at the American Museum of Natural History in New York. The group stands as a memorial to the late Viscount Grey of Fallodon, who was an ardent nature lover. The collection of about sixty species, ranging from the small gold-crest to the tawny owl, appears amid natural surroundings arranged by the celebrated natural history painter, Francis Jacques.

The setting was copied from a spot along the walk which Theodore Roosevelt took with Viscount Grey in 1910. This historic stroll was planned in 1909, just before Roosevelt left the White House. Speaking with Lord Bryce, then British Ambassador, the President expressed his desire to stop in England on his way home from Africa and to have some English ornitholigist take him afield. This wish was communicated to Viscount Grey, then Sir Edward Grey, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and he replied that he himself would be the colonel's guide.

When Mr. Jacques was in England last year Viscount Grey took him over the path he had followed with Col. Roosevelt. The artist was thus enabled to make a faithful reproduction of one of the most beautiful spots in England. On a knoll in the foreground rises a great, gnarled and moss-covered beech. The giant roots sink into the heather-covered soil, and among them is a family of partridges. A moor stretches to one side, bordered by a deep forest, and a brook runs between banks covered with a variety of flowers.

The original spot is located in the New Forest, a great primeval wood set aside by William the Conqueror as his hunting ground, and which ever since has been preserved by the crown. The beauty of this chosen location and the varied bird life therein, which the two statesmen enjoyed, are charmingly described in Viscount Grey's small volume on the subject.

The Great Objective.

From the Railway Age.

The improvement in business that occurred during the last one-third of 1932 was obviously due to natural causes. Its decline during the first one-third of 1933 doubtless was due to banking and credit conditions and tendencies, the correction of which by the needed exercise of governmental power to restrict withdrawals from the banks was followed immediately by resumption of the natural improvement. What has caused the decline since July? The only new and important influences by which business has since been affected have been certain of the Administration's policies.

When legislation to reduce hours of work and increase wages in industry was first proposed this paper pointed out that its inevitable tendency would be to increase costs of production and prices in industry, and thereby to reduce agricultural purchasing power. Everybody knows now that it has had, and is still having, this effect. It was repeatedly pointed out that the largest decline in production and employment had occurred in the capital goods industries; that it was essential to the revival of these industries to encourage business men to make improvements in their plants and machinery; and that, to this end, it was necessary to create conditions under which they could reduce their losses or increase their profits and sell securities to raise new capital.

Until recently the means essential to reviving the capital goods industries were almost disregarded. Some industries, such as the railroads, would be willing to get from the Government part of the money they need to spend, but the Government has persisted in imposing such hard terms for loans that most industries regard it as contrary to their interest to accept money from it.

In spite of the recession that has occurred since July, underlying economic conditions are still better than at any time within the last four years, and if and when the Government modifies some of its policies, the improvement in business undoubtedly will be resumed. What the Nation most needs now is recovery, not revolution, and in a country in which production, the only source of wealth and incomes, has declined over 40 per cent, an increase of production as well as of employment is obviously essential to recovery.

Reason and experience seem strongly to support the view that it is necessary to early renewal of the improvement in business that revolution shall speedily be subordinated to recovery as the objective of statesmen and labor leaders, as well as of business men.

WEATHER AND CRIME.

(Cincinnati, Ohio. — Dr. C. A. Mills, speaking in this city, said that weather is in his opinion largely responsible for crime waves. Weather influences the glands, the doctor asserts."—News item.)

I have an urge to crack a safe—
It is a swell diversion—
To dynamiting any bank
I have no slight aversion;
When tossed upon temptation's sea
I'm helpless as a feather;
Why do I lead a life of crime?
I guess it is the weather.

II.

Last night when sitting all alone
Quite happy and contented
I felt the urge to sack a home
And was not circumvented.
I do not know what drives me on
To deeds so base and rowdy
Except that I lose all control
When it is damp and cloudy.

III.

The other day I choked a man
And slew a certain lady;
I then set fire to a house—
My ways are very shady.
I shot a cop last evening when
The bull got rather huffy;
Somehow I always misbehave
When things get close and stuffy.

IV.

One night I stuck a hotel up
And "snatched" the house detective;
The way I act you'd almost think
Me mentally defective.
Next day I stole a motor car
(A big one, very doggy);
I always do such things as that Whenever it is foggy.

V.

One afternoon I stole a truck—
The U. S. mails it carried;
Last night I swiped a fellow's bride
Before he could get married.
I like to do unlawful things,
And this, I think, is funny—
My glands go bad on rainy days—
And also when it's sunny.

VI.

So, Judge, you will excuse it, please—
No matter what I do, sir,
I simply ain't responsible
And hope it's clear to you, sir.
Tonight I have all plans complete
To stage a bloody crime at
A coppers' ball; it's just because
I can not stand the climate.

WHAT TO INVENT.

A gadget for holding asparagus while cooking was one of some 600 new inventions shown at the recent National Inventors' Congress in Cleveland, says the New York Sun. Others were a cart for carrying golf bags, a mechanical card dealer, a revolving Christmas tree, a chicken-dressing rack and automatic garage door openers. It might seem that all possibilities had been exhausted by this time, but there is still plenty of scope for inventors, according to talks made to the Incorporated Sales Managers' Association during a conference at Scarborough, England. Desirable inventions mentioned were pencils with wood that will wear down as the lead wears, an alarm clock that will rouse only the person desiring to be awakened, a watch that will automatically remind its owner to wind it, electric lights that can be operated from any point in a room by the utterance of a key word and matches that can not be ignited by children.

Murder Stories

As murder is so horrible in reality, it seems strange that it should be so delightful in fiction. But when we read to relieve rather than to enrich or stimulate our minds, we want something romantic, something as different as possible from our daily life. That may be the reason why murder yarns have such compelling charm.

Some books we read to remember and some we read to forget. Detective novels we read to forget. Thus I do not care very much whether a tale of this kind is well written or not; what I want is action, and plenty of it. The only possible excuse for a murder story is that it shall be so thrilling that it will divert our minds from our own troubles. Hence a well-written but dull narrative of murder has no merit.

The best of all contemporary novels of mystery and murder are in the Bulldog Drummond series, of which six volumes have already appeared and I hope 60 will follow. They combine in an excellent manner mirth and murder. Any novel also by Carroll J. Daly, whose invariable hero is the redoubtable Race Williams, is sure-fire in every respect. Hugh Cleverly is another dependable author. The late Edgar Wallace and the living Phillips Oppenheim are almost (but not quite always) safe. Among the most ingenious mystery writers are Van Dine, whose best book is "The Greene Murder Case," and Ellery Queen.

Murder stories are not read by stupid people; they read sentimental slush. The majority of murder-readers are highly intelligent persons who need a rest from their daily work.

The Stage Setting Is Changed, But the Same Old Drama Is Played Forever.

By Robert Quillen.

In a recent publication a feminine writer pictures her childhood in Maine and tells how faithfully the youngsters of her family studied their lessons as they sat around the dining room table at night.

Then she concludes with an unflattering comparison: "The fact is that they studied with a naturalness and a faith unknown to the rank and file of twentieth century America."

The lady is misaken.

Through grammar school and high school my daughter followed the routine that was common in her dad's time.

When the weather was fine she hurried home from school, ate her lunch, and at once got at her lessons and piano practice. The idea was to get all unpleasant business finished and leave the evening hours free for play.

In cold weather, when the days were short, the play hours came first and the studying was done after dark.

Then she joined the family circle—if three can be a circle—and sat at the living room table to wrestle with algebra and history and Latin and French until bedtime. The program never varied except when company or to much talk interfered with concentration and drove her to her own room.

She was neither bookish nor a paragon of industry. She had a normal dislike for lessons and a short temper for the ones that stumped her. She did not lead her class. She merely contrived, in the elegant phrase of her generation, to get by. And that was enough.

The point is that she studied as youngsters did 40 years ago and 90 years ago and yet was no exception. Every child in her grade did the same thing. With few exceptions, every child in school did it.

The home life of ordinary people hasn't changed much. Parents still are eager for their children to get an education and "be somebody." It is still a family disgrace if a child fails to "pass." Youngsters still rejoice in leading their class.

I wonder if all authors unintentionally deceive their readers and if all history is untrue.

A writer changes and thinks the world has changed, or moves into a new environment and assumes that the old one has become like the new.

But the world changes little. Written records 2,000 years old prove that oldsters of that age despaired of the younger generation, parents worried because their daughter was out late at night, and a proud son complimented his mother because she refused to paint her face as fashion demanded.

Time brings new gadgets and new play-pretties, but human nature functions in the same old way.

Press Comment

Navy Flyers Score.

Los Angeles Times.

The mass flight of naval planes from Coco Solo, Canal Zone, to San Diego, 3,292 miles, covered in 30 hours flying time, sets some new Navy records and proves that American naval flyers are fully up to modern emergency requirements. The flight was made in two equal hops, the stopping point being Acapulco. Six planes started, but one was delayed at Acapulco by motor trouble. The second hop, of 1,648 miles, was the longer in point of time, because heavy fog was met near San Diego; it took 19 hours.

This is a fine exploit, whether or not the ships are sent on to Hawaii as is talked of. The flyers seem to consider it a mere routine flight; but if it had been undertaken a few years ago, if half the ships had got through without mishap it would have been accounted a wonderful performance.

One Broker's Comment.

The New Yorker.

One broker we've heard of didn't take the new securities act lying down. This act, as you know if you keep even faintly abreast, is intended to curtail false, extravagant, or evasive statements by men who sell securities. Our broker got an order to buy $10,000 in Liberty bonds and in his letter transmitting them to his client pointed out formally, and in the language of the law, that he had in no wise solicited the transaction, but had "acted therein solely in the capacity of a broker in the execution of your order in the open market." He went on: "I am not a dealer, issuer or underwriter of these securities and I make no representations whatever to you respecting the value or solvency of these bonds." Then, new paragraph: "I feel that it is my duty to advise you, however, that the obligor in these securities is not earning the interest on them."

Then he sent a copy of the letter to Washington and felt better.

BARGERON.

WHEN the Cabinet members go on the air shortly to tell of the Administration's accomplishments they surely will not forget to tell about two major ones, the reduction of Mr. Atterbury's salary and making J. Pierpont Morgan subject himself to newspaper interviews. The Republicans may be able to get under and discredit some of the other boasts, but these two accomplishments are definite and invulnerable to attack.

I don't think there has been quite the proper appreciation of them on the part of the public, either. There has been so much activity by this administration that somehow, I am afraid, their purport has not definitely sunk in the mass skull. Yet they bear heavily upon the trend of the times and will be noted as a turning point or something by the historians.

ONE may have noticed in the public prints just a couple of days or so ago that Mr. Morgan had returned from his grouse hunting in Scotland and had invited the newspapermen to his stateroom, and given them an interview. He didn't say anything of importance, of course, but that is not the point. He said something the boys could write.

This is the first time Mr. Morgan has ever done anything like this. He has been returning from grouse hunts in Scotland ever since I can remember, but never before have the ship reporters in New York received from him more than a grunt. As to why they should receive anything else or just why that grunt is not just as important as what he did say when he granted an interview is something I do not understand, but my understanding is not necessary to the relative value of things.

• • • •

NOW the granting of this interview is an unmistakable accomplishment of the present administration. One of the first things it did was to bring Mr. Morgan down here and tell him, in effect, that he had to play the great old American game of permitting himself to be photographed and interviewed. Other citizens permitted it and Mr. Morgan simply did not have the right to hold himself aloof. Just what did he think he was anyway?

The vested interests have done enough to us, but his aloofness in the matter of interviews and photographs was just something the people no longer would stand. It was, I think, one of the greatest victories for the proletariat since the Russian revolution.

AND the aversions Mr. Morgan always had held against this thing were proved to be wholly unfounded. He must have been frightened to death at first and to have inwardly rebelled at the injustice of it—of his being the first of the bankers to be put on the spot.

Messrs. Charley Mitchell, Otto Kahn, Clarence Dillon, Wiggins and Aldrich have followed in due time, but no one of them attracted the attention that Mr. Morgan did. Interest in the investigation naturally waned after the first explosions which Mr. Morgan was forced to supply. All of us understood that the first man called would be the one to get the fire, the one put on the spot.

But Mr. Morgan's worry was without the knowledge that nature has a way of leveling things, of making up for injustices. For several days Mr. Morgan was at the mercy of the crowd with its derisive titters and sometimes outright guffaws. But then some one plumped a midget in his lap and he went away a hero.

• • • •

RAILROAD COORDINATOR EASTMAN considered the reduction of Mr. Atterbury's salary an excellent psychological accomplishment. The bringing of Mr. Morgan to the point of subjecting himself to being photographed and interviewed should be classed in the same category.

They constitute two such psychological advances as a people have not made in a long time, in fact.

Duck-Shooting Experience.

I went duck shooting once with
Freddie Nash and Bill Magee,
And in an open boat I faced a cold
November sea;
With ice upon my eyebrows and with ice upon my hair,
And ice upon my fingertips, I found no pleasure there.
For since I was a rookie and the youngest of the boys,
They told me 'twas my job at dusk to take up the decoys.

Within a little open boat they sent me from the blind
And told me round each wooden bird the anchor string to wind,
But stiff and frozen was the cord and high the waters rolled,
And scarce had I begun my task ere
I was wet and cold.
The north wind battered at my face and bitter was its bite,
And duck decoys are ugly things on a wild November night.

They told me I would get some ducks, and since I'm still alive,
I must confess that I came in that night with 45.
But when the ducks began to fly I think about the boys
And wonder whom they've picked this year to bring in the decoys.

Rise of Soviet Periled Allies Early in 1918

Peace Pact Signed With Germany When Wilson Ignored Demands.

(Editor's note—This is the first of three articles on Soviet-American relations.)

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—The early days of 1918 were momentous in Moscow:

The bolsheviks had overthrown the Kerensky provisional regime and founded the Soviet Union—a Communist government. The Soviets, in February, repudiated the Russian debt. Creditor nations were deeply concerned. The German offensive on the eastern front swept onward. The Soviets decried this "war of imperialism." They wanted peace—almost at any price.

Then, on March 3—in the west Russian town of Brest-Litovsk, with the spearhead of the kaiser's army thrust at them—the Soviets signed a treaty of peace with Germany.

Allies in Consternation.

The Allies were in consternation. They had depended on Russia in the East to keep the Germans from concentrating in the West.

They appealed to Lenin and Trotzky to fight on. Hopes were held out for immediate recognition by the allied powers, despite repudiation of debts.

On March 5, Trotzky transmitted to America, through Raymond Robins, Red Cross representative, this proposal:

If the treaty of Brest-Litovsk is not ratified by the Congress of Soviets, will American and allied aid be given to hold out against Germany; will steps be taken to prevent possible Japanese intervention in Siberia?

Wilson Ignores Proposal.

President Wilson, on March 11, cabled the all-Russian Congress of Soviets. He expressed the sympathy of the American people for the Russians, but made no direct mention of the Trotzky proposal.

The Soviet Congress waited until March 14 for a direct reply. Toward midnight of the 16th, Lenin was to speak. He asked Robins, "What have you heard from your Government?"

"Nothing," replied Robins. Lenin spoke for the treaty. It was ratified.

The allied cause on the eastern front was lost. And with it went Russia's hope for early recognition by the allied powers.

Aces of Air Thrill Big Richmond Crowd

Richmond, Va., Oct. 22 (AP).—American air aces entertained a large crowd at Byrd Airport today with speed and stunt flying in a show arranged by the Richmond Light Infantry Blues.

Bennett Griffin, of Oklahoma City, won the speed race, with Art Davis, of Lansing, Mich., second. Griffin also won the trophy race with a speed of 216 miles an hour.

What Today Means

"Scorpio."

If October 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 to 9 a. m., from 10:30 to 11:40 a. m. and from 4:40 to 5:50 p. m. The danger periods are from 2 to 3 p. m., from 6:30 to 7 p. m. and from 9 to 10:15 p. m.

It is more than likely you will have to say or do something on this day that will be particularly distasteful. This probably will come about in the course of business, but do not be in fear of the opinion of others, for it will be generally understood how you feel in the matter. The kind or encouraging word tendered to one of the younger members of your family will do much to restore that one's self-respect.

The child born on this October 23 will early in life come to feel that he is here on earth for a purpose. He will be quick to assume responsibility, will be serious about his studies and other work, and will endeavor to act lovingly toward all. Do not let him become too one-sided in his development; make him play.

If October 23 is the date of your birth, you undoubtedly think well of yourself. Whatever you start out to do, you are confident you will carry forward with success. That any one at all could doubt your ability along any line always proves surprising to you. There is great danger of rubbing people the wrong way due to your cock-sure attitude. The stumbling blocks in your path will very largely be of your own making, for people will go out of your way to avoid tripping you up. People will admire your good qualities and give you credit for them, but you will not have many boosters. You will succeed because you have the will to win.

Born on October 23, you are a very thorough person in all that you do. You very definitely make your plans far ahead, you carefully study every move you will make, and when things go wrong, it is usually the result of something that is beyond your power to control. You like to have people about you who are alert and work with snap and precision; you brush aside and ignore those who can not measure up to your ideas of what an individual should be. In regard to love you will adopt too matter-of-fact a manner. You will have to learn that love is something that can not be traded in and handled as a commodity. If you are to marry happily, you will have to slow down a bit and put a bit more feeling and emotion into love-making.

Successful people born on October 23:

Hitler Talks to World

ADOLPH HITLER,
pictured as he addressed Germany and the world after withdrawal of his country from the league and disarmament conference. He pleaded for peace and a meeting with other nations on equal footing.

Hitler Cheered Telling World "Hands Off!"

Equality and Peace Sole Aim of Germany, He Declares.

Regensburg, Germany, Oct. 22 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler, making his first speech directly to the public since Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations, was tumultuously cheered here today as he criticized "hurrah" patriotism and reiterated Germany's desire to live peaceably, but on equality, with the rest of the world.

The occasion for his speech was an assembly of storm troops at Germany's hall of fame in the countryside near Kelheim, Bavaria. A tremendous ovation greeted the chancellor when he went on the speakers' platform.

"We who experienced four and a half years of war," declared Hitler, "are best qualified to know its terrors. We also are best qualified to understand the difference between hurrah patriotism and the genuine spirit of unity."

"Hands Off," World Told.

He was interrupted by wild cheers when he said the world was not to interfere with Germany.

"Our goal," said Hitler, "is to make the nation happy again by getting it its daily bread—a tremendous job—and in pursuit of that job the world is to let us alone.

"We want peace, but not dishonor. We tell the world frankly: 'If you want to see us in international conferences, if you want to have us in your League of Nations, we will participate only when you recognize us as a nation; we are ready at any time to sign treaties if these can be fulfilled and if they are just; but pacts that neither can be fulfilled nor are honorable we will not sign'."

Applause rose in a frenzy when he added: "We will not cooperate in signing dictates."

"The time when Germans were fighting Germans is over and will never return," declared Hitler.

Peace, He Counsels.

Hitler appeals to the storm troopers saying: "It is our life work to create an organization that will forever guarantee German unity. In so doing we best insure the cause of peace on earth. There is no better guarantee of peace than the unity of the German nation."

He concluded his speech with a warning:

"One of the things which is clear, however, is that a life like that of the last 15 years is as intolerable for the German people as it would be for any other people.

"If you follow me as faithfully and as well disciplined as formerly, our struggle for freedom in the world will be successful. The conviction will come to the world that ours is a people that wants nothing other than freedom and justice."

U. S. May Begin Loans On Cotton This Week

Thousands of forms necessary for the Government's cotton loan plan have been mailed to county agents and financial agencies in the South, and a farm adjustment official said yesterday actual lending might begin early this week, the Associated Press reports.

Along with the loan agreement went detailed regulations under which the loans will be made.

Hitler Cabinet Shake-Up Due By January 1

Gen. Goering, Prussian Premier, Slated for Police Post.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Berlin, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Chancellor Adolph Hitler and his intimates in the Nazi party are planning a thorough shake-up in the federal cabinet by the first of the year, the United Press learned today.

Hitler, in an effort further to consolidate the Reich, may name Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier and his right-hand man, as minister of security in charge of the police throughout Germany, creating the portfolio especially for Goering.

Goering also is slated to continue as Reich's minister for aviation in the "new deal" which Hitler contemplates as a gesture on or about the time of the first anniversary of his rise to power.

Hitler also is understood to contemplate making Goering vice chancellor, replacing Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, who would assume the portfolio of foreign affairs under the new alignment. Baron Constantine von Neurath, present foreign minister, may be named ambassador to Great Britain.

Under the contemplated elimination of state boundaries such posts as Goering's premiership of Prussia, would disappear, leaving the present occupants free to assume important federal positions.

The various state police forces would be consolidated with the Reich police and the present state administration would be coordinated into a strongly centralized government.

Berlin, Oct. 22 (AP).—Relentlessly tracking down enemies of Chancellor Hitler, police arrested more than 100 persons in various parts of the Reich in an intensive week-end campaign.

Twenty-three were arrested at Bottrop, seven at Buer and 10 at Gelsehkirchen as police closed their nets on cities of the Ruhr district.

Accompanied by storm troopers, police searched 100 houses at Waltershausen, near Gotha, seizing 80 persons believed members of a secret Communist society. Five also were captured at Friedrichroda.

Dogs Raise Bedlam in Castle Where Nazi Princess Is Held

Mourning Hounds Howl Because Their Master Is in Jail.

Klagenfurt, Carinthia, Austria, Oct. 22 (AP).—Bedlam has broken loose at Castle Pitzelstaetten, where Princess Margot von Sachsen-Meiningen remains a virtual captive by order of Chancellor Dollfuss.

Her husband, the prince, was jailed yesterday charged with being a participant in a Nazi conspiracy.

The castle's five dogs are dismayed at the absence of their master. They are running wildly about the castle howling, barking and upsetting suits of armor in their excited search for the prince. And their mistress is unable to quiet them.

Complicating the matter is the fact that dogs, especially Dachshunds, don't like the idea of a garrison of detectives watching the movements of the castle personnel.

Through the countryside circulate rumors that several knights of Carinthia, believed to be adherents of the Nazi party, may attempt to rescue the princess from her castle.

Germans Pay Honor At Kaiserin's Tomb

Potsdam, Germany, Oct. 22 (AP).—In a touching demonstration of fidelity, thousands made the pilgrimage today to the tomb of the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Former Kaiser Wilhelm's first wife, in the Park Sans Souci. It was the seventy-fifth anniversary of her birth.

According to an old attendant, this year's procession was larger than ever.

Fleeing Auto Marooned On Top of Dirt Pile

San Rafael, Calif., Oct. 22 (AP).—To State Traffic Officer F. H. Farley's demand, "Where do you think you're going?" the answer was obviously "No place."

An automobile the officer had been chasing down the highway, with Earl Hartley at the wheel, hit a 7-foot peak of dirt piled by a road gang, and was perched on top with all wheels clear.

Hadassah Leader Flays Hitler Rule

Jewish Women Challenged to Help Save 500,000.

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Samuel E. Halprin, president of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America, at its convention today, asserted the Hitler regime in Germany is "savage and unbelieveable in its attack upon the Jews."

"The tragedy of the attack upon a loyal and devoted section of its own citizenry by the present Hitler leaders," she stated, "has aroused the protest not only of Jews, but of liberal non-Jews everywhere."

"Protest, however, is not sufficient. We are faced with the problem of saving a half million of our people. In its hour of need German Jewry has turned, naturally, with the hope born of despair, to Palestine."

Women's Club to Meet.

The Women's Community Club, of Hyattsville, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Olive street school. Mrs. H. W. Gilbertson, of Decatur Heights, and Miss Ethel Regan, home demonstration agent for Prince Georges County, will speak.

Fascists Push Fight in Austria

Home Guard Chief Asks Nation Deal Death Blow to Marxism.

Vienna, Oct. 22 (AP).—Leaders of Austria's Heimwehr, with forcible words and gestures, today resumed their demands for more vigorously carrying out the Fascist program they have mapped for the country.

Capt. Albert, Heimwehr (Home Guard) chief for lower Austria, in a speech thundered that "the Red Flag must disappear from the city hall! One hundred per cent Fascism must go through!

"Our principal enemy is still Marxism," he said, "in all its forms. Hesitation is no longer wisdom. We had better act today than tomorrow in dealing Marxism its decisive death blow.

"Let Prince Starhemberg (Heimwehr leader) rest assured that he can rely on the united front of the Heimwehr for carrying out of his commands."

Prince Starhemberg was made an honorary citizen at Kaelberhard.

World Will Listen To Italy, Says Duce

Tells 35,000 Fascists Peace Depends on Others.

Rome, Oct. 22 (AP).—Premier Mussolini told 35,000 Florentine Black Shirts here today that world peace no longer depends on Italy alone.

The Fascist assembly at the Piazza Venezia to salute the Il duce was the largest in more than a year since the Fascist revolutionary exhibition has been open.

Mussolini urged his comrades to "raise your banners and arms under the Roman sun in salute to the Fascist march, which will continue from Italy along the roads of Europe and the world.

"It is an ancient race which three times in history has given to a confused world words which had to be listened to, and which it will listen to again."

Mrs. Hofer to Wed Prince.

New Compact Has Lip Rouge Easy to Use

Octagonal Box in Center of Lid Contains Paste.

By Ruth Ann Davis.

To observe the strictest etiquette one must never apply lip rouge in public. But at times the temptation to do a wee bit of primping is almost too hard to bear. Then a compact in which the paste may be reached without attracting attention mounts to a real life saver.

Here's where the Shopper comes gallantly to the rescue. She has found a different sort of compact; a little pancakey affair with a tiny octagonal lid on top. Open the wee octagon. It discloses a generous supply of lip rouge and a mirror.

To open the gay little pancake. Use another mirror and dry the puff with puff neatly clipped to the lid. Wait, there's more to come. In the very bottom is a compartment for loose powder. The only thing the manufacturer left out, to their way of thinking, is a comb and brush.

These compacts may be purchased in delivery wood finish, or in ruby, in moire, plain green, bronze or black.

Price, $1.00.

We once heard some one say that it is cruel to furs to hang them on plain wire hangers. It is apt to cut the fur. Besides it seems a shame to hang luxurious furs and fragile gowns on plain, ordinary hangers when nice, velvet-covered ones are being sold today at a special price in an F street department store.

They come in sets of six, wrapped in cellophane, and are in the colors of the rainbow. The price today is three sets for $1.

They're piled high in a G street shop, just aching to add a bit of cheer to somber, uninteresting rooms. In quaint Colonial patterns, these hand-hooked rugs would fit neatly in most any type of surroundings or decorative scheme. Their shapes are oblong and oval and their measurements are 22 by 36 inches.

The price is $2.98.

Chair seats and mats, hand-hooked, are keeping company with the rugs in the same store. They sell for $1.25.

Halloween parties have never been known for their dignity or quietness. When witches and black cats are flapping all over the place, people are likely to do a little frolicing on their own account. And sometimes that unbridled merry-making is disastrous for the hostess' favorite tablecloths.

A slick way of circumventing this difficulty is to purchase black and orange cloths, card table size, for 25 cents. If the gang bobs for apples on them it won't be calamitous, since there is such a small investment involved.

Washington is one of the cleanest cities in the country. We all know it, and, whether we come right out and say so or not, we're quite proud of the fact. But even in Washington there's bound to be a little dirt and grime in winter. Hats may be protected from every speck of dust if they are placed in a crepe hat bag. In three layers, it resembles a sky-scraper cake with pleats down the front. A hook is in the top so that the bag may be hung in the clothes-closet.

If Aunt Fanny's old fur coat is still tantalizing moths in the attic, drag it down and make a muff out of it. Velvet ones are mighty attractive too. The hand that carries a muff is the hand that rules the world of fashion this season.

Making one is a trick at all if the muff foundation is used as a starter. A downtown store has a regular little muff tree, with straight wooden pegs holding the plump round ones, squashy flat ones and the familiar melon-shaped ones. Most of them have recessed purses with zipper tops. Velvet lines the purse and silk crepe or satin lines the muff foundation.

The prices range from 59 cents to $1.50.

The shopper has gone practical today. She's told you about such useful things as rugs, hangers and hat bags. But she's not through yet. Want to hear about some new curtains that have several virtues that ordinary curtains never think of possessing?

First, there's the little matter of selvage. These new curtains don't have any. A 1-inch hem runs up and down the sides and a 3-inch hem finishes the bottom.

Second, most ready-made curtains do not have casings at the top. These do.

Third, the material, a yarn dyed marquisette, is unusually lovely.

The price for tailored or ruffled styles, in cream, ecru or colors, is $1.29 a pair.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Plan Halloween Dance

The Blackfriars Guild is inaugurating its social season, in connection with its dramatic activities, by holding a Halloween party and dance Wednesday in Forest Glen, Md. The affair is being sponsored by Joseph Haltigan, member of the finance committee of the guild, and the proceeds will be used in connection with the forthcoming production to be given by the players, "Catharine the Valiant."

Young Minstrel

By Katherine W. Smith.

Minstrel, sing,
You with great eyes, and a voice
Soft as melancholy
Moss.

Willingly
I listen to you—wretchedly
I wait to hear more songs
Sadder than
The last.

Minstrel, sing . . .
Once I had great eyes, and a voice
Soft as a sleeping smile—
I have forgotten
Where I sang
My songs.

Home Facial Works Miracle On Tired Skin

Egg White Stimulates Tissues and Closes Pores; Yolk Bleaches Spots.

Facials are a luxury that many business women and housewives can not afford from a time standpoint as well as a monetary one. On those occasions when the busy woman wishes her skin to look its best, and has only a few minutes in which to give it attention, she will find an egg mask efficient for tightening the pores. And any woman knows that make-up goes on much more smoothly when the skin is firm and tight.

The white of the egg has been used for this purpose for many years. Now some adventurous creature has discovered that the yolk has an important part to play in this pick-up facial. It bleaches and removes discolorations.

Here are the directions: separate the yolk from the white and smear the white on the face; when it has dried thoroughly, smear the yolk on top of it; let the yolk dry; leave hardened mask on face for few minutes, then remove with cold water.

This simple and inexpensive process leaves the skin glowing with vitality and gives firmness to the facial muscles. It also works miracles with sagging chins and pouches beneath the eyes.

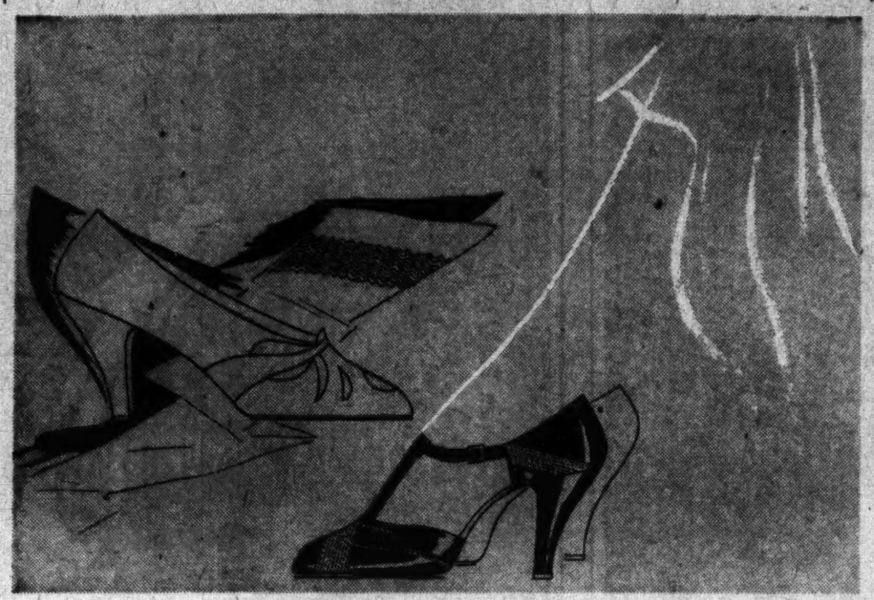
Only those skins that are extremely dry require a powder base after the egg facial. Normal and oily skins avoid that heavy, made-up appearance if powder is applied immediately after the egg mask has been removed.

A priestly robe in luxurious velvet comes from the house of Schiaparelli. Bishop sleeves and wide lapels highlight the coat's body. The new slimness and elegance are successfully brought to the fore in the long sweep from shoulder to hem. Schiaparelli has gone back to real buttons and button-holes for this model as well as several others in her collection this season.

What's in Fashion?

New Evening Sandals and Pumps Focus Attention on Front Trim

Directed by Amos Parrish.



Information as to where articles of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

New York, Oct. 23.—Step out in full regalia with a pair of newest evening slippers and you can almost hear a silent order "eyes front" given to observers. Eyes can't help focusing on the front of your new shoes. Especially if you're wearing a sheath-like dress which shows so much more of the front of shoes than the billowy skirts used to do.

Front trimming in new slippers is the thing. Open work embroidery over the vamp, elaborate stitching, strippings, mesh inserts and cut-outs.

And this front decoration makes the T-strap sandal the most fashionable shoe you can wear. Because this shoe, in its own design, has front interest in its center strap.

Stitched Gold Kid.

That's a T-strap shown at the right in the illustration. And it is trimmed with bands of stitched gold kid.

When you buy such a shoe in white...satin or crepe...and have it dyed to match your dress, the satin (or crepe) and the stitching come out the same color while the kid remains gold.

The same is true, of course, of shoes trimmed with silver kid or with combinations of gold-and-silver.

The plain opera pump, dyed to match the dress, is still in fashion. But right now it is being worn more with the less formal evening costume.

Newest formal pumps have front trimming. And in the one sketched, cut-outs outlined in gold or silver do the trick.

Open work embroidery is another favorite way of trimming the front of the pump. And this gives much the same effect as cut-outs.

Light Beige Hose.

The stockings you wear with evening clothes should be as sheer as you can find. The sheen of ingrains is especially in keeping with the sheen of many smart evening dress fabrics.

Light beige is the best all-around color. Or if your dress has a pinkish or rosy cast, try the pinkish beiges.

If you're wearing sandals, you'll surely want sandal foot hose with reinforcements narrowed down so they do not show at the shank nor through the cut-outs.

And a new idea is the stocking with two-way stretching material inserted just above the knee—which not only helps keep them neat—but which makes the stocking flexible for dancing positions.

Sandals and pumps are the thing for wear with formal afternoon dresses, too. Though of course, they're different from the evening ones.

What they're like—and what the other correct afternoon accessories are—is described and illustrated in a leaflet which you may have by following the instructions on the coupon below.

Mrs. Roosevelt Urges Woman's Right to Work

Has the married woman a right to work? Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt answers the question with a pretty emphatic "Yes," and declares that in her opinion it is un-American to tell any one who wants to work that he or she can not do so.

Under the title "Married Women in Business," in the Woman's Home Companion, Mrs. Roosevelt says:

"And now, in a topsy-turvy world we are suddenly asked whether married women shall have the right to hold jobs or not? We have never questioned the right of the rich boy to go out and hold a job. Yet he may have failed to see the connection between bread and work, while the great majority of married women who work are constantly conscious of it.

"But the necessity of earning money is not the only reason why married women or unmarried women work. Often it may spoil a person's usefulness and his happiness if he is prevented from expressing himself in work which he enjoys.

Dolly Madison Autographs Go Under Hammer

Famous "Home, Sweet Home," Written By John Payne, Auctioned.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Sale of an original autographed copy of the famous poem, "Home Sweet Home," written by John Howard Payne, brought $515 at an auction here.

The poem was included in a collection of autographs and documents retained by Dolly Madison after the death of her husband, James Madison, fourth President of the United States.

Payne wrote out the poem for Mrs. Madison, a relative, during a visit shortly before her death. A pencil note on the manuscript reads:

"Payne was of Jewish parentage."

Genealogical records show that his mother was Sarah Isaacs, whose father, a converted Jew, settled on Long Island before the Revolution.

Included in Mrs. Madison's collection were original writings by Presidents Washington, Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Madison, Monroe, Buchanan, Lincoln, Zachary Taylor, Polk, Benjamin Harrison, and Tyler.

One letter in the group was written in 1850 by James Buchanan, the only bachelor President, to Annie Payne, Dolly Madison's niece. It acknowledged an invitation to Miss Payne's wedding.

"It was bad enough in all conscience to announce the fact to me so suddenly," the letter said, ". . . but in the same epistle to invite me to your wedding was still worse. Nevertheless, in order to try the strength of my nerves, I intend to go. . . . My age (he was 59) alone prevented me from contending with the doctor for the prize."

Simple Afternoon Frock Here at Last

Fills Much Needed Gap Between Day and Formal Dress.

For years it has been next to impossible to find a simple afternoon dress. Things the shops offered for afternoon were much too fancy in line and decorative detail. In fact, many of the better shops refused to have anything to do with them but stuck to day clothes and evening clothes with never a costume for "in-between."

This wretched state of affairs has been changed by the introduction of rich fabrics and simple lines in afternoon models. One especially attractive creation, of metal threaded crepe, has long, fitted sleeves, a diagonal line on the skirt, and a soft oval collar which is slightly ruffled.

Another smart one is black velvet, high-necked in front with deep oblong decolletage in back. A little jacket with three-quarter length sleeves, to be worn with this gown, comes right up under the chin with never a break in the front's smooth surface and only a tiny slit in back, at the closing.

Good Sandwich Contains Well Balanced Food

Endless Variety Possible With Tasty Fillings and Forms.

By Ruth Chambers.

Sandwiches take many forms, from the hasty, between-meal bites consisting of a slice of meat between two slices of bread to the elaborate grilled or open-face spread, which is in itself a hearty meal, and to the dainty, fancy-cut affairs of the bridge-tea tables and including the tasty sandwiches which are taken on picnics or form the basis of the school children's box lunches.

A good sandwich presents food in well-balanced form, with the starch of the bread, the protein in the various fillings, and the vitamins supplied by lettuce, relish or other ingredients which may be used.

Since sandwiches are used on so many varied occasions, one can never have too many suggestions for spreads or for ways of using them.

Here's a toasted ham sandwich which is suitable for Sunday night supper and which, with a beverage, is a complete meal.

Toasted Ham Sandwich.

Chop ½ cup mustard pickle with 1½ cups finely chopped ham and mix well. Spread 6 slices of bread with butter and 6 slices with the ham mixture. Lay the buttered slices over the others. Add ¼ cup milk to one beaten egg; season with a little pepper. Dip each sandwich lightly into the egg mixture and place on a buttered pan. Toast on each side until a golden brown.

Bacon and Peanut Butter Spreads.

An appetizing sandwich spread is made by frying bacon until it is quite crisp, then mincing it and mixing well with peanut butter. Spread this on a slice of bread and lay over it slices of tomato and then another piece of bread. The tomatoes should be peeled.

Corned Beef Sandwiches.

Corned beef and mustard sandwiches are especially good when made with rye bread. Grind the corned beef to make half a cup. Add one teaspoon chopped sweet pickle and prepared mustard to taste. Spread between buttered white and rye bread.

Open-Face Sandwiches.

Open-face sandwiches look very festive and fit in well for party menus, to serve after the bridge game, for instance. Make several kinds of them, including one or two sweet sandwiches to take the place of cake or cookies.

Bread for these sandwiches is better if it is 24 hours old. Your utensils should include a set of fancy sandwich cutters, a sharp knife to cut the bread, a silver knife for spreading and bowls to hold the various filings.

Here are some recipes:

Liver sausage—Mash the sausage, spread on triangles of buttered bread. The edge may be sprinkled with a border of egg yolk which has been put through a sieve. Or you may decorate some of them with a border of chopped sweet pickle.

Minced ham—Moisten the ham with mayonnaise; spread rounds or oblongs of buttered bread with the ham mixture; garnish with finely minced green pepper, finely chopped hard-cooked egg white or chopped pickle.

Ham and cucumber salad—Mix minced ham and mayonnaise; cut rounds of whole wheat or graham bread about 2 inches in diameter. Spread each with the ham mixture and place a cucumber slice in the center of each. (These sandwiches should be served soon after making so that the cucumbers keep their crispness.)

For the sweet sandwiches, marmalade or raspberry jam may be used with a border of cream cheese softened with a little cream.

For picnic sandwiches, beef loaf forms a tasty and satisfying spread.

Beef Loaf.

2 pounds ground beef
¾ cup bread crumbs
2 eggs
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
½ cup milk

Mix ground beef and bread crumbs. Add beaten eggs, salt, pepper, onion and green pepper. Moisten with milk and mix well. Bake in a buttered pan for one hour in a slow oven. When cold, slice thin. Put between thin slices of buttered bread. Spread a little chili sauce on the meat.

Coiffure and Hat Designed This Season For Harmony

Headdress and Chapeaux to Work Together for Better Effects.

By Mary K. Dickson,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—The headdress and hat this winter will have that made-for-each-other look.

This is the aim of creative hat designers and hairdressers in presenting, this week, a new type of fashion revue at the convention of New York State Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' Association.

One hat shown was mostly a huge velvet strap, with curls visible on both sides.

There was a "widow's peak" shaped hat, of close-fitting velvet, which came down on the forehead to a decided point almost between the eyes. It was cut high on the sides, making the hat almost a strip from front to back, where it was also pointed. The hair, in soft curls, followed the outline of the hat. It was higher—and in smoother waves—over the ears, then dropped down in a mass of curls on the back of the neck.

Daytime hats tended toward simplicity in the crown in order not to muss up the hair.

Most of the hair styles shown at the convention have featured the higher hairdress. The locks are waved, combed or curled up in the back, and curls are banked on top of the head. Or the hair is so parted as to bring it forward on the sides, with curls over, or just behind, the ears.

And there were variations of the pompadour, cockscomb, swirl, and of hairdresses suggesting demureness, sophistication, and coquetry.

Ringlets and wisps of hair on the forehead were sometimes so treated as to make a halo for the face—now that hats are having off-the-face effects.

An NRA hairdress had banks of curls arranged to represent an eagle with spread wings.

Peasant Frocks in Vogue

Smockings in clever color combinations adorn peasant dresses for informal afternoons. In a number of instances embroidered wool flowers are substituted for the smocking with delightful results.

Ruchings outline the neck and front of bengaline tailored dresses, to relieve the tailored severity of the models. Others show the sailor influence with crinkled crepe collars in contrasting colors.

The Family Marketer

Pickled Olives Tasty; New Porcelain Dish Preserves Greens.

The marketer has discovered something just a little different in olives. A market man pickles the green ones himself in a big barrel, letting them stand in salt and water for "miebbe two, mebbe three years," he says, and he will sell them to you for 3 cents a quart. They are delicious. The marketer knows, because she tried one herself. The same man sells green olives, if any ambitious housewife would like to do some experimental pickling. Green olives, 15 cents a pound.

Loose leaves of lettuce and stray stalks of celery are often wasted because they wilt. In a downtown store you can get covered porcelain containers for your ice box which will keep raw vegetables fresh and crisp. Only 50 cents, too, for the large size, 25 cents for the small.

Green peppers are 15 cents a dozen. The marketer saw some fine stringless beans at 10 cents a pound. Wax beans, the yellow variety, are the same price.

In a northeast market you can get four grapefruit for 15 cents. Apples that are really russet are 25 cents for 6 pounds. They are called "Kansas Blacks." Bananas sell for 10, 15 and 20 cents a dozen. The ripest ones are the cheapest. Avacados are 15 and 20 cents. Do you remember the time when they were 35 cents apiece? Honeydew melons are two for 25 cents.

At a stall in a northwest market you can get fancy boneless cod for 35 cents a pound. As the proprietor points out, this may be more expensive than in other stores, but there are no wastes, no bones and full value for your money.

Today is the day for leftovers. Yesterday's lamb can be served sliced. The remainder of the cabbage from Friday's salad can be chopped into slaw.

It is sometimes practical to boil a rather large quantity of rice at one time, since it can be put to a variety of uses, soups, stuffings, puddings and what not, and will keep quite a while in a covered bowl in the ice box.

Peppers Stuffed With Rice and Cheese.

4 green peppers
1½ cups grated cheese
1½ cups cooked rice
1 lot chooped onion
1 teaspoon chopped onion
2 teaspoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Paprika to taste.

Cut off thin slice from stem end of pepper, remove seeds. Parboil peppers 2 minutes in salted water, drain and rill with mixture of remaining ingredients. Put as much stuffing in each pepper as it will hold, and cover top with grated cheese. Place in a greased baking dish and bake about 20 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.), increasing the heat the last five minutes to brown on top.

No End of Books

Sinclair Lewis Collaborating on Play About the Civil War; Morrow Follows Scribner's Lead in Battle Against Cut-Price Books.

Fiery-haired Sinclair Lewis has in one bound left the noval and the contemporary American scene. In a New York midtown hotel room he is hard at work with Lloyd Lewis on a play about the Civil War.

Scribner's courageous lead in shutting off the source of cut-rate books has just been followed by William Morrow & Co. For 14 months they will not sell "remainder sheets," and they declare they will destroy all sheets and bound copies of books published by them before January 1, 1932, which have no ready, legitimate market now. "The step," they say, "which Charles Scribner's Sons have taken is a challenge to all who are concerned with the welfare of the book business."

"Allow me to congratulate you most heartily on your latest contribution, 'The Crime of Cuba,' to the traditional ties of Cuban-American friendship, based on fair play, real understanding and justice. It is a pleasure to think that we have such friends in the United States." So writes the President of Cuba, Ramon Grau San Martin, to Carleton Beals, author of the above-named book, published by Lippincott.

Fusion headquarters at 1501 Broadway, in New York, have just issued the "Fusion Handbook," which contains a word-sketch of LaGuardia, by Henry F. Pringle, biographer of Theodore Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith.

The Nazis have banned the September number of Harper's in Germany, because of what Leon Trotzky says in an article therein called "What Hitler Wants."

Work for the Night Is Coming.

A homily, "MORE POWER TO YOU!" by Walter B. Pitkin; Simon & Schuster, $1.75.

With the text, "You can double your efficiency after a litlte training," Mr. Pitkin thunders from the pulpit to all those congregated under the "modern" creed that nothing matters in the world but work.

We have just so much energy, he says. So we must get the most out of it. Find out for yourself, then, the best diet, the efficacious stimulants, the proper temperature and humidity of air in which to work. Discover your emotional rhythms, and do the most important job when you're up and the routine job when you're down. Warm up. Keep going. Plan and plan. From this section entitled "Power Plant" he proceeds to "Transmission Line"—clear all wires, learn the art of attention, keep interested, be your own self-starter. In the last section, "Workshop," he deals with fatigue and relaxation, rules of sleep, and means of efficiency.

There is really no telling how you will like the book, what you will get out of it. Mr. Pitkin himself reiterates that we are all very different. Perhaps you will find it appallingly strenuous and self-righteous; "self-help" books may be indigestible for you. Or you will be stirred up into a fever of New Year's resolutions, filling out your chest and glowing with new strength. There is no doubt that Mr. Pitkin is forceful and wise in his own lights. He writes vigorously and persuasively. He himself is an arch-exponent of all he preaches.

But when his credo goes to his head, and he asserts in all seriousness that we should keep our evenings dull, merely that we may sleep better and so work more efficiently next day, I for one feel a slight nausea and rise up and leave Mr. Pitkin. THEODORE HALL.

Love by Formula.

A novel, "LOVE'S A PUZZLE," by Faith Baldwin; Farrar and Rinehart, $2.00.

Faith Baldwin is well acquainted with the commercial formula. "Love's a Puzzle," serialized in Goodhousekeeping under the title "Jigsaw," was designed to please those who have liked Miss Baldwin's other stories. Probably it will not increase her following.

The plot is as complicated as the title implies. An attractive young man, Peter Lambert, loves a charming girl, Marjorie, who is just as much in love with him. But, of course, if the love affair progressed smoothly there would be no story. So Miss Baldwin makes use of the threadbare device of presenting one obstacle after another to make life as painful as possible for those two who are, after all, nothing but pieces of a great puzzle.

It is not objectionable that Miss Baldwin employs an old method, but in this case the commercial formula is so obvious that it detracts from the thread of the narrative. The first hitch in the love affair is the least convincing of all—Margie refrains from admitting to Peter that she really loves him because she feels that she is too young to be sure about it. And that is a bit over-sensible for a girl of 18. Then follows Peter's entanglement with Gloria Ramsey, for no very good reason, and Margie's interlude with Kim Crosby, who has been in love with Peter's mother, and has come to visit her in hopes that her husband will eventually give her a divorce.

One knows from the first, however, that whatever may happen in the interim, everything will finally turn out all right. "Love's a Puzzle," then, is simply the average motion picture between covers. It will be read and enjoyed by those who want light entertainment which entails little thought on the part of the reader.

Air Travelers Seldom Afraid, Says Hostess

Doris Frost Spends Much of Her Time in Clouds, on Transport Plane.

Atlanta, Oct. 23 (AP).—The average airplane passenger's curiosity concerns speed, altitude, and landing fields, Miss Doris Frost, who spends most of her life up in the air on her job as airplane hostess, says.

"The only two frightened passengers I ever had were men, and I'm not so sure they were really scared," she said in explaining her duties.

Miss Frost flies for the Eastern Air Transport, Inc., between Atlanta and New York. She is on duty two days and rests one.

"People seem to think it is difficult to find girls willing to be air hostesses," Miss Frost commented, "but we have on file 15,000 written applications for the job. We have been discouraging applications for the past two years, so there must be 15,000 more who would like to apply."

The combined weight of a hostess and her baggage must be less than 125 pounds. She must be between 21 and 28 years of age, and preference is given to college graduates.

The air hostess has to chat with passengers and serve them beverages and sandwiches. If a baby is sent alone on a plane—and it has been done—the air hostess has to look after it and see that the baby is safely delivered to responsible persons at the destination.

American Girl Most Lovely In Simple Garb

Too Beautiful, Says Designer to Need Furbelows and Frills.

The American woman has such beauty of face and figure that she does not need to wear elaborate or startling gowns to attract attention.

That is the belief of Chales Le Maire, young American designer, who has consistently refused to yield to the season's dictum for dramatic and ornamented costumes. He features smooth, wearable silhouettes with no unnecessary detail, and explains it this way:

"The American woman, really the most beautiful woman in the world—I honestly mean this—knows that her face and her figure are her fortune, and that she does not have to apologize for them. Her gown must emphasize her, focus attention on her good points, not attract to itself because of the elaborate complexity of its lines and trimming effects."

Although this young designer first became known in the theater, where he designed clothes for many of Broadway's leading stars, his interest is directed today particularly to the smart American woman whose career is in her social life and her home.

He uses fur cleverly in trimming, particularly mink and ermine on afternoon and evening costumes. One striking model uses ermine lapels on black velvet in an original manner: "Charlie, jr." is a tea, dinner, theater, Sunday night and speakeasy ensemble. This costume has a quite tailored broacaded shirt waist with a four-inch band tie of black velvet, worn over a black velvet skirt. The ensemble is completed with a man's dress coat done in black velvet, with ermine lapels above a double breasted buttoning.

"Charlie" is an afternoon dress of black and gray satin, a gray blouse and black skirt—the blouse is very masculine in cut, though shaped to the figure, with an interesting feminine touch in black and cut steel clips fastening the blouse at the front.

Half-Forgotten Romances of American History

Mary Victoria Leiter—George Nathaniel Curzon

Mary Victoria Leiter, left, and Marquess Curzon, former Viceroy of India, to whose international romance stands a memorial in the form of a chapel in Kedleston Parish Church, England. Lord Curzon searched throughout Europe for the most beautiful of marbles with which to construct it.

By Elisabeth E. Poe.

In Kedleston Parish Church England, there is a lovely memorial chapel, a gem of architecture within that ancient Norman shrine, that is a witness to a beautiful international romance, the love story of a Washington girl and a nobleman of Great Britain, that of Mary Victoria Leiter, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter, of Washington, and the late Marquess Curzon, former Viceroy of India and high in councils of the empire.

Lord Curzon lavished all his grief for his gracious wife in the exquisite fittings and adornments of the chapel. Perhaps this tribute to his lost love was inspired by memories of that matchless memorial in India to another woman, loved greatly and "lost awhile," the Taj Mahal, the mausoleum built by the Emperor Shah Jehan for his favorite, Mumtaz Mahal.

Even as Shah Jehan ransacked the known world for precious stones, marbles and costly hangings for the Taj Mahal, Lord Curzon visited the quarries of Derbyshire, of Italy, of Belgium, and even Russia searching for the most beautiful of marbles for the memorial chapel. The churches of many lands were laid under contribution to provide either the originals, or failing these, the models for the chapel furniture.

Some Sources of Setting.

From Venice came the silver lamps; from Genoa the crimson velvet altar cloth; from Portugal the crucifix; from Spain the eighteenth century candlesticks upon the altar and the carved and painted wooden panels of sixteenth century work representing the Descent from the Cross and the Adoration; from Mexico the silver lectern, and from Germany the wrought iron hanging electrolier. All these, though, were but the setting for the main feature of the fane, a tomb of white Serravezza marble, on which repose the recumbent figures of Lord and Lady Curzon, over whom bend two angels holding out to them the celestial crown of love.

A verse from Dante G. Rossetti's "Blessed Damozel" is graven on the tomb. It reads:

"There will I ask of Christ, the Lord,
Thus much for Him and me
Only to live as once on earth
With love, only to be
As then awhile, for ever now
Together, I and He."

The romance of Mary Victoria Leiter and George Nathaniel Marquess Curzon of Kedleston is truly a half-forgotten one in this city, but still there are Washingtonians who recall the circumstances atnd the happy young lovers who made their idyll one that was international news at the time.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter came to Washington from Chicago preceded by stories of great wealth and generosity in the last quarter of the nineteenth century. At first, the Leiters lived in the James G. Blaine mansion, on Dupont Circle, at Massachusetts avenue, but later built the imposing house still standing and in possession of the Leiter family at Dupont Circle and New Hampshire avenue northwest.

Belle of That Period.

Mary Victoria Leiter was a charming belle of the period, well educated, intellectual and much interested in world politics. Possibly she had heard of the rising young British statesman, George Curzon, one-time member of the House of Commons, rich, fascinating. A future leader of the Empire was the well-nigh universal prediction concerning him. He, on his part, had known the friendship of many talented and beautiful women. But in 1890, when he met Miss Leiter for the first time, he had passed his thirtieth birthday, he was still a bachelor and once had remarked that a man's wedding day "was the commencement of extreme happiness, discreditable indifference or superlative misery."

When he met Mary Victoria Leiter by chance in a London ballroom that summer, they felt an immediate interest in one another. Their attachment quickly passed the merely acquaintanceship stage. It had progressed so far by the end of that season that they exchanged tokens when they parted, he giving her an ancient Indian amulet and she taking a pearl from her priceless chain of these gems and having it set as a tie pin for him—"as emblematic of the tear I shed on leaving London," she wrote in the letter accompanying her gift.

After a visit through the Italian Tyrol, Miss Leiter returned to London en route to America. They had a brief reunion. After her return to America, they corresponded steadily. He was writing a book on Persia, and she encouraged him in it by an abiding interest in its progress.

The next season, the summer of 1891, the Leiters are once more in London. The friendship deepened, and when George Curzon, restless ever, went on another trip around the world, her collection of foreign stamps rose by leaps and bounds. In 1892 the Leiters again passed the summer in Europe, but only a few days in London. The friends of both of them now were predicting a union of hearts across the seas, as it were, and it was undeniably a full-blown romance.

Secretly Engaged Two Years.

It was on March 2, 1895, that their engagement was made public. At that time the prospective bridegroom was on the top of the Pamirs, and Lord Pembroke said to him in his letter of congratulation: "It was clever of you and extremely characteristic to get engaged to Miss Leiter in Washington from the top of the Pamirs; you must tell me how it was done."

The truth was that a secret engagement—known only to Miss Leiter's parents—had existed between them for two years. They had become engaged in Paris on March 3, 1893, when Lord Curzon was on his way home from the second trip around the world. He had told her he felt they were destined for each other. The mutual pledge of secrecy and fidelity had been given gladly. It was faithfully kept.

Washington was excited when it learned that the wedding would take place here on April 22, 1895. It was a brilliant event, all of social Washington attending the function.

The universal sentiment and good will for the young people was voiced by an old friend who wrote: 'I rejoice in your prospect of happiness. I think over my friendship with you and with him and collect my memories and put them side by side. They all seem to fall naturally into place together, as if the two lives were made to be lived together, and as if each had found the twin soul which halved their own. I am sure it is so—sure that for you and for him life is henceforward to be a complete and beautiful thing."

With this benediction of friendship upon them, their married life was launched. In all the honors that came to him, Viceroy of India, the Vicereine never failed in her exacting duties. The American wife of Great Britain's representative to this mighty subject people was quoted, admired and respected. With almost regal state they ruled for England.

Becomes Famed Hostess.

Back to Washington came news of how the little Leiter girl of yesterday was now one of the great hostesses of the world. In her famous peacock dress in which leading artists were delighted to depict her, she held in her hands the social sway of this far flung corner of the British Empire.

But she was more than hostess to the Viceroy. She was his helpmeet, his companion and in India, where other intimacies were denied to him, he turned with ever increasing dependence and delight to the one source of comfort open to him. She was his constant admirer, too, and once she wrote of this phase of their relationship: "There is no happiness so great to a woman, as the admiration she can feel in the depths of her heart for her Beloved-est."

Their marital happiness was of little more than ten years duration. In 1904, she became ill. For two years he went through that greatest of all agony to sit helplessly by and see one's beloved suffering tortures of almost constant pain. The world, his advancement, his work all were forgotten by Lord Curzon as he knelt at her bedside and, perhaps, those words of an American poet. "The most exquisite theme of poetry is a beautiful woman in death."

Lady Curzon died July 18, 1906. The blow was a terrific one for the husband and 12 months later he acknowledged in a letter to a friend: "I am conscious of no courage, only a sort of mute endurance."

In that memorial chapel at Kedleston is the lasting record of this outstanding romance.

Avalanche of Antique Styles Follows Mae West's Bustles

Victorian Fads Smother Among Throwbacks to 16th Century.

New York (AP).—Revivals of the old in fall and winter fashions are limited to no particular period, even though Queen Victoria and Mae West have received the bulk of the credit.

Girl on Billboard Starts Hat Style

Milady's hats are usually designed by experts who know styles inside and out and who take pride in their ability to forecast months in advance just which way Dame Fashion will jump. But every now and then the combination of an advertising artist and his creation serves to establish a new vogue and a new demand.

This autumn a little felt hat, now popularly known as the "Racer," has swept the country. In such charming colors as Dundee Green, Mole, Taupe, Henna, Stone Beige and many other seasonal shades, this latest creation had its genesis in the deft touches and the acute style sense of an advertising artist.

Last spring K. E. Johnson was commissioned to paint a poster to advertise a motor fuel. By September billboards from Maine to Louisiana presented a pretty young lady behind the wheel of a sports roadster. Not only did she help to make new friends for the fuel, her assigned task, but hardly had her picture appeared than the fuel company began to hear from the Nation's women. They wanted to know where they could buy the hat. A hat manufacturer is now featuring it as one of the popular fall numbers.

Some of the new modes in hats, for instance, date back to the sixteenth century reign of a Persian shah, Abbas the Great.

An exhibit of Islamic paintings at the Metropolitan Museum shows princes and other nobles of that period wearing large turbans with feathers and flowers.

Queen Anne collars have been handed down to 1933, along with high ones having little white edges turned down over the top, like those on great aunt's black shirtwaists.

Gibson Girl Revived.

The Gibson girl's shirtwaist mode also has been revived, with the new ones made of striped shirting. More elaborate fabrics and more exaggerated styles are predicted.

The long, dramatic, almost military cape is said to be a Sarah Bernhardt model. It is popular, made of white bengaline and black velvet, with a stiff stand-up collar.

The 1840's have contributed their quota of hat styles. The war has given a skirt silhouette and from a generation which many can remember has come the school girl sailor hat with a streamer in the back, and the bonnet which sometimes is of black velvet lined with pink velvet. A couple of tiny ostrich feathers are tucked under the brim.

Football Remains Modern.

Almost the ohly outfit entirely modern is seen in the football stadium. There it is popular to wear color contrasts that indicate the pennants of the colleges involved in the game.

"Pick your game and let your costume tell which side you are rooting for," is the advice of one fashion authority to college girls and alumnae.

A little borrowing, however, has taken place even in sports clothes. The tyrolean hat with the peaked crown and a jaunty feather once was characteristic of the Alpine peasants. Great Britain's traditional ruggedness is seen in other college styles.

"Studio Secrets" Presented.

The Takoma Park Women's Club, under the auspices of the ways and means committee, Mrs. Frederick A. Johnston, chairman, is sponsoring a "New Studio Secrets," to be presented tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the Trinity Parish Hall, Dahlia street and Piney Branch road. "Studio Secrets" will take you behind the scenes of a radio broadcasting station, using special radio apparatus, designed and built by Dr. Albert A. Spear.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Baden Helps Friendship House Provide Activities for Boys and Girls.

Friendship House, the social center and settlement located at 324 Virginia avenue southeast, is the object of most of the welfare activities of Mrs. James H. Baden, who is a member of the board. But she also finds time for activities as a board member of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society. Her interest in Friendship House is due to the fact that it not only supplies a neighborly atmosphere for the whole of the southeast, but takes care of little ones in its day nursery as well as guiding the activities of the older boys and girls through the various clubs which it promotes and fosters.

Inasmuch as the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society centers a good percentage of its activities in the southeast section, Mrs. Baden, who is devoted to the upbuilding and improvement of that section, is active on the board of this society She also finds time to do a vital piece of work in the Community Chest campaign, being an enthusiastic supporter of the Chest.

Through it all, however, Friendship House ranks first. Of it she says:

"My interest in Friendship House is vital, because I feel that it most truly expresses the answer to the problem of human needs. The people that come to this settlement come there because they are in need. It is not only food and shelter that they require. They bring their problems and their troubles to Friendship House for advice and instruction and this service is cheerfully rendered. At Friendship House I work with the people direct. I can see their side of what the depression has done to them. I find that in every respect Friendship House is what the ideal settlement should be, a good neighbor."

Jangled nerves can make married life miserable

In so many cases it's not the big, important things that make married life unhappy. It's the little sharp words... the bickering... the nagging... the jangled nerves.

And the dangerous thing is that we frequently don't even realize that our nerves are upset until it is too late.

The more alive you are, the more high-strung, the more carefully you must watch yourself.

Get your full amount of sleep every night. Eat regularly and sensibly. Find time for recreation. And smoke Camels ... for Camel's costlier tobaccos never get on your nerves.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand of cigarettes!

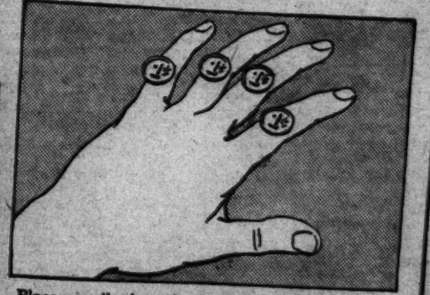
TEST No. 5



Place a small coin on the back of each spread finger, approximately at the large knuckle joint. Flip the coins in the air... turn your hand over. Can you catch them all the first time? You should be able to catch them in one of your first 3 tries.

Owen Visions City as World's Most Beautiful

Board of Trade Head Cites Architectural, Cultural Strides.

This is the fifth of a series dealing with home construction, with particular reference to Washington.

By Claude W. Owen,
President of the Washington Board of Trade.

Desirable living conditions stimulate the growth of a city. Public and private improvements which add to the comfort and pleasure of urban life normally result in an increase in realty values.

The last few years have been momentous ones in the improvement of living and working conditions in Washington, which has enjoyed for many years a reputation for residential attractiveness. Some of these gains have resulted from the continuation of policies initiated over a long period of time and others from new developments. The future holds promise of a steady acceleration of the program of improvement.

The District has long been noted for its high-class residential character. According to the census of 1930, 67 per cent of all the homes in this city were valued at more than $7,500. This fact has been and will continue to be an advantage to those taking up residence in Washington.

Steady Gains Forecast.

The appearance of streets, parks, bridges and public buildings plays an important part in establishing the tone or class of a residential area. Washington is undergoing an esthetic development which, when completed, will make the city the most beautiful in the world. This program will contribute substantially to the growth of the city and will be reflected in a sound and progressive enhancement of District realty values. It will bring an increasing permanent population, either employed or retired, and also an increasing volume of temporary visitors, with accompanying stimulation of hotel and retail trade.

Unique among municipalities, Washington has two financial sponsors for the ambitious program of building a city known over the globe for its beauty—the District Government and the Federal Government. The visitor entering Washington through the handsome Union Station may see at once upward of $200,000,000 worth of new building activity between the station and the Capitol. Immediately in sight is the Capitol-Union Station-Plaza development which enlarges the Capitol grounds and elaborates a plan which has been under consideration for more than half a century.

Beauty is Arresting.

Already in place halfway between the Union Station and the Capitol is the beautiful reflecting pool in which is mirrored the dome of the Capitol. Adjacent is the magnificent new fountain, pronounced by experts who have studied the best in foreign lands to be the most beautiful fountain in the world. Facing the Capitol as a companion building to the Library of Congress is the new Supreme Court Building, costing $15,000,000. Close neighbor to the Supreme Court Building is one of the most artistic buildings in the entire world—the Folger Memorial Library. Directly south of the Capitol is the new $10,000,000 House Office Building.

Connecting Union Station with historic Pennsylvania avenue is a spacious new avenue, and starting from the foot of the Capitol and continuing up Pennsylvania avenue there is in the process of completion what many authorities agree is the most remarkable public improvement building program in the history of the world. A series of stately buildings reflecting the finest architecture of modern times will stretch in snowy majesty for over a mile. Within this area will be housed many of the departments of the Government. In the opinion of many students of art, this architectural ensemble will be one of the show places of the world.

Many Jobs Finished.

To the south of the present Treasury Department tremendous improvements have already been completed, including the Lincoln Memorial, facing an exquisite reflectng pool half a mile in length and having at its back the Arlington Memorial, facing an exquisite reflecting reunion of the North and South. At the Virginia end of this bridge there begins the Mount Vernon highway, running straight to the ancestral home of the Nation's first President and considered by highway engineers to be the finest stretch of road in the world.

The main part of the new Federal development of Washington will face Pennsylvania avenue on one side and the newly built Constitution avenue on the other. On the north side of Pennsylvania avenue, from Third street to Sixth street, the District development of the city will be concentrated. It will be known as the municipal center and will consist chiefly of two imposing buildings, one of which will house the administrative part of the District government and the other the police and municipal courts. It will be one of the most artistic municipal centers in the world and the buildings will be in architectural accord with the Federal development to the south.

Cultural Side Enhanced.

In anticipation of the National Government's building Washington into a city of unrivaled architectural fame, new cultural trends have been directed toward the city and the present augmented importance of Washington in economic and political affairs will have increasing influence in attracting new educational and scientific advantages to the city. The indications are that Washington will not only be an architectural Mecca, but an intellectual one as well.

The establishment two years ago in Washington of the Folger Memorial Library expressed the faith of the donor in the cultural future of the city. It has the most complete collection of Shakespearean works in the world, including what Mr. Folger himself called the "most precious book in the world"—the Vincent first folio of 1623, containing the earliest printed versions of 20 of the 37 plays comprising the Shakespeare canon. This book and other rare volumes were brought to Washington in an armored car with five guards.

On Constitution avenue the National Academy of Sciences recently completed an impressive edifice and by selecting Washington for its site has testified to the assured scientific importance of the city. For the last 10 years a great many scientific and educational organizations have been establishing headquarters in Washington as a vantage ground for research into economic, social and scientific problems. Among these should be mentioned the Brookings Institution, the National Council of Research and the National Council of Learned Societies.

The Bureau of Standards, long noted for its value to students of exact science, will play an increasingly important role as a national rendezvous for famous scientists over the Nation and abroad. The Congressional Library, now reported to be the largest in the world, has added to its stock in the last few years many rare volumes prized by scholars everywhere. This institution already is used far and wide by students and teachers and investigators who are coming in increasing numbers to stay in Washington while writing books and theses.

In addition to the Library of Congress, Washington has other world-noted libraries, which also attract students and writers all over the country. The Army Medical Library, with 600,000 volumes, is the largest in the world. The library of the Agricultural Department, containing some 200,000 books and tracts, is the most complete of its kind in existence. The Bureau of Railway Economics, with more than 125,000 catalogued items, is the largest library of railroad and transportation literature in the world. The Department of Commerce Library, with 100,000 volumes, is of inestimable importance to the student of current economics, and the library of the Geological Survey has the finest collection of books on geology known. The Congressional Library contains the third greatest collection of books on music.

Student Population Heavy.

The rare richness of the intellectual resources of the District is attested by the fact that the city has a per capita student population greater than that of any other municipality in the Nation. More than 30,000 students attend institutions of higher learning in the District, there being 14 colleges and universities within the city's limits.

The city boasts of one of the finest public school systems in the Nation and a number of high-class finishing schools.

The District has as spacious streets and avenues as any city in the world, with park areas in proportion. Its 100 square miles contain 655 parks with an aggregate area of 4,264 acres.

Development Is Guarded.

Its municipal administration is steady and consistent under the supervision of the Federal Government. Efficient care of streets, a sound building code, a supervisory council of city architects passing on residential construction work, an intelligent attention to the symmetrical development of the city through zoning ordinances protecting the values of residential property have for a number of years been characteristic of the partnership between the District government and the National Government in their joint administration of the municipal affairs of Washington.

The continued increase in population and improved living conditions will cause not only an increase of realty values within the limited area of the District, but also will stimulate the growth of adjacent suburban areas.

Tomorrow—Arthur Heaton tells of the home renovize movement.

Another Step Into Business

Demand for Data on Salaries Further Evidence of Trend

By Ralph West Robey.

Collection of data by the Government on the salaries of the leading business executives in this country has stirred up a surprisingly small amount of opposition. Ordinarily, the request for such information would arouse such a storm of protest that the demand would become a national issue. It would be charged as being an infringement of individual rights—an unwarranted interference with personal liberties and a step straight in the direction of socialism. There would be, too, a certain justification for such charges. For should the Government start to regulate salaries of businesses, which by no stretch of the imagination even can be classed as public utilities, it is obvious that private property as it has been known in the United States, is on its way out.

At present, however, our businessmen have taken the order almost without a chirp. There have been a few undercurrent rumors of opposition from the concerns affected—but, by and large, the questionnaire has been accepted much as it might be if such a development were a part of the normal day's routine. Apparently the business leaders of the country either have been cowed to the point where there is no fight left in them, or have decided that it no longer is worth while to oppose the trend toward more and more detailed regulation of business, a regulation which will reach into the innermost secrets of business organizations.

Business Men Are Not Performing a Service by This Attitude.

In taking this attitude the business men are not performing a service for the country. Granted that they should cooperate to the full in the attempt of the administration to hasten the return of prosperity, it does not follow that they should throw overboard the very principles upon which our business structure is based. Yet this is exactly what they are doing, in effect, by sitting idly by while the Government crawls farther and farther into our business structure.

In saying this I recognize clearly that the mere calling for the amount paid our chief business executives is in itself of little importance. Were it to stop at that there would be little cause for concern. We have no reason for believing, however, that it will stop there. Rather, it appears that by one way or another an attempt is to be made to bring salaries to some level more or less arbitrarily set as "reasonable" or "fair" compensation for the heads of business.

From this point it is a small step to deciding arbitrarily what constitutes "reasonable" or "fair" profits, and only another little step to setting the amount of wealth which it is "reasonable" or "fair" for one individual to possess. Compliance with the request for information on salaries does not mean that we have to take these other steps, of course, but it must be obvious that the place to stop a drift in this direction is at the start, not after we are in full swing.

Federal Trade Commission Places Little Importance on the Move.

The Federal Trade Commission, which has sent out the questionnaire, belittles any such interpretation as this. According to its chairman, Col. Charles H. March, the commission has "no action in mind against corporations paying large salaries." Rather, the data are being collected solely as a result of a Senate order.

All of this may be taken as true. It is strange, however, that the collection of the data should have been delayed until after there had been spectacular disclosures about some high salaries and bonuses. Further, it is equally strange that the Attorney General recently should have submitted to the President a report on possible means of salary control. Both of these indicate that the administration is flirting with the idea of doing something in the way of determining salaries, although perhaps only through bringing public opinion to bear upon the problem.

Again, however, it should be emphasized that the current move is of significance only as an indication of a trend. Publication of the salaries, in fact, might even do some good. The trend indicated by the action, nevertheless, is something worthy of the thoughtful attention of everyone interested in maintaining an economic system of real private property.

Idle Druggists Launch Survey

Hours and Wages Here to Be Used in Fight for Code Revision.

Unemployed pharmacists of Washington will conduct a survey to determine hours and wages in the drug business.

The data will be presented to the Labor Advisory Board of the NRA as an argument toward having the proposed druggists' code modified. The survey is being sponsored by the Pharmaoists Society of the District, of which Marion Alley is president. Similar surveys are being conducted in other cities.

The drug associations have proposed a code of 62 hours and a minimum wage of $14.50 for pharmacists. Alley said that a 48-hour week and a minimum wage of $50 is desired.

Setting the salaries at a minimum of $14.50 will enable drug corporations to hire cheap pharmacists and discharge competent ones, Alley said.

'Policy' on Cedars Puzzles Farmers

C.C.C. Cuts in One Place, Saves in Another.

Luray, Va., Oct. 22 (Spl.).—Farmers of Fort Valley, Shenandoah County, are beginning to believe there must be something in the old maxim about not letting the left hand know what the right hand is doing.

Complaints are made that the C. C. C. is planting and nurturing cedar trees in one locality, while scarcely 20 miles away another group of workers is cutting down cedar trees to prevent their spreading rust to apple orchards. Farmers claim the trees are responsible for destroying thousands of dollars' worth of fruit each year.

C. C. C. chiefs will be asked to give their corps what the State department would call a "policy."

Oregon Has 446,956 Bearing Cherry Trees

Salem, Oreg., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Oregon's cherry population consists of 446,956 trees of bearing age, and 871,956 young trees not yet bearing. Oregon ranks seventh in mature cherry trees in this country.

Last Shovelful Pays.

Mancos, Colo., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Disgusted with the "diggin's," J. W. Davis, prospecting on Gold Run Creek, decided to take one more shoveful and then do his panning elsewhere. The last shovel contained an ounce and a quarter nugget.

Island Exchange Opened.

Manila, P. I., Oct. 22 (AP).—A permanent trading center and exchange for island products has been opened here. Frank Murphy, governor general, proclaimed a "made-in-the-Philippines" week to celebrate the event.

Retail Trade Leads Battle For Recovery

Buy Now Campaign Spurs Drive for Speeding Up Autumn Business.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Retail trade spurred by the NRA "Buy Now" campaign, continued to brighten the business picture during the past week, while industrial activity slackened perceptibly.

Steel production slumped to the lowest level since May, and automobile makers were halting assembly lines, as production of this year's models reached its fag end, and preparations were started for producing the 1934 lines.

With most favorable reports of retail distribution coming from the agricultural areas, a check to the recent decline in wheat was a hopeful development.

Large Sales Reported.

Dun & Bradstreet said reports from the country districts indicated the largest volume of sales in some lines of merchandise since 1929.

Wholesalers experienced somewhat smaller business than the previous week, as buyers showed an inclination to await clearer indications of the holiday trade outlook. On the whole, however, preparations were under way for a holiday shopping season much brisker than last year's.

Of the principal weekly business barometers, car loadings alone showed an upturn, reaching the highest level of the year to date, as they normally do in October.

Cause of Gains.

The gain was due to a larger movement of coal, while the movement of general merchandise receded a little. Bituminous coal production has expanded with the return of workers who had been on strike for weeks.

Electric power consumption receded a little, and Steel estimated ingot output as 34 per cent of capacity, a drop of 6 points. The automobile companies will not become active takers of steel for another month, so the industry is looking chiefly of the railroads and to public works projects. Disagreement over a fair price still holds up letting of orders for 844,000 tons of rails, which Coordinator Eastman has assembled.

Automobile output was estimated by Cram at 25,004 units, off 11,749 from the previous week. Total October production is estimated at about 125,000 cars, about 34 per cent under September, but 140 per cent over October of last year. The market for new cars is still reported fairly strong.

30,000 Acres Allotted Indians in Montana

Great Falls, Mont., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Approximately 30,000 acres of reservation land have been allotted Indian children in Montana since the first of the year, records of the local U. S. Land Office show. Indian children ordinarily are entitled to 320 acres of farm land. This property is held tax-free for 25 years; then patented to the child

Trade Failures Gain Slightly

New York, Oct. 22.—Business failures were less numerous for the five days ended October 12 than they were for the six-day period of the week preceding. The total number in the United States, according to the records of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was 257, compared with 263 in the week previous, and 503 in the corresponding week a year ago.

Retail store failures rose to 157, a gain of 4 over the total of a week earlier, while wholesale insolvencies numbered 14, an increase of 2. In the manufacturing class and agents and brokers, the number was reduced from that of the week preceding. Totals for all the different trade groups were substantially below the figures for the corresponding period of 1932.

Insolvencies in New England, Middle Atlantic, and South Atlantic sections showed an improvement over the previous week's figures. The South Central and Pacific Coast State were higher, the increase in the latter region being quite marked.

NRA Puts 15 Men To Work in Laurel

Only 5 Per Cent of Town's Employers Out of Code.

Jobs have been given 15 men in Laurel, Md., under the NRA, according to Ernest R. Harrison, district manager. Only 5 per cent of the town's employers have not signed the code.

From the 95.43 per cent of the employers who have signed, Harrison said, 74 per cent were voluntary. The balance signed when the subject was explained.

Mrs. W. E. Nicoll, in charge of the consumers' cards, has received 1,344 signatures. The town has approximately 3,000 inhabitants.

The original NRA executive committee and steering committee have combined. Those composing this joint committee, besides Harrison, are Ormond Phair, Bert Ayton, Vernon Ward, L. C. Donaldson, W. E. Beall, Mayor J. H. Fetty, D. W. Donaldson, James Curly, Eugene Little and L. B. Howland, acting secretary.

Bond Market Made Cautious By Outlook

Federal and Prime Loans Hold Steady to Firm Positions.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Bonds moved haltingly during the past week as conflicting developments apparently caused both traders and investors to assume a hesitant and cautious attitude toward listed loans generally.

It was true that United States Government Securities and most of the Prime Investment Corporation maturities maintained a steady to firm position.

But secondary issues were in supply at most times and their prices were considerably reduced. The more speculative loans followed stocks closely.

Sale of U. S. Bonds.

Although the President's announcement that the Treasury's new $500,000,000 bond offering had been oversubscribed more than four times was received, in some quarters, as an indication that actual monetary inflation was not being considered at the moment, various bankers were inclined to the view that currency expansion is still a live issue.

The Federal Reserve's reduction of the rediscount rate from 2½ to 2 per cent had been expected for some time and apparently had little effect on the list as a whole. The modest curtailment of the reserve system's open-market purchases of Government obligations also created little stir in the senior security section.

It was pointed out that member banks already have excess reserves of some $800,000,000.

Rails and Utilities.

The rails and low-priced utilities were under pressure throughout, although there were no especially pessimistic news which might have depressed them.

While there was still some question regarding the continuance of utility earnings under the higher costs entailed by the industrial recovery program, freight car loadings showed a more than seasonal increase due to heavier coal and live stock shipments. Industrial loans were not quite so heavy in the aggregate as those of the carriers and utilities.

Bonds of the European gold standard countries dropped sharply in response to drastic declines in their exchange rates. German issues rallied after sagging following the Reich's resignation from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference. Other foreign loans were irregular.

German Tariff Hits Japanese

Reich Joins Trade Parade Against the Cheaper Nipponese Goods.

London, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Germany has joined the big parade against Japanese "dumping."

It required an electric light bulb, made in Japan, to illuminate the danger of Japanese commercial competition for Germany. As a result, fear of Japan's conquest of world markets, which has been harassing Britain this year, now is beginning to reach Germany.

A Hitler government decree, operative from October 1, has augmented enormously the German duty on foreign electric lamps, and no secret is made of the fact that the measure is aimed at Japan.

Germany remained indifferent to Japan's expanded exports of silk, porcelain and rubber goods, particularly since those products were being shipped to remote areas in which Germany is disinterested. The Germans grew restless, however, when Japanese artificial silk began to flood foreign markets. Then the wave of Japanese commerce rolled uncomfortably near the German frontier as Japanese-made bicycles and iron pipes appeared in Holland.

Within the past few years, Japan has created a light bulb industry which, measured by energy units of their products, equals that which Germany built up over many decades.

South Africa Crops Ruined by Drought

Harrowing Tales Left in Wake of Dry Period.

Johannesburg, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—South Africa has just been through the worst drought in her history.

Harrowing tales have been reported from the native districts. Thousands of cattle are dead or dying, and thousands of natives have been near starvation.

A native in an outlying district of Basutoland was committed for trial on a charge of eating two of his children. He pleaded that he did it to save his life, for he was starving. It is estimated that a million sheep have died in Basutoland in 12 months.

One big Natal colliery closed owing to lack of water, and others have been running with the aid of underground pumps, while the government ran water trains to supply residents. The North-West, the Cape, and South West Africa also have been stricken badly. Vryburg was declared a drought-stricken area and obtained government relief.

Beer Tax Costs $21,000.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Wisconsin collected a beer tax of $1 per barrel at a cost of only 4 cents per barrel during the first five months that beer was legal this year, according to State Treasurer Robert K. Henry. The $397,971 in taxes was collected at a cost of $21,001, which covered the salaries and expenses of inspectors, printing and distribution of tax stamps, and ordinary office expenditures.

Stocks Fluctuate as Trading Is Influenced by World Events

Russian Recognition Plans and German Situation Provide Grounds for Mixed Losses and Advances; Shares Drop 10.4 to 68.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Nervous financial markets worked at cross-purposes this week as developments, both foreign and domestic, tended to cloud the political and economic horizons.

Stocks tumbled after the rise Friday.

The week-end announcement that the President had arranged to confer with representatives of Russia regarding the settlement of differences which, it was expected, would lead to formal recognition of the Soviets, was of but brief cheer to harassed stocks. After some of the implement and metal issues had rallied on the prospects of business with the bolsheviks, the alcohol shares fell with a resounding thud when rumors flooded the board rooms that the Government intended to restrict the profits of the distilleries. All other groups participated in the decline and the list finished with a heavy tone.

The European sector provided some of the more important stumbling blocks to the advance. With Germany resigning from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference, with the French cabinet shaky because of budget troubles and with the revival of rumors that the republic might be forced to suspend the gold standard, there was a return flight of capital into both dollars and pounds and the American monetary unit shot up to its highest levels in the past several weeks.

The downfall of stocks resulted in the Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 90 selected shares showing a loss of 10.4 points at 68. This was at about the level of last May and compared with a high for the year of 96.9. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds declined 1.6 at 74.9.

All local public utilities will be represented for the first time.

Chamber Joins Code Protests

Hagerstown Plants Claim Single Shift Would Reduce Jobs.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 22 (Spl.).—The single shift clause of the proposed furniture code has brought a protest from the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce, which added its complaint to that of two local furniture manufacturing plants — the Brandt Cabinet Works and the Statton Furniture Co.

The following telegram was sent to Barton Murray, deputy administrator, Washington, by the chamber:

"After a careful consideration of local conditions we respectfully urge upon you through consideration of protests of Statton Furniture Co., and Brandt Cabinet Works to one shift clause of proposed furniture code. These companies are absorbing local unemployment due to two shift operations. One shift will result in additional unemployment locally and work undue hardships on the two companies above mentioned and more especially the entire community by throwing men out of employment when work is available. This can not fail to create lack of sympathy and understanding of the recovery program."

The two companies pointed out it is physically impossible for the local plants to fill orders by working one shift. The bulk of sales coming in the last five months of the year.

For economical reasons, the protests state, it would injure the plants to stock in dull seasons.

Hyattsville C. of C. To Vote on Name

A proposed amendment to the by-laws of the Chamber of Commerce of Hyattsville, to change the name of the organization, will be voted upon tonight.

It has been proposed the body be named the Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce. The matter has long engaged the attention of members. Many assert the organization is composed not only of Hyattsville business men but also of those from various other communities in the county.

Opposed to the change is the view that such a move would hurt the prestige of the chamber.

Members are being urged to obtain new applicants for membership.

Lumber Trade In Movement To Aid Forests

Conference Will Be Held Here Tuesday to Plan for Conservation.

Acting in accordance with NRA code provisions, the lumber and other forestry industries are to meet here Tuesday to map a program designed to promote conservation of forests.

The meeting, which is expected to bring forth self-imposed regulations to save woodlands, will be the first of its kind resulting from initiative taken by the industries.

The idea of the conference originated with them as the best way to determine from the standpoint of public and private interests what should be the rules and regulations governing administration of the forests under the code dictum of "conservation and sustained production of forest resources."

Among the subjects to be discussed will be public timber disposal, taxation, forest loans, public land acquisition and perhaps even public financing of residences.

Already pleased with operations under the lumber code, NRA authorities have announced that wage statistics just received show the code has brought higher wages for employes.

Notwithstanding a 16 per cent reduction in working hours, the employes received a total September wage 13 per cent above that of July.

West Virginia Gets $500,000 U. S. Aid

Cash Allocated "to Raise Relief Standard."

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, has announced the allotment of $500,000 to West Virginia "to raise the standards of unemployment relief."

This grant, Mr. Hopkins said, was made from the "discretionary" fund of Federal relief money on the request of Gov. H. G. Kump. The governor told Hopkins on October 20 that money available from all sources in the State for unemployment relief is insufficient.

West Virginia has received $6,151,599 from the Federal emergency Relief organization. The administrator has disbursed $206,889,067 to the 48 States, four Territories and the District of Columbia.

Election Planned On Water Bonds

Madison Heights to Vote $63,500 Thursday.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 22 (Spl.).—Special election will be held in Madison Heights next Thursday on a proposed bond issue of $63,500 for a water system for the sanitary district of which that section is a part.

Plans for the system have been prepared by E. E. Barnard, consulting engineer of Lynchburg.

Acting for the sanitary district the board of supervisors of Amherst County has asked Lynchburg to negotiate for sale of water to the district. It was proposed to get the water supply from a nearby creek, but this has been abandoned.

$1,000,000 in Road Contracts to Be Let

Helena, Mont., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—The Montana State highway commission will hold another million-dollar letting of highway-project contracts October 22, Chairman C. S. Warden has announced.

McNary Honor Planned.

Salem, Oreg., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—A movement is under way to have the proposed $31,000,000 dam at Bonneville named "McNary Dam," in honor of U. S. Senator Charles L. McNary.

Curb's Prices Slump Heavily During Week

Activity Increases Sharply; Sales Daily Average 300,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—The curb market slumped heavily last week in successive selling waves. Losses for the period ranged from 1 to 7 or more points in active shares. A late recovery, however, reduced declines moderately.

Activity increased sharply on the selling and transfers for the period showed a substantial gain over the previous week, averaging well over 300,000 shares for each full five-hour session.

Liquidation got under way late Monday following extreme dullness earlier in the day. Heavy losses were recorded in metals, Newmont Mining, New Jersey Zinc and Bunker Hill & Sullivan giving ground freely. Among petroleum shares, Gulf and Humble oils experienced bad setbacks.

Leading members of the utility group, including Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric, offered fairly good resistance to selling, although moderate losses were incurred.

Alcohols shares were in substantial supply, excepting National Distillers now which more than held its own. Numerous specialties suffering sharp downward revisions included Aluminum Co. of America, Dow Chemical, Parker Rust Proof and the recently buoyant celluloid issues. Technicolor was an isolated firm spot.

Beet Sugar Crop Sent to Markets

75,000 Men Employed Through Northwest.

Scotts Bluff, Nebr., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Western Nebraska's greatest cash crop—the sugar beet—is on the way to market.

Inception of the 90-day harvest period in the Panhandle area of Nebraska meant employment for at least 25,000 men. It was estimated that almost 75,000 workers found jobs over the entire sugar-beet region, embracing Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming.

Acreage this year in Nebraska alone was 70,000 acres as compared to between 50,000 and 60,000 acres last year.

Insull Called Humanitarian At Greek Trial

Counsel Asserts Utilities Magnate Did His Best to Save Company.

Athens, Oct. 22 (AP).—Counsel for Samuel Insull, sr., dethroned utilities czar, in a hearing today, described his client as one of the greatest promoters of human welfare and expressed confidence that the Greek court would return a verdict favorable to Insull's fight against extradition.

The session occupied most of the day, and the case was adjourned until 4 p. m. tomorrow.

Insull arrived in court more than an hour before the trial was to open. He looked refreshed after eight hours sleep following the opening session yesterday. He passed the time talking to friends and eating candies and chestnuts.

P. Phallis, defense attorney, who spoke yesterday, continued his argument, saying the utilities magnate took all the steps possible to save his company and contended every one agrees that Insull is a great personality still trusted by the losers whose interests he looked after for 40 years.

The court engaged in lively discussions regarding bank loans and the persons who received them. There also were discussions between the president of the court and the defense concerning validity of the American law, with the prosecution interrupting to inquire whether transfer of capital is concealing assets.

The collossal dollar figures mentioned from time to time seemed to puzzle the judges with their drachmae equivalent (the drachma being currently worth about 81-100 of 1 cent).

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Some Insect Enemies.

At a recent meeting the American Veterinary Medical Association awarded medals to two of the three discoverers of the relation of ticks to tick fever. These men were Drs. Kilbourne and Courtiss. The third member had been previously honored by this and other scientific associations. None of the trio is excessively old. What we know about ticks and their relation to diseases is a matter of comparatively recent discovery. In spite of the shortness of the time, it has been discovered that more than a dozen diseases are tick-borne—some to man, some to lower animals and some to both.

It is well to beware of the fly, as we have heard so often and so frequently. But the danger from flies is becoming almost unimportant. It is also well to beware of mosquitoes, although in most parts of North America there is no yellow fever and not much malaria, and we fight mosquitoes principally because they are a nuisance. We have no severe typhus fever, and our interest in lice because of the disease they spread is not great. (However, it is now known that a modified and mild form of typhus is widely distributed over America.) Fleas are a nuisance, and, as such, should be kept under control, but the only flea-borne disease of consequence—plague—has never done much harm in the northern part of this continent.

On the other hand, the importance of ticks as disease-spreaders is worthy of effort, and they are nuisances as well. Of them, there are many varieties—dog ticks, sheep ticks, cattle ticks and many others. The species of animal preferred by a given tick is the one which supplies the name. However, each variety of tick is able to live on one or more animals other than those of the preferred type.

Probably the best tick repellant is kerosene. A few drops on the stockings and underwear will protect fairly well against invasion. Some apply kerosene to the ticks found biting through the skin. There are various tick dips on the market. A little of the fluid, as used by farmers in tick vats, when dabbed on a tick will cause him to drop off. It is more effective than kerosene for this purpose. After being exposed to ticks it is well to examine the body and the underwear for the insects.

A United States Department of agriculture bulletin advises people to pull ticks from tick bites until they have been made to turn loose by the use of dip liquid or kerosene. After the tick has been removed they advise the application of a little alcoholic iodine to the bite. They suggest that dogs and other tick infested animals be dipped.

Snuff Habit.

M. D. writes: My two nieces, high school students, were taught by older girls at school to take snuff. They have been using it for nearly two years and can not stop. They snuff it up their nostrils and say it is impossible to do without it now. Please don't talk or write about will power. I have tried all that is known to stop this dirty habit. Will you please help us to advise what can be done to break up this habit? This is not a joke, but the solemn truth.

Reply.

It am sure it is not a joke. All drug habits are hard to break. Determined people are generally able to break the tobacco habit. One of the practical difficulties about breaking the habit is that so many youthful persons take it on and that young persons seldom have the stamina required to break a habit.

Very few persons have the will power to break the more severe habits, such as morphine and alcohol. In consequence, hospitalization, with nurses and watchers, is requisite for success in breaking severe habits. If you and the girls are very anxious to break this habit you may have to submit to hospitalization.

Shower of Frogs Puts Off Winter

Williams Lake, B. C., Oct. 22 (AP).—It looks as thought the cariboo country is going to have an Indian summer, because its raining frogs and beetles.

Little black and brown beetles showered down at Quesnel and Rocky Creek. Thousands of hopping frogs were dumped on Wynndel for the distance of a mile, and old-timers say these things mean a long spell of pleasant weather.

Besides, they say, the ducks and geese, which usually arrive in August on their southward flight, are just going over.

Ban on Profits Urged as Cure Of Liquor Evil

Last Rockefeller Report Expresses Hope for Temperance.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Hope that prohibition repeal will see the dawn of a new era of temperance was expressed in the final report of the Rockefeller liquor survey tonight.

The survey recommended abolition of the profit motive in dispensing liquor, restrictions on advertising, so as not to stimulate artificial demand, and administration of the regulatory system by a State authority. It opposed a return of the old license system, because "it seems to us inadequate to control the abuses of strong alcoholic beverages."

A firm belief was expressed that "any system of control which does not attack the private profit motive in the sale of spirits is merely touching the problem at its fringe."

Asserting the younger generation perhaps has no vivid recollection of the old regime, the survey passed on, as a warning, memories of "a Nation fighting for temperate standards against a lawless trade."

As late as 1915, the report said, "the organized liquor traffic tried to blacklist 49 American firms, including railroads and manufacturing concerns, which, in the interests of efficiency, had forbidden their employes the use of intoxicants while on duty."

Albert L. Scott and Raymond B. Fosdick, who conducted the survey at the direction of John D. Rockefeller, jr., said they were "not impressed with the possibility of State-wide, bone-dry prohibition."

"In the last analysis there is but one fundamental rule to be followed—and all other rules are corollaries: If the new system is not rooted in what the people of each State sincerely desire at this moment, it makes no difference how logical and complete it may appear as a statute, it can not succeed."

Radio Waves and Ripples

NOW and then our broadcasters over-estimate the entertainment capacity of noise.

Sound effects for atmospheric purposes are one thing. But noise for noise's sake, that's something else.

Cases in mind are the last Olsen and Johnson and All-America Football Show broadcasts. There was a time when the Swift revue boys could be mildly funny by shooting a pistol. But police sirens, bells and whistles soon lose their charm in an overheated living room.

And what a letdown for us to discover that all the cheering and band playing on our loudspeaker the other night was just in fun. Thinking some one was broadcasting a football game somewhere—somewhere under big bright lights, of course, we'd just about decided not to do the rest of our sleeping in bed before we learned it was Columbia finishing up the All-America show.

Whitecaps.

WRC—Interview with Arthur Henderson, jr., on "Social Insurance," 4:15 p. m.; A. & P. Gypsies, 9 p. m.; Paul Whiteman's orchestra, 11:30 p. m. WMAL—Potash and Perlmutter, 7:30 p. m.; Eleanor Herring, violinist, Mrs. Alice Finckle, pianist, 8:45 p. m.; Don Bestor's orchestra, 12:01 a. m. WJSV—Surprise Hour, Announcer Trout interviewing "Senator Murphy," vaudeville comedian, 6:45 p. m.; Bing Crosby, Leonard Hayton's orchestra, 8:30 p. m.; Kate Smith, 9:15 p. m. WOL—Today in Sports, 6:15 p. m.; Gay Lord Ravenal, 9:30 p. m.; Empire Orchestra, 11:30 p. m.

WOL last night had its first taste of Presidential microphoning. A. B. S. at the last minute made up its mind to radio the Roosevelt "fireside chat" just like the older chains, leaving WOL, its Capital outlet, to worry about the details with no previous experience at all.

The Hanna Sisters are adding a marimba soloist, Fleming Oren, to their WRC song act for Friday broadcasting at 11:45 p. m. A marimba soloist, at his best, sounds like a cross between an organist and an xylophonist. Permanence of the Hanna-Oren alliance has been made largely dependent upon fan mail receipts.

From the same countryside that wanted Arthur Godfrey, WMAL Breakfast Club, to take milking lessons came a dozen eggs, in a box.

Marguerite Cromwell, former Wilkins "Just Wonderful" girl, has been assigned the theme song chore for WRC's Pageant of Melody, changed from 8:30 p. m., Friday, to the same spot on the Saturday schedule. Mrs. Cromwell wants her public to understand she contemplates leaving the Capital not earlier than next spring.

Violet Wachter insists she needs a theme song for her "Doors" show. And she doesn't like it a bit that Rudy Schramm hasn't written one after saying he would.

Bill Coyle is another of N. B. C.'s Capital announcers who hears wedding bells. He says there's a girl back in Hartford writing sweet things and meaning them. Bill's all of 23 and looks it.

Sidney Resnick's straying away from Jewish numbers again with a program of Neopolitan songs for WMAL radioing Thursday night at 9:30, including "Back to Sorento" and "Ninella Mia."

Central-Roosevelt tomorrow afternoon is the next high school football game on N. B. C.'s schedule.

National and Columbia broke out with Armistice Day program announcements yesterday.

Network microphones will pick up the American Legion observances in Arlington Cemetery. Tribute to the war dead will be paid in speeches by War Secretary George Dern, Commander Edward Hayes, of the American Legion, and former U. S. Senator Rice Means, of Colorado. Marine Band playing is another program item.

Through WJSV, Columbia plans to start radioing at 11 a. m. National announced a 11:15 beginning.

Columbia hopes to have a microphone in the control cabin of the Macon for describing U. S. battle fleet concentration in Los Angeles harbor and a sham air fight over San Francisco as a Navy Day program Friday. The first broadcast has been scheduled tentatively for 2:30 to 3:30, the second at 10 p. m. Technical arrangements probably will involve short-wave facilities between the Macon and KHJ in Los Angeles and KFRC in San Francisco, thence to the chain.

National Navy Day observance will include broadcasting the Marine Band and speeches by Rear Admirals Wat T. Cluverius and William H. Standley, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry Roosevelt and Author Charles Francis Coe, former Navy boxer. Former Boxer Coe has been assigned "A Treaty Navy, Fully Manned," for 6:45 p. m. broadcasting. Admirals Cluverius and Standley are 4:30 and 5 p. m. broadcasters. Mr. Roosevelt speaks at 11:30 p. m.

Farm Administrator George Peek is an N. B. C. speaker at 10:30 p. m., Wednesday . . . Columbia will radio Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's speech at the lord mayor's dinner November 9 . . . Fire Chief Ed Wynn comes back to N. B. C. a week from tomorrow night . . . plans for the fifteenth annual meeting of the Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing will be discussed by Mrs. James Flack Morris, president, on WMAL, at 9 p. m. Tuesday . . . Thomas Littlepage, Chamber of Commerce president, is another WMAL broadcaster tonight at 9.

Dorothy and Toto meet the Tin Woodman in an N.B.C. studio. National is broadcasting its own version of "The Wizard of Oz" today, Wednesday and Friday at 5:45 p. m., with Nancy Kelly, of the movies (above), playing Dorothy.

Triple Attack Awaits Milk Market Pact

Insurgent Producers to Join Two Producers Groups in War.

Three-Price Plan Hit; Protests to Be Made at Hearing.

A triple attack awaits the proposed marketing agreement of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association when it is heard before the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Insurgent members of the producers' group are laying plans for an organized attack on its provisions, which, they claim, will drive dairymen into bankruptcy. They plan to attend the hearings en masse.

The agreement will be opposed by affiliates of the National Dairy Products Corporation because its adoption will inevitably lead to an increase in the consumer's price, according to Roger J. Whiteford, attorney for the Chestnut Farms Dairy.

Seeks One-Price Plan.

The Independent Milk Distributors Association seeks to have a one-price schedule substituted for the proposed three-price plan. This group is headed by Sefton Darr, attorney for the Alderney-Green Meadows-Fairfax Farms Dairies.

Frank W. Huddleston, Fairfax County treasurer, charged last night that the association meeting Saturday, at which the agreement was approved, was "packed against the producer by hangers-on of the heads of the organization."

"The Secretary of Agriculture has promised us a hearing," he said, "and we intend to carry our fight to him. We favor a one-price plan. As an alternate plan, we would agree to a combination of the basic and first surplus prices, with the option of selling the second surplus to whomever we choose.

Bankruptcy Feared.

"The three-price plan which is proposed and under which we are now operating has placed producers on the verge of bankruptcy. The situation of dairy farmers is deplorable."

The National Dairy Products affiliates are in accord with the three-price plan proposed; but oppose the 3-cent a gallon increase in basic and surplus milk.

"If this increase is granted the consumers' price must be increased," Whiteford said. "The Washington distributors are now getting a lower spread between the producer and consumer prices than any other distributors in the country."

Baltimoreans Win in Archery

Dr. J. C. Baldwin First in Championship Tournament.

Dr. J. C. Baldwin, of Baltimore, yesterday won the Potomac Archers' championship tournament on the polo field, scoring 178 hits out of a possible 180 for a score of 1,086. William W. Skinner, of Baltimore, was second with 174—1,046, and Mrs. Josephine Taylor led the women contestants with 167—999.

Two double American rounds, consisting of 30 arrows each at 60, 50 and 40 yards, were shot. In the first round Mrs. Taylor, competing on the same targets as the men, led the field with 532 points out of a possible 810.

Mrs. Taylor weakened in the afternoon round, pulling up with a total of 999. Dr. P. Y. Elmer, dean of American archery and seven times national champion, finished third with 178—1,036, and George R. De Bruler, of Washington, was fourth with 174—1,026.

Mrs. Edna J. Callowhill, of Baltimore, was second in the women's division, scoring 155 hits for 793, and Miss Eleanora Trager, of Baltimore, was third with 95—399.

Killing Suspect Brought Back From Baltimore

Hank Allen, 28, colored, was returned to Washington last night by Detective Sergts. George Darnell and Jerry Flaherty from Baltimore, charged with the murder of George Evans, colored, on September 2.

Allen threatened to shoot a Baltimore policeman before he was arrested in South Baltimore, officers said.

Stop, Thief!

Rogue Goes to Church, Picks Pastor's Pocket.

A thief went to church yesterday and left after picking the pocket of the pastor.

Dr. John J. Rives, minister of Emory Church, 6100 Georgia avenue northwest, reported to police that a pocketbook, containing a check for $85, was stolen from his coat in a classroom at his parish.

The money was accompanied by an automobile operator's license, the preacher reported.

Woman Beats Men in Plane Treasure Hunt

Mrs. Genevieve Savage Wins; One Crack-up Mars Day's Sport.

With one minor crack-up to mar the day, Washington's first air treasure hunt yesterday sent 12 pilots on impromptu visits around airports in the vicinity of the city searching for clews.

Mrs. Genevieve Savage, wife of Capt. Charles M. Savage, Army Air Corps, garnered the first prize, seeking out the various clews and obtaining a wooden barrel in advance of the other pilots, all men.

Ted Kreis, who was leading the field until they approached Congressional Airport, turned over in landing, but escaped injury. Eddie Stett came in second with George M. Stone, flying the District of Columbia Air Legion entry, arriving third.

The contestants started from the College Park Airport after lunching at the field. The hunt was sponsored by the Washington Air Derby Association.

Slip Gives Clews.

Before the pilots took off they were given the first clew on a slip of paper reading as follows:

"He did a bank at ninety feet,
Oh—It was a kinda foolish thing,
Only now he is the devil's meat
Verily listenin' to the angels sing—
Ever trying to get some altitude.
Right quick he kicked his rudder 'round,
First landing cross-wind to the breeze,
Incidentally, to his surprise he found,
Everything, including the engine on his knees—
Land 'em straight and land 'em slow
Don't go flying in the "lows."

The first letters of the successive sentences spell out their destination.

Hybla Valley Next Stop.

From their first field of landing, the pilots returned to their starting points and were given a clew leading to Hybla Valley. From there the trail led to Beacon and then to the Congressional.

There they were given the following instructions:

"Now—Quick,
Return to College Park and change your mode of travel;
The treasure hunt is almost won;
But you'll have to scratch some gravel;
You'll have to find somewhere, somehow, a motor car in wait,
To take you as a searcher to gather in some freight.
No metal drum or beer keg to muss up your apparel,
But win, by bringing to College Park an old-time wooden barrel."

C. H. Warrington, president of the association, directed the hunt. Other contestants were C. S. Bruce, R. D. Schall, son of Senator Schall; J. A. Foote, R. H. Bangs, H. Somerville, C. A. Johnson and P. F. Lee—all Washington pilots with the exception of Lee.

Mrs. Savage, who has flown about 100 hours, placed twentieth in the recent treasure hunt from St. Louis to New York.

Boys Club Band Begins Fall Practice Tomorrow

The first fall practice of the Boys' Club Band has been called for tomorrow night in the Eastern High School Armory, it was announced yesterday.

All boys interested are invited, whether members of the club or not.

25-Foot Inclosure Will Hold Troublemakers in Future.

Contains Two Cell Blocks, Office and Several Workshops.

Lorton Reformatory has long refuted the idea that "prison walls" are necessary for a prison.

Founded as a model prison, it was held that a wall was contrary to its purpose.

But a wall now is rising at Lorton. Last summer's trouble at the prison apparently convinced officials that the founding premise was only partially correct.

The new wall—of several brick's thickness and 25 feet high—will inclose incorrigibles and troublemakers, such as were held responsible for last summer's trouble.

When the wall is completed, Lorton will be, in fact, two prisons.

Those behind the wall will have little or nothing in common with those in the outside dormitories and factories, and on the farm.

Behind the wall will be two cell blocks, an administration building and several workshops, the nature of which has not yet been decided.

Several gangs are at work on the excavations, others on the masonry.

Deeply embedded, with a firm foundation, the inclosure is to be all a prison wall should be—one that will defy tunneling as well as scaling. Guard towers will adorn the corners.

Man Struck by Taxi Dies; Driver Is Held

Thomas Richardson, 45, struck by a taxi at Third street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest Saturday night, died yesterday in Emergency Hospital.

Richardson suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries. He lived at 723 Third street northwest. Police said the taxi was driven by Emerson Hartman, colored, 24, of 524 Twenty-fifth street northwest. Hartman is held pending a coroner's inquest.

"Truth Serum" Girl Vanishes Second Time

Father Asks Police Aid in Searching for Dorothy Kirby.

Dorothy Juanita Kirby, 16, of 1700 A street southeast, who, as the "Truth Serum Girl," attracted headlines in several Eastern cities last week, has disappeared from her home for the second time in 12 days.

Her father, Lloyd Kirby, in asking police to search for the girl, expressed the belief she is on her way to visit friends either in Paterson, N. J., or Columbus, Ohio.

Two weeks ago Miss Kirby was found wandering on the streets of Paterson, apparently an amnesia victim. She was unable to tell her name or where she lived. Police tried to solve the puzzle by giving her injections of a strange drug, termed by its originator a "truth serum."

After three days Miss Kirby told officers and physicians her name and where she lived.

When she returned to Washington her father, charging she had been injured by the serum, demanded an investigation.

The girl was wearing a blue coat and skirt when she left home about 6 p. m. Saturday.

Music Chief Plans 2 Weeks of Rallies

A. D. Zanzig, director of the music department of the National Recreation Association, will conduct open public meetings in the interest of community singing, as well as singing in homes, churches and schools, for two weeks beginning next Monday, under the auspices of the recreation committee of the Council of Social Agencies.

The first meeting will be held in Roosevelt Community Center under a committee headed by Mrs. Gertrude Lyons, president of the District Federation of Music Clubs.

A membership fee of $1 will be charged for participation in activities to be conducted by music teachers. Zanzig will conduct institutes on musical topics and will be available for conferences.

Plant Like Hooded Cobra Displayed Here First Time

Hollow Stalk Is Trap for Diet of Insects; Goes on Sale Here.

Never mind the swatter, Henry—here's a rare orchid to destroy the flies.

Just a Jules Verne horror on a small scale—that describes the plant, which lives on insects and looks like a hooded cobra ready to strike. It goes on sale in Washington for the first time today.

The plant grows to be about a foot tall. It has a hollow stalk surmounted by a hood which gives it the cobra appearance. The hood is mottled to simulate the scales of a snake, and, incidentally, to scare off animals which might damage the plant in its native state.

Under the hood of the "cobra plant" is a small opening. Flies and other insects are attracted through the opening by a sweet-smelling fluid inside. But once in the hollow body of the plant, there is no return for the luckless prey. The delicate tentacles which hang from the "cobra's" mouth furl up and block the opening. Worn out by struggles to escape, the insect finally falls into the base of the stalk and is dissolved by digestive juices secreted by the orchid.

The plant, so far as is known, has never been seen in Washington before. The few specimens which have reached this country were imported by a West Coast florist. It is said to be an effective means of ridding a house of flies. Incidentally, the orchid is known as the "Darlingtonia," although the name obviously does not fit.

The plant will be exhibited and sold by Woodward & Lothrop.

Catholic Group Holds Party.

The Junior Sodality of St. Jerome's Catholic Church will hold a bingo party November 7 in the church hall, Spencer street, Hyattsville.

Groups Split Over Movie Censor Plan

Ministers and Parents Back Brown's Plea for Board.

Commissioners to Await Report Before Taking Stand on Issue.

Ministers, parents and theater owners split yesterday on the proposal of Superintendent of Police E. W. Brown that a theater censorship board be set up for the District.

Said Dr. William L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches:

"It looks as if it would be a necessary step—there are so many cases of immoral entertainment. But I do think we'll have to strengthen the censorship law and pick the very highest types of citizen as members of the board of censors."

Mrs. E. R. Mangum, president of the Cranch-Tyler Parent-Teacher Association, declared, "I do think it would be a very good thing."

And one theater manager commented: "Well, if Maj. Brown feels the women's department is inadequate——," but declined to go further.

Dr. Luther Reichelderfer, president of the Board of Commissioners of the District, has an open mind on the subject. Maj. Brown's proposal has not been discussed by the board, and Dr. Reichelderfer has not received a copy of the report in which it was made.

The board can not say whether the suggestion will be adopted, or whether public hearings will be held, until the matter has been discussed.

Maj. Brown pointed out that no censorship now exists in the District except "such functions as are assumed by the Police Department." These functions consist of a representative of the Women's Bureau seeing either the first or second run of every new movie shown here, according to theater managers.

Colored Youth Admits Attack

Confesses Robbing and Beating Woman, Police Say.

Bernard Nelson, 17, colored, 132 Rhode Island avenue northwest, confessed yesterday, police said, to the beating and robbery of Mrs Lulu Carter, 28, 1161 Third street northeast, at Third street and Florida avenue northeast, Saturday night. At Ninth Precinct he is said to have admitted he waylaid Mrs. Carter, snatching her pocketbook as he fled.

Police late yesterday recovered the pocketbook. Nelson was apprehended as he fled across some railroad tracks in the neighborhood of the attack. Noticing Nelson had a cut on his right hand and blood on his shirt and trousers, Policeman W. F. Sandford arrested him.

Mrs. Carter was taken to Homeopathic Hospital and treated for cuts and bruises.

Meanwhile, police of the Ninth Precinct are searching for another colored youth wanted in connection with the robbery and beating of Mrs. Beatrice Cherry, 40, of 736 Fifth street northeast, shortly before midnight last night.

Mrs. Cherry was knocked unconscious and robbed of $1.50 while walking near her home. She was treated at Casualty Hospital for severe head injuries.

Model Home Visit Proves Enjoyable

Only Two of Group Are Still for Sale.

No more pleasant hour could be imagined than one spent in an inspection of the 1933 furnished model home at 3412 Garrison street northwest. It is one of a popular group, two of which were sold recently. But two of the offering remain for speedy sale.

The display house of the group, presented by Levin P. Handy, is furnished by Hutchison's, Inc., and the draperies are by John F. Ligon. The Dupont washable Tontine shades are by the Shade Shop.

The model home may be viewed by driving out Connecticut avenue to Fessenden street, then turning right one square to Thirty-fourth street and north one short square to Garrison street. It is open each day until 9 o'clock in the evening.

Silence Balks Federal Loan On D. C. Home

Corporation Official Will Reply to Complaint of Applicant.

Paul J. Frizzell, manager of the District Home Owners Loan Corporation, who has been named co-defendant with Arms & Drury in a suit by a property owner seeking the names of mortgage noteholders, said yesterday he has made unsuccessful efforts to obtain this information himself.

Mr. Frizzell said he would file an answer in a few days, setting forth in detail his futile efforts to obtain the information.

The bill of discovery has been filed by Daniel Ring and James T. Crouch, attorneys, on behalf of Mrs. Celia Albert, 237 Eighth street northeast. Mrs. Albert, who claims she is unable to continue payments on her home, made application for a loan to the local office of the corporation.

To obtain a loan, it is necessary for the holders of a mortgage to agree to accept bonds of the corporation in exchange for the mortgage. Progress in this direction has been unsuccessful because Arms & Drury, the firm which sold the notes, has refused to reveal the identity of the purchasers.

Mrs. Albert tried to get this information from Arms & Drury, as well as from Mr. Frizzell.

Mr. Frizzell said he is ready to aid Mrs. Albert. Most of the mortgages in Washington are held by individuals, the manager explained.

Man Hurt in Plunge Down Cement Steps

Matthew Morgan, 61, of 41 U street northeast, was in critical condition in Georgetown Hospital last night after falling down a flight of cement steps leading from Prospect avenue to M street northwest.

Morgan was said to have tripped on the top step and plunged head first down the sairway. He was found unconscious and taken to the hospital with a possible fracture of the skull.

Pals on Auto Ride Take Watch, Cash

Takoma Park Man Loses $40 and Trust.

Harvey C. Neilson's trust in strangers has been broken.

Neilson, of Takoma Park, Md., told police he met two men at Four-and-one-half street and Maryland avenue southwest early yesterday. They went for a ride, he said.

During their travels, Neilson declared, they drove to Hains Point and parked. He remembered no more until awakening at daybreak to find his friends gone. His gold watch and $40 in cash went with them, Neilson reported.

Fun for All!

Even Police Laugh at Boy's Burglar Alarm.

Bells clanged. Sirens shrieked. A patrol filled with blue-coated policemen, followed by an automobile in which rode detectives, roared to the vaulted entrance of the National Capital Bank, 316 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, in response to a burglar alarm yesterday.

Jackie Ratcliffe, 5, grandson of Joseph Smith, watchman, was vastly amused. He chuckled and enjoyed himself thoroughly. It was funny what pulling the string on a little red box could do.

Annual Wilson Memorial Rites Set for Nov. 11

The annual service in memory of President Woodrow Wilson will be held in the Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral Armistice Day, November 11, at 3:15 p. m., it has been announced by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., LL.D., Bishop of Washington, and Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams, chairman of the local Woodrow Wilson Armistice Day committee.

The memorial address will be delivered by John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross. The service will be conducted by the Cathedral clergy. Prayer will be offered by the Rev. James H. Taylor, D.D., pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, which was attended by President Wilson during his years in the White House.

Members of the George Washington Post of the American Legion will furnish the color guard. Invitations have been extended other veteran and patriotic organizations to participate. Fitz Woodrow, jr., will carry the floral tribute.

Associated with Mrs. Abrams in making arrangements are Mrs. Blair Banister, Mrs. H. E. C. Bryant, Mrs. Huston Thompson and Maj. Oliver P. Newman, former Commissioner of the District.

Music will be furnished by the cathedral choir of boys, directed by Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster.

Mission Observes 49th Anniversary

3 Churches Join Central Union Celebration.

Three Washington churches joined yesterday in observing the forty-ninth anniversary of the Central Union Mission.

Homer Rodeheaver, noted evangelist and song leader, conducted a large mass meeting in the afternoon in the Calvary Baptist Church. He was assisted by the Mission Glee Club and Dr. W. E. Paul, of the Union City Mission of Minneapolis.

Similar meetings were conducted by them in the evening at the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church and the Gunton Temple Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Central Union Mission Week, which opened with the Billy Sunday revival, will close tonight with a mass meeting at 8 in the United Brethren Church.

District Tax Rate Jump In '35 Feared

Citizens Association Sees Board as Unable to Keep Pledge.

Warns Budget Based on '34 Surplus Which May Dwindle.

A warning that the District tax rate of $1.50 may be increased in the next fiscal year, despite promise of Commissioners that it will be retained, was issued yesterday by the Washington Taxpayers Protective Association.

The warning is based on two possibilities: 1, that the District surplus anticipated as of June 30, 1934, may be decreased by a restoration of all or part of the 15 per cent salary cut, and 2, that the Federal Relief Administration may not furnish the $1,700,000 estimated as needed to supplement District appropriations for the current fiscal year.

The 1935 budget is predicated upon a surplus of $2,930,000 at the end of the current year, the association, of which Rufus Lusk is director, stated, and that this estimate is based on a continuation of the 15 per cent salary slash until June 30, next.

Should half this cut be restored January 1, the association figures, the 1934 surplus would be reduced to $2,005,000 and the 1935 surplus of $448,175.27 would turn into a deficit of $447,000.

Moreover, should the Federal relief contribution be only $1,000,000 instead of $1,700,000, the taxpayers organization speculates, the 1935 deficit would be reduced, on paper, to $242,000.

Finally, it is pointed out that even the estimated $448,175.27 surplus would be inadequate and that it should be close to $3,000,000.

The District budget is "skidding on such thin ice that any one of several things which may happen will mean that the tax rate may rise, that assessments may not be reduced, that a deficit may be created or else that there will be a haphazard, unscientific slashing at the last minute to make it balance," the statement concludes.

Deaf Meeting Plans Will Go On Air

Hard of Hearing to Honor Mrs. Norris Tonight.

Plans for the fifteenth annual meeting of the American Federation of Organization for the Hard of Hearing, to be held here in June, 1934, will be discussed over the radio by Mrs. James Flack Norris tomorrow night.

The Washington League for the Hard of Hearing will give a reception for Mrs. Norris tonight. She is the wife of Prof. James F. Norris, director of research in organic chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Chicago office of the Greater National Capital committee of the Board of Trade secured next year's meeting of the federation for Washington. Headquarters of the federation are in Washington in the Volta Bureau on Volta place, which was founded by Dr. Alexander Graham Bell.

D. A. R. Head Returns From New Mexico

Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, returned Sunday from Deming, N. Mex., where she attended the marking of the old Butterfield Trail in connection with the State conference.

Mrs. Magna will preside at a meeting of the executive committee today, a State regents' meeting tomorrow and a meeting of the National board of management Wednesday, all of which will be held at the National headquarters in Memorial Continental Hall. She will be at the Mayflower Hotel until the end of the week, when she leaves to attend the Tennessee State conference.

Downfall of Pitt, Notre Dame and Trojans Feature Grid Upheavals

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

Monday Morning Quarter Back

SET-UP. Shuffle the letters a bit and you have—upset. You also have the theme of last Saturday's football games. Upsets were a dime a dozen, three dozen for a quarter. The hunch players made the experts look like novices. The wails of the experts are heard even above the groans of the beaten favorites.

The big teams who like their publicity during the week didn't like their Sunday morning publicity. Pitt, Notre Dame, Southern California, Auburn. Reads like the line-up for a Rose Bowl round-robin instead of the headliners in the list of the vanquished. Southern Cal. was tied, not beaten, but when the Trojans are tied, it is a moral victory for the rest of ' ' Nation.

In our own back yard, we were eyewitnesses to what was happening from coast to coast. An under rated George Washington team was teaching Auburn how to play football. That first touchdown by Johnny Baker was the "perfect" play. It requires only one of those to win a football game.

I am still waiting for Firpo Phipps to untrack himself. The Auburn star who received more publicity than the Roosevelt-Soviet negotiations, spent most of Saturday afternoon bouncing back off the line of scrimmage. Somebody was wrong about Phipps—or about George Washington.

Carnegie Tech, Army and Minnesota won by beating Notre Dame, Illinois and Pittsburgh to the punch. They went out and got touchdowns in the first period and then played a lot of defensive football and won.

Notre Dame can't get away from Howard Harpster. He was playing for Carnegie in 1928 when Rockne led an unbeaten team East and was knocked off by Harpster and his mates. Saturday, Harpster turned up as the coach of Carnegie and the news for Notre Dame was all bad.

West Carolina Teachers are in the same boat as the eighteenth amendment with the score 33 to 0 against them. Catawba was the team that did it, failing by three points to repeal the Teachers entirely.

Frank Carideo, Rockne's All-American quarter back of 1930, is still winning notoriety at Missouri where he has been coaching for two years. Carideo's record is still unblemished by a victory. His Missouri team hasn't won a game in two seasons.

Princeton's Sophomores were anything but sophomoric in beating Columbia, 20 to 0. The best crack about the Princeton game was made by the guy who said it wasn't a case of the Sophomores trying to make the varsity team, but that it was a case of the Seniors trying to make the Sophomore team.

Fordham displayed a new line-up of potential All-Americans Saturday in beating Boston College, 32 to 6. Among others were Boneiski, Uzdavinis, Del Isola, Sarno, Danowski, Maniaci, Saurusky, Ludwinowisc and Pavilicovic. Fine old Puritan stock.

The baseball fan will never live to see it again, but some kind of a free-style record was set Saturday when a referee actually admitted to Army that he was wrong in ruling on a "dead" ball and that Army was entitled to a second touchdown.

The whistle for the end of the half blew as Bogdanski raced down the field for the touchdown that beat New York U. for Colgate, but he paid no attention to that and only scurried the faster to deliver a 7-0 victory unto Colgate.

Tennessee, which hadn't been beaten in four years, suffered its second defeat within seven days when Alabama's Crimson Tide battered out a 12-6 victory. That's both thick and fast as far as Tennessee is concerned.

Rockville Player Hurt By Bat Hurled at Game

Leonard Coleman, member of the Rockville baseball team, was struck on the head by a bat thrown during a game at Derwood, Md., yesterday. Coleman was taken to the Montgomery County General Hospital, near Olney, where an examination revealed only superficial lacerations of the scalp and concussions. He will be given an X-ray examination today to determine whether he sustained any internal injuries.

opened up in the ninth and had Paulino groggy at the bell. Through the tenth, eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth rounds, Carnera dealt his heaviest punches, battered Paulino from one side of the ring to the other, but could not floor his stubborn foe.

That's where the crowd took a hand and a tremendous chorus of boos rose up in the thirteenth when Carnera still could not land a decisive punch. Primo was obviously angered by the demonstration and tried hard for a knockout in the final round, but Paulino, bruised and bloody though he was, still was erect when the bell sounded.

The weights, as officially announced, were Carnera, 118 kilos (259.6 pounds); Paulino, 98 kilos (221.2 pounds). Newspapermen, who stood by the scales during the ceremony, said, however, that Carnera's actual weight was 120.5 kilos, or 265.1 paunds, and Paulino's, 92 kilos, or 202.4 pounds.

Carnera plans to remain in Rome for a few days and then will go to Paris for a series of exhibitions.

Sparring Partners Win.

Carnera's two American sparring partners, Harold Mays, of Bayonne, N. J., and Arthur Huttick, of New York, hung up victories in the preliminaries. Mays knocked out the Argentine heavyweight, Raoul Bianchi, with one punch. Mays came out of his corner with a tremendous rush, landed a heavy right and an equally heavy left, and Bianchi went down and out.

Huttick won a four-round decision over Armando de Carolis, of Rome, one of Paulino's sparring mates.

The fight was postponed for two hours to enable Mussolini to receive 35,000 Florentine Fascists.

Notables Given Ovation.

The premier was given an ovation as he entered the big stadium, accompanied by the Fascist secretary, Achille Starace, and other government officials. James Roosevelt was a guest of the American Ambassador, Breckinridge Long.

Mussolini followed the preliminary bouts with keen interest. His sons, Bruno and Vittorio, compared notes with their father and with Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Ciano, head of the government press bureau. Hundreds of Italian women were there to see a boxing contest for the first time.

It was dark before the main bout principals climbed into the ring. Carnera was given a tremendous ovation, saluted Mussolini, waved to the crowd and posed for photographs. Max Schmeling, German star, was introduced from the ring and then the big bout began.

Rome, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—A sprained right hand, suffered in the ninth round, prevented Primo Carnera from knocking out Paulino Uzcudun in their title bout, the Italian champion explained in his dressing room after the fight. The injury occurred when he hit Paulino on the elbow.

Carnera also said a hevy cold prevented his proper breathing.

Post Golf Trophy Play Starts Today

A field of 93 women golfers, including all of the District's best, will begin competition today in a tournament for The Washington Post Trophy, to be played on the Columbia Country Club course. Play will be on a medal basis, with handicaps.

After the elimination of all but 32, match play will be the order of the day until the championship is decided on a handicap basis. The handicap limit for the tournament is 18. Post entries will be received.

Newman Stars as Giants Beat Friedman's Dodgers, 21 to 7

Passing Duel Fails to Develop as Pro League Aces Clash.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP).—Inspired by Harry Newman's passing and running, the New York Giants outclassed the Brooklyn Dodgers, 21 to 7, in a National Professional Football League game today.

The anticipated passing duel between two former Michigan quarter backs—Newman and Benny Friedman—did not develop to any great extent. New York showed a smooth running attack, and Newman tried only four passes. Three were completed, one being good for a touchdown, and another—for 40 yards—being largely responsible for another touchdown.

Friedman, on the other hand, was forced to pass repeatedly, the Giant forward wall stopping most of the Brooklyn running attempts.

Friedman tried 29 passes. Thirteen were completed for a total of 158 yards, one being good for a touchdown. Two were intercepted and 14 incomplete.

Until the final quarter, the Giants were almost complete masters. Elvin Richards, former Simpson College player, carried on the heavy work while Newman was off the field and reeled off one run of 70 yards for the Giants' third touchdown.

About 35,000 persons were in the Polo Grounds.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 22 (AP).—Battling in a drizzling rain, the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh emerged with a scoreless tie in a National Professional Football League game here this afternoon. The contest was marred by frequent fumbles.

The Reds gained a slight advantage in Jim Mooney's punting, and once moved the ball to Pittsburgh's 7-yard line only to lose it on downs.

Because of the slippery grounds, the teams battled most of the time in a punting duel between Tesser, of Pittsburgh, and Jim Mooney, between the 35-yard stripes. Both tried for field goals three times, but the ball was far wide of the uprights each time.

Southwest Teams Face Crucial Game

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 23 (AP).—The Southwest Conference football championship race gets under way in earnest this week with six of the seven members in contests.

The University of Arkansas, pacing the conference with victories over Texas Christian and Baylor, but blasted 20 to 0 by Louisiana State in an intersectional meet Saturday, will take on Southern Methodist at Fayetteville.

Aside from the Arkansas-Southern Methodist contest, Saturday's schedule pits Rice and Texas at Austin; Baylor and Texas Aggies at College Station; Texas Christian and Centenary at Shreveport, La. The latter is a nonconference game.

Alabama Recovers Southeast Prestige

Atlanta, Oct. 22 (AP).—Exhibiting power it had failed to reveal in earlier games, Alabama today had vaulted back into the Southeastern Conference football championship race with its 12 to 6 win over Tennessee.

With favored teams falling victim of upsets every week-end, it is possible that the recent deadlocked contest with Mississippi may not count against the Crimson's chances of capturing the conference title.

Costello Post Boxers To Battle in Richmond

Three Costello Post amateur boxers, Nay Palmer, Al Thornton and Jack Baxter, will do battle in Richmond tonight against sturdy opposition. Phil Ball, Head Of Browns, Dies at 68

St. Louis Team President Is Victim of Blood Poisoning.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 22 (AP).—Philip de Catesby Ball, 69, president of the St. Louis Browns, died in a hospital here today of blood poisoning, after an illness of nearly six weeks.

The baseball magnate, also a builder of ice refrigerating plants and president and director of a number of corporations here, died at 6:20 a. m., at St. John's Hospital.

Ball was stricken six weeks ago while in Minnesota, where he had gone with Mrs. Ball to his summer home at Battle Lake, Minn., and complained of illness while on a fishing trip. Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club physician for the Browns, hastened to Minnesota and had Ball removed to a hospital here.

Fights Game Battle.

For a time it appeared he would recover, but last Tuesday he became critically ill. Always known as a fighter, he rallied, but the end came today as he was surrounded by his family and friends.

He was one of the outstanding veterans of the old school of baseball. His peremptory decisions, his brusqueness and dogged fighting qualities carried him alternately to victory and defeat in baseball.

In his baseball and oil ventures he was ready to take a gambler's chance and accepted losses philosophically. His associates said he made more money in refrigeration and oil than he lost in baseball and his baseball losses have been estimated at more than $500,000.

Also Owned Brewers.

Besides his ownership of the Browns, Ball was owner since 1931 of the Milwaukee Brewers, of the American Association. He was president of the Monocoupe Corporation, an airplane firm, director of the Federal Cold Storage Co., the Consolidated Oil Co., the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. and the City Ice & Fuel Co.

He was born in Keokuk, Iowa, October 22, 1864. His father went to Sherman, Tex., and started an ice plant and Ball went to work in it at the age of 14. His next location was Shreveport, La., where he was catcher on a local team until an injury to his left hand caused him to quit playing. He lived in Paducah, Ky., and Dallas, Tex., before locating in St. Louis in 1890.

George Washington U. Attains High Rank in East by Triumph

Stock Booms as Result of Impressive Win Over Auburn.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S stunning triumph over the Plainsmen from Auburn Saturday apparently has awakened District fans to the realization that here, at last, is a real football team, one that must be considered when it comes time to divide Eastern football honors.

For decades the good citizens of the Capital have been clamoring for a team that would bring major league opponents to the city, and once here, thump them soundly. G. W. claimed to have such a team at the beginning of the year, and from the way it started appeared to be correct. A scoreless tie with Clemson helped revive the existing doubt concerning the downtown school's power, but the Auburn game should definitely settle the issue.

G. W. Line Powerful.

It is significant that "Nig" McCarver, G. W.'s flashy half back, gained approximately 96 yards, or more than the entire Auburn back field. A large measure of his success is due to the line's stalwart work, which was 50 per cent better than that of the enemy.

There were times when G. W. backs hit the line apparently for no gain. What actually happened was that the Colonials shoved the entire forward wall of the visitors back a yard or two.

Johnny Baker, whose field generalship was above reproach, was the lad who galvanized the team's attack into a mighty ramrod that swiftly and decisively turned defeat into victory. Baker's first run with the ball ended on the other side of Auburn's goal line—a mere 35 yards from the starting point. But don't forget the other boys who helped him navigate the stormy field strewn with the enemy.

Run Was Turning Point.

The right side of the line made a hole that looked like an excavation for a new Government building, and the downfield blocking was almost perfect. Baker's run awakened the fans to the realization that the game was not to be an Auburn celebration, but a real battle, with G. W. very much in the excitement.

This week-end the Colonials stack up against West Virginia Wesleyan, conquerors of New York University. The week after comes Tennessee, and from all indications it will be a rip-snorting battle. This time, however, G. W. will go into the fray an even choice rather than the underdog, and unless there is a violent reaction from last Saturday's performance it will stop the highly respected Vols.

Maryland Nurses Defeat.

While things appear to be moving along smoothly at G. W. there is woe and consternation in the other local football camps, excepting Catholic U., where "Dutch" Bergman has developed another formidable football team.

Virginia Military Institute helped Maryland along the road to its worst season in a decade with a 19-13 defeat of the Terps in a thrilling game. A swift and powerful running game stopped Maryland, which in turn unleashed Earl Widmyer and a passing attack on the Cadets, a combination that almost snatched the victory in the waning moments of play.

3 Teams Leading Rocky Conference

Denver, Oct. 22 (AP).—Championship hopes had been extinguished or reduced to a faint glow in nine of the dozen Rocky Mountain Conference football camps as Utah, Colorado Aggies and Denver University held the leadership spotlight today.

Virtual elimination of the University of Colorado from the pennant chase by a Colorado Aggie eleven constituted the most momentous event of last week's hostilities. The 19-to-6 Aggie triumph was the first major form reversal of the year. Denver and Aggie schedules are easing.

Week-End Upsets Surprised Coast

San Francisco, Oct. 22 (AP).—Still groggy from the upsets, football's faithful put together the pieces of a pigskin puzzle today, that for sheer surprises surpasses the happenings of any other week-end on Far Western gridirons.

To the region on the sunset side of the Rockies the football millenium arrived when Oregon State checked Southern California with a scoreless tie.

Not so startling, but an upset nevertheless, Washington State's Cougars played California to a 6-to-6 tie in another conference contest.

Old Prestige Regained by Princeton

Bids for Title Ranking With Michigan and Fordham Teams.

Scoreless Tie Mars Slate of Southern California, Yet Unbeaten.

THE downfall of the Nation's mighty college football triumvirate, Notre Dame, Southern California and Pittsburgh, and the zooming rise of Michigan and Princeton, the latter more or less defunct for the past decade, to the top of the football firmament, featured the week-end's upheavals from coast to coast.

The smashing victories registered by Carnegie Tech over the Rambling Irish, of Notre Dame, and Minnesota over the Panthers, of Pittsburgh, completely annihilated all hopes of championship visions for the losing clubs. Although still undefeated, the Southern California Trojans' scoreless tie was the biggest surprise of the day. In the South, the Crimson Tide of Alabama rose to the occasion and trampled the long-reigning Tennessee Vols to tie with Duke for the Dixie limelight.

Princeton should have easy sledding from now until the end of the season. Brown, Dartmouth, Navy and Rutgers makes up the remainder of the schedule, and then comes the grand finale with Yale. And the Bulldog-Tiger games, generally turn out to be anybody's ball game. But from the records to date of these two teams, Princeton is piling up a tremendous lead in its favor to cop the game. Yale battles the Army Saturday.

Fordham Plays Alabama.

Fordham, dividing the spotlight with the Nassau sophomores, is host to Alabama in New York and the game has all the qualifications of a championship intersectional tilt. The following week the Rams entertain St. Mary's and will wind up their abbreviated season November 18 with Oregon State, Southern California's nemesis last Saturday. New York University is sandwiched between the coastal attractions.

Both Minnesota and Carnegie Tech took advantage of a single first-period-scoring opportunity, nursed it through the rest of the session and won their respective games. The Gophers scored in the first eight minutes when Tenner, left end, grabbed a pass and scooted for the touchdown. Carnegie gained momentum at the offset of its game and scored on the third play.

Minnesota may meet a tarter in Iowa next week and it will be definitely known then whether the Gophers had an inspired eleven on the field against Pitt or the makings of a great team that was slow in getting started. Minnesota's first two games were unimpressive ties.

Tech Battles Old Foe.

Carnegie Tech will battle Washington and Jefferson, a rival of long standing and a team which has ruined Tartan hopes to otherwise successful seasons in the past. Pur-

Big Ten Awaiting Iowa vs. Gophers

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP).—Lightning in the Western Conference championship race will strike next at Minneapolis Saturday.

There, the last big unsolved question will be answered, when the surprising Hawkeyes of Iowa, for the last five years regarded as the doormat of Western Conference football, will meet Minnesota in the headline attraction of the day. The Hawkeyes, full of India rubber, have bounced right into midst of the championship battle, and are going places, but nobody seems to know where.

The attention of the Big Ten will center on the game, while the rampant Wolverines, apparently unbeatable and rolling along toward another Big Ten title, will meet Chicago at Stagg Field.

Nebraska Menaced As Big Six Leader

Kansas City, Oct. 23 (AP).—Nebraska, in its customary place atop the Big Six football standing as a result of a decisive 9-to-0 victory over Kansas State, again faces the task of dislodging a claimant to the percentage leadership in the headliner conference clash with the Oklahoma Sooners at Lincoln next Saturday.

The champion Cornhuskers, who knocked Kansas State's gridders out of a tie for the lead at Manhattan Saturday, are rated as favorites over the Sooners, who opened their bid for the title Nebraska has won the last two seasons by trouncing Iowa State College, 19 to 7.

Beaver Dam Club's 20-Man Team Winner, 16-14, Over Argyle in Golf Feature

Visitor Bows To Home Stars

Kraft and Nordlinger Face Title Finals at Woodmont.

Siamese Cup Play Set for Today on Chevy Chase Links.

BEAVER DAM'S 20-man golf team invaded Argyle yesterday and carried off a 16-14 victory.

In the feature match of the day, Martin F. McCarthy, visiting champion, and John R. Miller bowed to the home stars, Bill DiEste, club titleholder, and Hickman Green, by 2 points to 1.

Green, who came here recently from a New Orleans golf club, turned in a neat 73, after touring the second nine in an even par 35. His par 3 on the short seventeenth enabled his team to win the 18-hole match, 1 up, after the teams had broken even on the two nines. McCarthy shot a 76 and DiEste and Miller barely managed to crack 80.

Jess Baggett and Fred Stringer scored 2½ points against Don Dudley and J. B. Harmon, of Argyle, while Joe Abrams and E. B. Heimer, of Beaver Dam, made the only clean sweep in points by whipping E. S. Cassidy and R. M. Lawrenson.

Results:

Martin F. McCarthy and John R. Miller (Beaver Dam), and Bill DiEste and Hickman Green (Argyle), 2 points; Jess Baggett and Fred Stringer (Beaver Dam), 2½, and J. B. Harmon and Don Dudley (Argyle), ½; P. M. Baggett and J. W. Dawkins (Beaver Dam), 1½, and Jack Dudley and A. E. Willmett (Argyle), 1½; Harry Bailey and C. K. Dunton (Beaver Dam), ½, and William B. Meany and J. H. Allen (Beaver Dam), 1, and Maurice Cooper and W. H. Taylor (Argyle), 2; Noble Wilson and E. B. Bailey (Beaver Dam), 2½, and John Boyd and Ted Felt (Argyle), ½; R. N. Trezise and C. W. Griffin (Beaver Dam), 1, and Cromwell Warmer and Jack Keele (Argyle), 2.

Woodmont Title Up.

Melvin Kraft defeated Bill Illch, 5 and 4, yesterday in his semifinals match of the Woodmont Country Club golf championship, and will battle Howard Nordlinger for the title next Sunday.

Kraft played steadily throughout, and served warning that he is shooting good enough golf to halt Nordlinger's triumphant march that has extended over a five-year period.

In the second flight, Arthur Stephens won his quarter-finals match from Jess Abel, 3 and 2, and will meet Maurice Eiseman in the semifinals. Meanwhile, Lou Harris trimmed Ralph Goldsmith, 2 and 1, to enter the finals of the flight.

Ralph Payne teamed with Mrs. George Letts to score a 96 and win low gross prize in the mixed Scotch foursome at Congressional Country Club yesterday. J. F. Dowdall and Mrs. R. F. Rose, with 97—21½—75½, annexed first low net, and Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Yager, with 99—19½—79½, second low net.

Trophy at Kenwood.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brown, carding 97—31—66, captured the Fred Grimm Trophy in the two-ball mixed Scotch foursome yesterday at Kenwood Golf and Country Club. Mr. and Mrs. George Parker, with 94—24—70, won second low net and L. G. Hutton and Mrs. J. M. Jester, with 93—22—71, third low net.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonn C. Shorey posted an 88 to win low gross honors.

Harry B. Pitt pounded out a 75—3—72 yesterday to win first prize in a blind bogey at the Manor Club. Emerson Moore, with 85—9—74, was second, and D. L. Shephard, with 89—19—70, third.

J. W. Harvey made a birdie 3 on the eighteenth hole yesterday to enable himself and his partner, J. V. Brownell, to defeat Al Treder and J. T. McCarthy, 1 up, in a special match at Manor.

Play will start today in the annual Siamese Cup tournament at Chevy Chase. It is a match play with handicap event. Here are the pairings as announced by Bill Hardy.

W. N. Sturtevant (15) vs. Harrison Brand, jr. (14); Frank Reeside (7), bye; P. P. Powell (12), bye; R. D. Daniels (18), bye; Reeve Lewis, jr. (5), bye; Henry Ravenel (10), bye; Thomas M. Foley (15), bye; Landra B. Platt (10) vs. R. P. Whitely (12).

The seniors at Chevy Chase expect to complete another one of their tournaments this week. Capt. H. R. Stanford already has reached the finals of the event, and is ready to meet the winner of the match between Gen. Robert H. Allen and Walter Peter. The latter two already have played 18 extra holes, and are still tied.

John M. Griffin yesterday was appointed directing manager of the Indian Spring Country Club, succeeding Tom Moore, property owner. The announcement was made by Roger S. Peacock, executive secretary. Other members of the club staff besides Griffin and Peacock are George Diffenbaugh, golf pro; E. J. Albrecht, steward, and Mrs. Albrecht, hostess.

Many events of interest are being planned for the club by the new director-manager.

Professionals from Baltimore and the District will team up with senior members of the Chevy Chase Club in a regular Middle Atlantic P. G. A. pro-senior sweepstakes this afternoon. Play will begin shortly after noon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Purdy posted a net of 161 to win the husband-and-wife tournament at Beaver Dam yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Johns were second with 165, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Smith, third with 167.

Mohawks Lose Game, 5-2, to Irvington

Capital Gridders Outplay Foes but Score Only Safety.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 22 (Spl.).—In an exciting football game which kept 3,000 fans on edge from start to finish, the Irvington gridiron eleven added another notch to its claim for the South Atlantic championship by topping the powerful Mohawk Club, of Washington, 5 to 2, at Irvington today.

The Capital gridders greatly outplayed the home team, chalking up nine first downs, while its sterling defense limited Irvington to only four. In the early stages of the first quarter, Jake Slagle's team opened up a terrific drive that placed the ball deep in the enemy's territory, and after losing the oval on downs, Mohawks attempted to kick on their own 20-yard marker, but fumbled the ball. Parke then tried another punt on his 10-yard line, but E. Lotz and Krajcovic blocked the kick, the pigskin rolling behind the uprights and Irvington was credited with a safety.

The Mohawks tallied their two points early in the third quarter. Advancing the pigskin deep into Irvington's territory on three first downs and a forward pass, Delabre, Mohawk half back, fumbled the ball on the home team's 1-yard line. In an effort to punt Irvington out of danger, Dewitt Coffman was back, but the delivery was low and the Mohawks tackled him behind the end zone, automatically giving the Hawks a safety.

To open play in the final period, the Irvingtonians, after a series of running attacks and short passes, again entered contention 20 yards from the uprights. The Westend team then fumbled the oval, netting them a 10-yard loss. From the Mohawks' 30-yard marker, Coffman, Irvington's quarter back, drop-kicked a field goal. In a last minute desperate attempt to score, the Washington champions resorted to the aerial route, but met with little success as the final gun rang out.

Passers Meet All-America Gridmen

Giants Have Had Honor Men in Line-Up Since 1927 Season.

THE New York Giants, professional football eleven and Eastern division leader of the National Professional Football League, who will meet the Washington Passers, local money club, in an exhibition game under the lights in Griff Stadium Wednesday night, have had an All-America representative in their regular starting line-up every season since 1927.

Bo Molenda, Michigan's bone-crushing full back, received the honor in 1927. The following season, Ken Strong, New York University half back, was awarded a selection on the all-star team. Red Badgro, Southern California end, was given the coveted award in 1929.

Another far-westerner, Mel Hein, Washington State center, was rated the class of the country the following year, while Hugh Rhea made the All-America team in 1931. Last season, Harry Newman, Michigan, clinched the honors at quarter back.

Yesterday the Giants defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, their arch Gotham rivals, 21-7. It was the Wolverine, Newman, and his deadly aerial heaves that put the Dodgers to rout.

The Passers have been practicing a defense for the expected Newman tosses. Over the week-end they have been scrimmaging with the reserve team which is equipped with the Giants' pet plays, and from the manner in which Bankhead and company bottled them up the Manhattan eleven will have a busy evening in store.

Flying Fists End U. S.-Mexico Game

Mexico City, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—More than 40 police and gendarmes were required to break up a free-for-all fight today at the close of a baseball game in which the Azteca team, of Mexico, beat a barnstorming United States team composed largely of major leaguers, 2 to 0.

The melee started in the last inning when Lance Richbourg, captain of the barnstormers and formerly with the Boston Braves, disputed a decision at the home plate. He was struck in the face by the umpire, Senor Hernandez, a Cuban.

Tex Carleton, of the St. Louis Cardinals, rushed to Richbourg's aid. Members of the Aztecas supported the umpire with their fists, and the fighting became general.

Police reserves escorted the United States players to their hotel. Several bore bruises, but no one was badly injured.

Sherwood Nearing County Race Title

Capital League Teams Play Zero Tie

Aces and Marions Fight at Seat Pleasant; Apaches Get 18-0.

THE Maryland Aces and the Marions battled to a scoreless tie in the feature unlimited division game scheduled in the National Capital League yesterday. Both teams played splendid ball, battling back and forth on the Seat Pleasant grid. A 65-yard punt by Hoof from his own 10-yard line routed a dangerous Maryland attack. The play of Hampton and Dugan stood out for the Maryland Aces.

The Seaman Gunners defeated Ft. Humphreys, 21-18, in the only other scheduled unlimited game, which was played on the Fort Humphreys grid.

In the 150-pound division Palace defeated Adams-Burch, 18-0, and St. Stephens eked out a 13-12 win over Meridians.

The Northeast Boys Club ground out a scoreless tie with the Mercury A. C. in a 135-pound division contest. Other games in this division found the Brookland Coal Co. winning, 19-6, from the Palace A. C., Apache Preps hammering out an 18-0 victory over the Georgetown Boys Club, and the Cleveland A. C. decisively trimming the Centennials, 20-7.

Triumph of G. W. Earns High Rank

Widmyer's brilliant all-around work was the one redeeming feature of Maryland's attack. He ripped off consistently large gains on spinners and reverse plays. The defeat was Maryland's third in a row, and it yet has to win a contest against a major opponent.

G. U. Defeat No Surprise.

Georgetown's defeat at the hands of Western Maryland was only mildly surprising to observers of the game, who noted the fact that Dusquesne, of Pittsburgh, was hard put to stop Dick Harlow's men.

Georgetown's line couldn't stand the continual battering of W. M.'s backs, and its secondary couldn't fathom the few passes the victors threw, but most of all Georgetown didn't get the opportunity to meet one Bill Shepherd. The sprightly little Terror back was way ahead of the Hoyas all afternoon.

C. U. to Meet Deacons.

Fortified with new confidence acquired in last week's easy victory over Chattanooga and the knowledge of a 14-6 win last year, the Catholic U. eleven moves to Raleigh, N. C., Saturday to engage the Wake Forest Deacons. Although off color in spots in the 'Nooga encounter, the Cardinals have found themselves, in the opinion of Head Coach Dutch Bergman.

"The boys showed clearly for the first time that they can get along without Tom Whelan and Bus Sheary," declared Bergman yesterday. "Having lost this mental hazard, they should click smartly from now on."

The play of C. U.'s forward wall, which proved outstanding in last week's game, is expected to prove a strong factor in favor of the Cardinals.

Ancient Preakness "Wins" Ghost Race at Pimlico, in Test of New Betting Machines

Accuracy Is Shown by Totalizator in Giving Race Odds.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 22 (Spl.).—Preakness, king of the thoroughbreds more than 50 years ago, won a ghost race at Pimlico today. Seven thousand fans bet $146,480 in ghost money on the winner and all broke even.

It was guest day at Old Hilltop, the Maryland Jockey Club management having invited Baltimoreans to the track to watch and participate in the first tests of the totalisator. The new betting machine that flashes official odds in electric lights every 60 seconds. There was a speech made by M. L. Daiger, secretary of the Maryland Jockey Club, who introduced Mayor Jackson to the crowd assembled in the big betting ring. The mayor introduced Henry Lobe Straus, of Pikesville, inventor of the machine. Mr. Straus explained the mechanism briefly and odds were given to open the windows at the mutuel booths.

$1,000 "Bet" Opens.

A crowd gathered immediately before the $50 window. Actual tickets marked "test" were "sold." The first fan bet $1,000 on Preakness and for 20 minutes every window did a landoffice business. Up in the control rooms, officials familiar with the workings of the intricate machinery watched the collection of bets and the recording closely. The machines were clicking a merry tune, the figures in money bet changing in the betting ring and the odds board in the infield flashing new prices every minute.

Bets continued to flow in until the bell rang. The judges and stewards were in their accustomed places and the crowd marched quickly from the ring to seats in the grandstand or along the rail. Everything was perfectly timed. The judges allowed for the horses to parade to the barrier and for the running of the race.

Not a horse was in sight, but they were there in the minds of the fans. They kept their eyes centered on the board giving the order of the finish, and a cheer went up when No. 11 was named the winner. It was Preakness, in whose honor the famous race run each spring at Pimlico is named. Ten Broeck, another famous racer of his day, was second; Crickmore, third, and Bushwacker, fourth.

"Tote" New Name.

Preakness, heavily played by the betters, paid $10.20 for each "tote" ticket. Incidentally, the tickets at Pimlico will be known by that name hereafter instead of "mutuels." Another revolutionary change will be the reducing of the names of horses to mere numerals. Fans no longer can purchase tickets on Man 'O War, Sun Beau or Equipoise. Tickets are sold by numerals only.

Officials at Pimlico smiled as the fans bet their bank rolls. A satisfactory figure is around the $400,000 mark for an entire afternoon's card of seven races, and the ghost money for one race was more than one-third of the above amount.

There are two totes of this make in the United States, Arlington Park, Chicago, having installed one recently. They were first used in England, Ascot, New Market and several other major tracks having adopted this style of betting three years ago.

Accuracy Big Feature.

The principal feature of the system is accuracy. The exact amount of money a horse will pay is known by the bettar at every stage of the wagering. The tote makes no mistakes and can not be tampered with, it is claimed. The wagering is opened by Mort Mahoney, who is in charge of the betting ring, and closed by the judges. When the latter rings the bell a few seconds before the start of the race the machines are automatically locked.

A mistake was made in the straight price paid on Preakness, but quickly rectified. The price first flashed was $12.40 instead of $10.20, but as one official said afterward that was the reason for the test. Another test will be given next Sunday to acquaint the hundreds of employes at the track with the tote.

The machine will be used officially for the first time a week from Wednesday, when Pimlico throws open its gates for the fall season. The big race that day will be the Baltimore Handicap.

Columbias Win.

The Columbia eleven yesterday defeated the Northeast Hawks, 12-0, in a hard fought grid game. O'Connor and McDaniels scored touchdowns, the latter's score coming as the result of a 47-yard run. The Columbias drill Wednesday and Friday nights and all players are requested to report at Second and F streets northeast at 7 o'clock.

Brooks Club Wins.

The Brooks Club defeated the Arlington A. C., 12 to 0, in a game played at Arlington yesterday before several hundred fans. Foley and Corridon scored the touchdowns. The Brooks will practice tomorrow at 8 p. m. All players are requested to report at the clubhouse.

An eccentricity of dress familiar around Springfield, Ohio, for nearly a half a century, was the evening clothes of Gen. J. Warren Keifer, Springfield business man. Gen. Keifer, instead of wearing an ordinary business suit, preferred formal wear for everyday business. The style, needless to say, gave him a striking appearance.

Gen. Keifer started wearing formal clothes for business about 1888, continuing until his death in 1932.

Whence came the expression about crocodile tears it is hard to say—but it is known that crocodile tears do not come from crocodiles. Nor do any other kind of tears—because the crocodile has no tear ducts, hence sheds no tears.

King Louis XVII of France spent his entire reign as a prisoner. He, with the royal family, was captured by revolutionists when he was a small child. When his father was put to death he became king, and was recognized as such by the royalists. He was kept a prisoner, however, until he died several months later.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Laurel Race Track, Oct. 22.

You knew this was coming. I mean a few kind words about Mrs. Bennings' lovely boy and his 2-to-1 shot. They laughed when I picked Sisko, and they groaned when that $42.20 mutuel was displayed on the board. I also gave you the right dope on Bold Lover. Remember, two a day keeps the boss and the booes away. I stuck close to the books yesterday in an attempt to chase the Monday blues. I have a few wash-day specials that I'm passing along. All have the stamp of approval of my No. 1 clocker. If you must wager, here they are.

First race—Black Falcon ran a fair race Saturday. Met with interference or would have graduated, I do believe. Be Shy is as smart a youngster as those recent races suggest. Will be the one to take care of. Knight of Old may improve enough to take the show end.

Second race—If the track remains fast, I'll take Bally Bay to reverse the recent decision of that Happy Anne race. Turn them around if the track is off. Candescent gets in light and is a pretty shifty youngster. Belongs at least third among these.

Third race—Dock Light was jumping well in that last effort and might have been first had his rider not lost his stirrups just before the final swing. At that, Dock Light finished right up with the leaders. We can look for improvement today. Jack Anthony and Bagatelle for the rest.

Fourth race—I understand that Porter's Dream has been oiled and greased with a set of brackets in mind. Not the most consistent horse in the world but a good one when the goods are down. Ladino and General Lejeune are ready to complete the money picture.

Fifth race—I'm inclined to take Watch Him to beat the mystery horse, Chase Me. Watch Him has some fast trials to his credit. Chase Me has been to the races twice and that last effort found some good ones behind the 4-year-old. Silent Shot is one that I fear.

Sixth race—The Greentree-Payson entry of The Triumvir, Rose Cross, and Earnings should gather this purse. A fast track would boost the stock of Collateral and I'm not so sure that he can't mud it despite that recent poor effort. Anarchy for the show.

Seventh race—Brass Monkey gets the route he loves in this mile and an eighth. Beat good fields at this distance at Rockingham. Sharp as a tack now. Hillsborough and Standout will be doing a lot of running.

Eighth race—Prince Abbott is my last race special. Recent races show him to be at top form. They will have to beat him before another takes the purse. Primute gets in well and should be second. Below Cost is suited. Third for him.

High Schools Have Busy Schedule

Central and Tech Favored in Twin Grid Meets; Preps Matched.

ROOSEVELT vs. Central on Tuesday and Western vs. Tech on Friday is the twin wind-up as the interhigh football round-robin series cruises into the second week of play. The games, as usual, will be played at Central stadium.

Central should have little trouble in disposing of the Teddy Bears and should keep abreast the fast-stepping Eastern eleven, which it battled to a scoreless tie in the series opener last week, say observers. Roosevelt was swamped last Wednesday by Hap Hardell's powerhouse gridsters, 45-0.

McKinley Tech should make it two in a row Friday when it stacks up against Western, it is said. The Georgetowners were trounced 18-0 by Eastern Friday, but it is considered extremely doubtful that the Technicians will pile up a score as it did against the Ruf Riders. Western has a tough, heavy line that will give the Techs a busy afternoon.

Eastern will be host to an old rival Thursday, when it plays Washington-Lee High School on the Highland Park grounds.

Three District prep schools will tangle Friday afternoon, with Georgetown Prep host to Loyola High School; Gonzaga meeting Swavely at Manassas, Va.; and National Training battling Alexandria High School on Baggett's Field, Alexandria.

Saturday, one lone scholastic encounter is slated for the Capital with Charlottesville Boys School meeting Dick Turner's Devitt eleven. Local clubs on the road are St. Alban's at Church Farm School in Philadelphia and Landon School at St. James at Hagerstown. Episcopal entertains Gilman at Alexandria.

Brentwood Hawks Win From Ft. Myer, 13-0

Brentwood Hawks trimmed Fort Myer yesterday, 13 to 0, Kessler and Miller scoring the touchdowns. It was the Hawks third victory.

Miller picked up a blocked punt and raced 40 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Line-up and summary:

Alexandrians to Tackle Richmond Arrows for Title Sunday

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Oct. 22 (Spl.).—The Alexandria Fraters routed the Mercury A. C. this afternoon, 33 to 0, scoring in the first, second and fourth periods.

Dick Allen accounted for three of the six pointers, one on a 35-yard run. Allen, Gensmere, Travers and Cabell gained consistently through the Mercury's line.

Studds, Agner, Parsons, and Turner played brilliantly in the line for the local. Lewis, Van Horn and Webb were the visitors' best bets, but could not stop the Fraters' hard running backs.

Next Sunday the Fraters trek to Richmond to meet the Arrows in a State championship game.

Old Grid Prestige Regained by Tiger

due two weeks hence will tax the durability of the Skibos also.

Pitt and Notre Dame will attempt to solace their fallen pride by grabbing at each others throat at South Bend the coming week. The game, in view of what has happened to date, gives the Panther a meagre shade to win.

Southern California outplayed Oregon State, running up a dozen first downs to their opponents' one, but could not break through the Beaver defense for a score.

The Trojans will battle California and should have little trouble defeating the Bears, on whom Howard Jones has had the Indian sign since the advent of Bill Ingram. Sanford, undefeated and sporting the same standing on the Coast as the Trojans, four wins and a scoreless tie, may make an even battle for Southern California a week later. Stanford journies to the University of Washington for the last game on foreign soil. The Trojans have an engagement with Notre Dame at South Bend late in the season, which may send Southern California stock tumbling.

Gasoline Alley

On Suspicion

Mrs. Felix Here to Continue Battle for Seat in House

"Reared 9 Children—Why Shun a Political Fight?" Asks Pittsburgher.

"I wasn't afraid to rear nine children, so why should I have been afraid to fight?"

Mrs. Annie Felix speaking—she who refused to believe Michael J. Muldowney beat her in the 1932 congressional race and started a Federal grand jury investigation in Pittsburgh which returned more than 100 election fraud indictments.

Mrs. Felix was in Washington this week-end at the end of the second round of a fight she believes eventually will win her the seat the House gave Muldowney on the basis of election returns she charges were fraudulently made. The basis of her charges—evidence taken by the grand jury and some she has collected on her own account—has been submitted to House Clerk South Trimble for consideration by the House Elections Committee next January.

"I'm a fighter and I don't mean maybe," asserts Mrs. Felix. "My husband (Otto F. Felix) is a Mellon man and a Republican, but that doesn't make any difference. I'll stick by my guns anyway. I guess that's what you do when you're a good Democrat."

Mrs. Felix explains she contested the election because she was "the only Democrat in it." The others on either ticket, she says, were Republicans.

Mrs. Felix is the daughter of John W. Ross, once connected with The Washington Post, District postmaster in the Cleveland administration, and Georgetown Law School professor.

"How old am I? Isn't that a little personal? Well, if you want to know, I'm way past 50."

Walt Mason Himself

The Great Reward.

"Virtue is its own reward," said the great and wise old seer, and full honors we accord to that worthy propheteer. Yet the man of virtue tries to acquire some other boons; hustling with the other guys, he is after the doubloons. He would have as smooth a bus, just as shining, just as fleet as the more immoral cuss who resides across the street. He would have as costly silks for his daughters and his niece as the sinful man who bilks, or disturbs the village peace. Virtue is it own reward, but the man who's fixed therewith, buys up doodads by the cord, keeping up with Jones and Smith. It would surely never do, if the man of virtue said, "Having virtue I'll eschew toiling for my daily bread. Knowing that I'm pure in heart, I might let the old world slide, but I'll hustle in the mart that my home may be supplied." So the men of virtue strive for rewards of t'other sort, and they come in blocks of five, bearing shekels by the quart. But the men of virtue try to get rich by honest bets, so that when they come to die, they will have no vain regrets. So that when they're old at last, fit to leave this world of sin, they can look back on the past with a cheerful sort of grin.

Prominent Film Producers Side With Actors Against Provisions of NRA Code

Moguls Defend Paying Player Earned Salary

Goldwyn and Schenck Are in Agreement; Some Parties; Gossip.

It was perhaps to have been expected that Hollywood, with its customary indifference to precedent and sublime willingness to be deemed perverse, should have presented the unique spectacle of two of its foremost motion picture producers siding with their hired help as against the allegedly drastic requirements of the NRA.

Not too often in the history of the country's economic development have the employers of the Nation taken up arms against proposed regulatory measures designed to relieve them of the responsibility of paying salaries ranging up into six figures. That, however, is what seems to have been done by magnates of no lesss prominence and power in the industry than Joseph M. Schenck, president of Twentieth Century Pictures and an overlord of United Artists, and Samuel Goldwyn, also high in the councils of United Artists and an independent producer who can not be omitted from the first flight.

Mr. Schenck and Mr. Goldwyn both have taken up the battle for the actors and writers of the film colony, according to late dispatches from the West Coast. Their viewpoint is expressed in the cogent observation that "you can't make a crime out of earning capacity."

Precipitated by Extras.

The alignment of the two producers with the actors and writers is said to have come after representatives of the film extras had joined in the fight against the proposed motion picture industry code of fair practice.

A telegram to President Roosevelt was sent by the Board of the Screen Actors Guild, protesting the third revision of the proposed code by Sol A. Roseblat, deputy NRA administrator. The revised code failed to eliminate provisions objectionable to the actors and writers—the salary-control board and the antiraiding clauses.

The actors and writers also oppose article five, which they claim restricts free bargaining between players and producers.

Schenck issued the following statement of his policy on the proposed code:

"I am opposed to the establishment of a code authority for several reasons. It would result in peonage for the artists. It would tend to establish maximum salaries which would be illegal, unfair and un-American."

Pay What They Earn.

Goldwyn said:

"There is but one Charlie Chaplin, one Garbo, one Cantor, one Dressler. They have unique personalities. They are entitled to everything they can make.

"I'd rather pay an artist $250,000 if he earned it than $2,000 if he did not."

It has been this department's contention from the outset that if these high-priced artists did not attract the money to the box-office it would not be there to be paid them. Since they do attract it, they are justly entitled to a fair percentage of what they are able to draw.

It may interest you to know that between now and Christmas there will be featured on the stage of Loew's Fox Theater, among others, the following notable unit attractions: The Cotton Club Revue, a tabloid version of George White's "Scandals" and similar abridgements of "Strike Me Pink" and "The Student Prince." Beginning Friday, of course, Ted Lewis and his band will start the parade in their Jubilee Revue.

"Dinner at Eight."

Although four days have since elapsed, it is by no means too late to remark that the dinner at eight that signalized the preview screening for the local dramatic desks of "Dinner at Eight," in the palm room of the Shoreham last Thursday night, was far and away the most delightful occasion of its kind that has been celebrated in the National Capital within the memory of any theatrical scribe still living!

The dinner that preceded the "Dinner" was perfectly appointed and reflected a gastronomic sagacity and picturesque prescience that not only appeased every appetite and foresaw every artistic requirement of a memorable evening, but effectually nullified any preconceived determination not to be pleased with the screen revelations of the splendid picturization of the Edna Ferber-George S. Kaufman play that comes to the National next Sabbath evening as a road-show attraction.

Exceptional Film.

City Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc., and Norman Pyle, the peregrinating publicist, of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Organization, did themselves proud in the manner of their introduction of an exceptional film to the critical eyes of Washington.

For "Dinner at Eight," by any standard of judgment, is an exceptional film. If for no other reason, it would be notable for the fact that, in addition to enlisting the services of 14 of the foremost stars on the M-G-M lot, it affords each of those 14 an opportunity to have his moment in the spotlight in a scene adapted to the last possible degree to the individual measure of his capabilities.

Nobody of all that roster that includes Billie Burke, John and Lionel Barrymore, Marie Dressler, Edmund Lowe, Madge Evans, Jean Harlow, Wallace Beery, May Robson, Lee Tracy, Jean Hersholt, Karen Morley, the late Louise Closser Hale, Phillips Holmes, Elizabeth Patterson, Grant Mitchell, Harry Beresford and scores more is slighted and nobody "steals the show."

Those Who Shine.

If one were called upon to express a personal opinion as to which of the principals leaves the most vivid impression it might conceivably be deemed a toss-up among Billie Burke, who here reverts to the vivacious charm of her days as leading woman with John Drew; Jean Harlow, whose most effective work is done as a teammate, so to speak, of Wallace Beery, and Marie Dressler, whose Carlotta, former queen of the stage, is a rich and racy characterization.

Whatever the individual reaction to the individual performances may be, there can be only unanimity on the point that "Dinner at Eight," by every standard of judgment, is a picture of genuine "road-show" caliber that may be relied upon to fascinate the audiences which by every right should pack the National at every performance next week.

Our erudite and esteemed afternoon contemporary, Mr. Edward de S. Melcher of the Star, is hosting the dramatic desks of the local press at one of the more recherche of the social events preceding the premiere of "Mary of Scotland," at the National tonight. Mr. Melcher's anticipatory levee will take the form of an aperitif party at 5, to which the ladies and gentlemen of the drama departments have been bidden to meet Mr. Lucius Beebe, oracle of the drama and one of the junior pundits on the dramatic staff of the New York Herald-Tribune. It is to be surmised that after all this pooling of intellect, "Mary of Scotland" had better be good!

Perverse Fate.

It seems likely that "Rodney," the RKO-Radio production being filmed out at Fort Myer, with Walter Huston in the stellar role, will go down in photoplay history as a picture to which attached the emotional extremes of a vindictive Fate.

Only a few days ago, William Casel, a cameraman working on the scenes being made, met his death when an artillery charge swerved from its appointed course and ground him to death under an avalanche of horses' hoofs and heavy caissons.

On Friday, Frances Dee, leading woman in the production, flew to New York and that night was married to Joel McCrea, also a popular screen star, by a Methodist minister in the little town of Rye, N. Y. Mr. McCrea and his bride will honeymoon through Connecticut on a motor trip until she is recalled to Washington to appear in further scenes of "Rodney."

What violent contrasts will exist in the minds of those involved in these two strangely opposite events when the name of "Rodney" is mentioned in future! That, however, as Sinclair Lewis would say, is the way life is!

When Morton Downey, the popular lyric tenor of stage, screen and radio, arrives in the Capital Friday morning to make a week of personal appearances at the Earle, he will be joined by his wife, the former Barbara Bennett, daughter of Richard Bennett, and sister of Constance and Joan, who has not visited Washington in something like nine years. While Constance Bennett was achieving fame on the screen and Joan was making her stage debut with her father in "Jarnigan," Barbara was winning plaudits as the dancing partner of the late Maurice. Of all of which we are reminded by Master Barney McDevitt, who goes traveling up and down the land whanging cymbals in behalf of the Downey voice, and who, last evening, dropped from a clear Indian summer sky into the dramatic department for an unexpected Sunday night visit. Barney, in case you hadn't heard, is a nice boy who formerly served as chief stentor for Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians. Getting a little stout, though, what with the legal beer and all!

"As You Were!"

Informed that she had been commissioned as another of Gov. Ruby Laffoon's Kentucky Colonels, Mae West, opening at the Palace Thursday midnight in "I'm No Angel," recently expressed great jubilation at the honor and voiced the guess that the governor probably was experiencing some difficulty in keeping his troops under control, adding, "When do I get my uniform?"

A little out-of-turn conjecturing would be that the one she wears in the lion-taming sequences of "I'm No Angel," would be okay with the "troops!"

Reverting momentarily to "Dinner at Eight" and its opening at the National Sunday night, it should be said that the seat sale will open at the box office Thursday morning. All seats for the entire engagement will be reserved and only two performances a day will be given, at 2:45 and 8:45 p. m. Mail orders are already being filled in the order of their receipt.

And about Morton Downey, when he returned from Europe he weighed a paltry 216 pounds. A careful diet has since reduced that to 186, with 16 pounds still to come off, according to the medicos—the point of this betrayal being that Mr. Downey is said to be in the best voice the Capital has ever heard him.

Line forms on the right in both instances, and please don't let there be any crowding or profane language, ladies!

"Hot-Cha! Hold Your Attitude!"

That eminent young laugh psychologist, Prof. Jimmy Durante, strikes a characteristic pose, expressive of his pleasure at returning to a local screen. He will be seen with Jack Pearl in "Meet the Baron," at Loew's Fox Theater, come Friday.

Guest Critic

The Post deems it a privilege to announce to its readers that the world premiere of the Theater Guild's production of "Mary of Scotland," at the National Theater tonight, will be reviewed by Clayton Hamilton, distinguished author, lecturer and playwright. In company with a considerable group of Broadway celebrities, Mr. Hamilton is coming down to Washington from New York especially for this important theatrical event. His analytical appraisal of the new Maxwell Anderson play will appear in these columns tomorrow morning.

"Le Million."

Film Sonores Tobis-Paris picturization of a scenario by Rene Clair, directed by the author.

The Foreign Cinema League, the latest organization for the diffusion of art, especially motion pictures, auspiciously opened its first season yesterday at the Masonic Auditorium, presenting "Le Million," Rene Clair's reigning success.

Woven around the vicissitudes of winning the million-franc lottery prize and set in the Quartier Latin and the Opera Comique, "Le Million" offers Director Clair abundant opportunity to continue the good work first introduced here in "Sous Les Toits de Paris."

Unfortunately, however, neither the cinematographic treatment nor the presentation of the narrative can equal the former production; yet, as an example of the French cinema, this work is an entertaining exhibit.

Cofeatured on the program was Serge Eisenstein's "Romance Sentimentale," a musical melange, whose photographic accompaniment loses its appeal after the first 10 minutes. This work is, it is believed, the first that Washington has seen coming from the producer of "Thunder Over Mexico," now on view in New York.

To the unilingual American auditor, "Le Million" leaves some things to be desired in story presentation, especially when this work is compared with other foreign language films that have been shown. Usually in these films the characterizations have been so clearly drawn, and the elements of narrative so manifest, that the foreign language offered no impediment to a full understanding and appreciation of the film.

Notwithstanding these difficulties involved in "Le Million," the Foreign Cinema League is to be highly complimented for initiating this series of Sunday motion pictures.

Gayety

"GIRLS FROM HAPPYLAND," Jimmy Lake presents a new burlesque attraction, starring "Sliding" Billy Watson and Virginia Jones, supported by Hap Freyer, Boots Rush, Lew Petel, Charley La Vine, Danny Jacobs, Aline Dale, Joy St. Clair, Nora Murray and the Grey Brothers. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

Burlesque this week slips back a little to its former position of being a girl show, for, unlike former weeks when the gentlemen of the company ranked ace high with their specialties and comedy skits, this week's show features the girls.

Not that the gentlemen are not present, for they are, yet their offerings lack some of the brilliance and spontaneity that have characterized them during these latter weeks.

Yet this all is well, for, with a more scintillating array of burlesque blackouts, the work of Charley La Vine would not be so convincing. His one-man interpretation, via the microphone, of the finale of "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde" is by far the best thing he has done and the most effectively enacted dramatic sketch seen upon the Gayety stage this season.

But the girls; ah, yes, the girls! Outstanding is Virginia Jones, with whom are associated in their own specialties Tangara, the stage-searing artiste of last week, and Joy St. Clair, the localite, only slightly less torrid than the others.

La Belle Jones, platinum blonde of the Mae West type, is indeed a decoration to any burlesque program and her specialties, when compared with those of Brunette Tangara, make us positive we're a gentleman!

That perennial favorite of the smoker circuits, "Sliding" Billy Watson, and Hap Freyer bear the brunt of the work on the other side of the line-up ably assisted by Harry Smith, Lew Petel, Danny Jacobs, and the Grey Brothers.

Special mention, too, should be paid Hap Freyer's songs (so-called!), "Barnum Had the Right Idea" and "I'm in the Jail-House Now;" to the Grey Brothers' soft shoe dancing; and to the chorus' offerings of "Under the Harlem Moon," the Bubbles routine, and the "Wooden Shoes" number.

R. B. Scholfield Gives Christian Science Views

English Board Member Lectures Here Under Church Auspices.

A lecture on "Christian Science: The Science Which Discloses the Standard of Perfection" was delivered yesterday afternoon in Constitution Hall by Ralph B. Scholfield, C. S., of London, England.

Mr. Scholfield is a member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. He was introduced by Walter H. Moling. This lecture was under the auspices of First, Second, Third and Fourth Churches of Christ, Scientist, of Washington. The lecturer said, in part:

"In 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures' Mrs. Eddy writes: 'The standard of perfection was originally God and man. Has God taken down His own standard, and has man fallen?'

"Perfect Man Never Falls."

"Christian Science defines God as 'infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love.' And so Christian Science maintains that God has not taken down His own standard of perfection, because He can not do so, and because with Him is 'no variableness, neither shadow of turning.'

"Christian Science maintains that perfect man never can fall from perfection, for the omnipotence of God and the law of Life, or God, sustain him.

"Accompanying the belief that man has fallen into sin is the belief that man is made up of matter, and that he is a mixture of brain, blood, bones, and the like. Christian Science is challenging this belief and is maintaining that man as God made him is eternally spiritual, pure, and intelligent, and never subject to material limitation and decay. The Psalmist said: 'Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels. • • • Thou hast put all things under his feet.'

"By healing blindness, deafness, palsy, and dumbness Jesus showed that the true senses of man are not in the nerves or in matter, but that they are spiritual. Hence spiritual understanding and spiritual perception constitute man's true senses. Being based on God, or Mind, they can not be lost or destroyed.

Discusses Jesus' Work.

"The preventive and the curative method of Christian Science are contained in a knowledge of perfection. Mrs. Eddy explains this in Science and Health: 'The Christlike understanding of scientific being and divine healing includes a perfect Principle and idea—perfect God and perfect man—as the basis of thought and demonstration.' Was not this the standpoint that Jesus took? To him disease can not have been a divinely constituted power. His authority over it was so definite, and his rebuke of it so strong, that this authority can have been no less than the eternal dominion of good over evil, knowledge over ignorance. As far as we can tell, he never reasoned with others about the reality or power of disease, but he did indicate that true prayer would heal it."

McKee Linked To Tammany By LaGuardia

Fusionist Charges Secret Accord of Foes; All 3 Make Promises.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Existence of a "tacit agreement" between Tammany Hall and Joseph V. McKee, independent candidate for mayor, was charged in a speech today by Fiorello H. LaGuardia, the fusion nominee.

LaGuardia, who in turn was accused by the McKee forces of taking part in a Republican effort to "destroy President Roosevelt and Gov. Lehman," described the campaign as "a fight between the people and the politicians."

Promises Cheaper Food.

"There is general agreement among students of politics and observers of Tammany," he said, "that there is a tacit agreement between these factions and that some adjustment will be made in the event that either should be successful."

LaGuardia pledged himself to reduce the cost of food and eliminate racketeering by setting up a scientific system of distribution and reorganizing the department of markets.

McKee promised he would move to bar out-of-town manufacturers and laborers from city jobs and recorded himself in favor of free higher education.

O'Brien Pledges Relief.

Mayor John P. O'Brien, continuing his "whirlwind" speaking campaign, declared between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 a month will be devoted to unemployment relief next year as a result of negotiations he carried on with the city's bankers.

Dr. Reisner, paster of Broadway Temple Methodist Episcopal Church, declared it was "foolish" to interpret an article written 18 years ago by McKee as an attack on the Jews. The article, dug up by the fusion forces last week, was held by Dr. Reisner to be a criticism of all persons without religion.

Religious Issue Deplored.

The raising of the religious issue was deplored in a joint statement signed by Gov. Lehman, Felix M. Warburg, Henry Morgenthau and Rabbi Jonah B. Wise. The statement said all citizens should unite in stopping at its inception "that un-American, poisonous growth—religious or racial intolerance."

Bishop Manning, in a sermon, indorsed, inferentially, the Fusion ticket.

When the voters go to the polls, the bishop said, the question they must decide is: "Shall our city be cut loose from the corrupting domination of a political machine or shall it not?"
